Grace Sparkes' Territory
Ed McGinly and Grandma Gray
16 Railroad Presidents

— By Arthur Brisbane —

PHOENIX, ARIZ., Jan. 16—They teach you to be energetic in this big State. On the Santa Fe Chief you are awakened at four to get off at Ashfork, at ten minutes to five. Hospitable citizens, Messrs. Hanna, Murray and Shirley, are there to welcome and drive you to Prescott in a Fred Harvey Cadillac. The driver, wearing a 10-gallon hat, gives you new ideas of speed around the curves of Hassayampa trail, with nothing between you and eternity waiting 10,000 feet below in the canyon.

"A good car, 32,000 miles, valves ground, spark plugs cleaned, brakes relined once, nothing else," says the taciturn driver.

Stars in Arizona are amazingly bright. One toward the East must have been made especially for this State. It makes the envious thin moon look pale.

At Prescott, which used to be Ft. Whipple, where Uncle Sam fought the Apaches, Miss Grace Sparkes, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, is waiting at the Hassayampa Hotel, where 150 gather for breakfast at 6:45.

"We'd be more," said Miss Sparkes, "only we were all at an unemployment relief party until late this morning."

Wishing to make some feeble impression at such a gathering, you mention a 7000-acre place in the State of New Jersey.

"Suppose you know," says Grace Sparkes, "that Yavapai County, in which you now are, is as big as the whole State of New Jersey, and that's after cutting five other Arizona counties out of Yavapai, and there is another Arizona county, Coconino, containing the Grand Canyon, bigger than this."

Ira L. Huffner, president of the Chamber of Commerce, undertaker by profession, is able to devote his whole time to the public because the extraordinary health of Yavapai County gives him nothing to do professionally—unless some chauffeur goes off the mountain road.

Merely living to be old is nothing out here. You are requested to consider Ed McGinly, aged 102, who sleeps every night in the Pioneers' Home. Every morning he starts out in the mountains prospecting for gold, walking up grades of 45 degrees, returning to friends in the evening.

Daniel J. Seaman, who looks after the pioneers, of whom Grandma Gray is 103, shows you his printing office there. In this weekly, Stars, he was first in Arizona to print this column.

"In fact," says Miss Sparkes, "there is no excuse for living outside of this country. Everything you want is here, roses perpetually blooming. And not far off pine trees and perpetual snow."

Leaving Prescott, to which this column will return later, the car with the cowboy driver goes on 100 miles farther to this prosperous city, center of the world's greatest single irrigated tract of land. The Roosevelt Dam supplies the water. The Western Fruit Jobbers' Association has a convention attended by 16 railroad presidents, 1 railroad chairman, 30 railroad vice-presidents. Gen. Atterbury of the Penn and President Paul Shoup of the Southern Pacific speak at a luncheon of about 1000 in the open air, an airplane taking photographs.

You know why so many big railroad men are there when you learn that the rich irrigated soil of this valley sends out thousands of carloads of melons, lettuce and other products. You meet one man whose company cultivates 30,000 irrigated acres, tractors working 24 hours a day the year around. A farmer who uses his tractor for two weeks, then puts it away to rust, can't compete with that.

More about this state tomorrow. You ought to see Arizona with one county bigger than New Jersey, its total population less than that of Newark, plenty of room, wonderful opportunities here. When you come bring money. And don't forget to stop at Prescott, and ask for Grace Sparkes.

Then come here and talk city with W. W. Knorp, the newspaper monopolist of Phoenix. And from here travel down to Tucson, on to Nogales. Here Mexico begins.

If climate interests you, if you would be rid of sinus or other trouble, come to this

JURY HEARS OF GARRETT ACCOUNTS

Compile: testimony in Garrett case on Page 14. Get each day's complete testimony in the 7 P. M. Edition of the Evening American.

Records of bank accounts of Oliver B. Garrett and Florence H. Garrett were admitted in evidence today at the trial of Garrett, his wife and Miss Lillian V. Hutch, accused of conspiracy to extort, when the first of a list of bank officials were called to the stand.

The records went in over strenuous objection of defense counsel and after a bench conference which lasted an hour.

Paul Jewett, treasurer of the Brookline Trust Co., and Wallace Tibbetts, attorney representing the Exchange Trust Co., were witnesses.

Earlier in the day Asst. Atty Gen. George B. Lourie took the stand, but was allowed to answer only two questions before being dismissed. He testified he had inquired for records of accounts in the name of Florence H. Garrett from every bank in the state.

CHECKS IDENTIFIED

Jewett brought with him a signature card of Mrs. Florence H. Garrett which was admitted as evidence against all three defendants, subject to objections and exceptions of defense lawyers.

When it developed that he could not identify a transcript of an ac-

Clara Smiles Through Sobs

$350,000 SPENT BY CLARA IN GAY 2 YEARS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 16—"I spent it for Clara."

These were the salient claims of the principals today in the sheriff trial of Daisy De Voe, one-time secretary of Clara Bow, the screen tomboy, as the trial opened its 10th day, during the giddy $2,350,000 "It" actress' money.

The jury in Judge William C. Doran's court again took up the trail of gold, jewels and furs, those symbols of luxury which the two blondes, wood girls bought and gave away during 21 hectic months.

DISPUTE OVER $13,913.

George Armstrong, district attorney's auditor, was the first witness, and testified at length about 1358 canceled checks representing $350,000, or what it cost two young women for less than two years of giddy Hollywood life.

Armstrong sorted out several deposit slips alleging Miss De Voe had transferred $13,913 to her private account from the "Clara Bow special account" between May and September, 1929.

These items were in dispute between the red head and the blonde.

CHECKS FOR LIQUOR.

Two "liquor checks" figured in the testimony, one for $173 "for wine" and the other "for whiskey."

Armstrong testified that of a total of $13,872.95 deposited by Miss De Voe from the "Clara Bow special account,"

Defense Attorney Nathan Freedman said the truth about the $350,000 would come out today and would show that, instead of stealing great sums, Miss DeVoe had spent them to pay gambling debts

Chesterton and A. E. Are Guests at Yale

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 16 (AP)—A luncheon given by Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale today brought together Gilbert K. Chesterton, a noted British author, and George Russell, Irish author, who writes under the pseudonym of A. E., both of whom today had speaking engagements here.

Mr. Chesterton will debate with Clarence Darrow, and A. E. lectures in the Bergin course at Yale.

U. S. Editor Ordered Out of Cuba at Once

Havana, Jan. 16 (INS)—President Gerado Machado today ordered the immediate deportation of John T. Wilford, an American citizen and editor of The Havana American, an English-language paper, one of many suspended in Havana last week by the Government.

Cardinal Scapinelli Reported Weaker

Vatican City, Jan. 16 (AP)—Cardinal Scapinelli, who has been ill, was reported today to be somewhat weaker. His doctors say his convalescence will be difficult and have ordered a complete rest.

Power Trust or People

DANIEL WEBSTER was speaking of and on behalf of the United States Senate when he said:

"WE KNOW NO MASTERS, WE ACKNOWLEDGE NO DICTATORS."

In the issue now joined between the people and the Senate on the one side, and the President and the Power Trust on the other, the Senate will soon show by "actions which speak louder than words" whether its independence is as absolute today as it was in the days of Webster.

By its vote to reconsider the confirmation of the three federal power commissioners, the Senate showed that the Power Trust was not its master.

But the Senate must show also that it acknowledges no dictator who may be acting in the interest of the Power Trust.

The Senate well knew that Accountant King and Solicitor Russell were being penalized because throughout their years of service they had tried to protect the natural resources of this country from the raids of the Power Trust.

The Senate well knew that in dismissing these two faithful public servants, the three commissioners responsible for this outrage were serving the Power Trust and not the people.

But an even more important question before the Senate than the fate of these two employes is the future of the Federal Power Commission.

Is that commission to be packed with tools of the Power Trust or is it to be controlled by the servants of the people?

The answer to that all-important question now rests WITH THE SENATE.

If the new commission is to be controlled by the servants of the people, the tools of the Power Trust must be driven from its membership.

If that commission is to be controlled by the representatives of the people, the Senate must positively rescind its confirmation of Commissioners Smith, Garsaud and Draper and must positively refuse hereafter to confirm any Power Trust nominees.

It is not enough for the Senate to know no master in the Power Trust. The Senate must also refuse to acknowledge any dictator in the White House.

Unless the independence of the Senate is as absolute in dealing with the President as it has shown itself to be in dealing with the Power Trust, the Senate's fight to free the commission from the grip of the Power Trust will end in a sham battle.

Daniel Webster set a standard for the United States Senate which every Senator in Congress today ought to deem it his high privilege and bounden duty bravely to uphold.

Power Commission Backs Down, Rehires King

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Power Commission today reinstated William V. King as chief accountant, but refused to re-employ Charles A. Russell, who was dismissed last month as solicitor.

Dismissal of the two men last month precipitated an attack in the Senate on the Power Commission and led to a resolution asking President Hoover to resubmit the nominations of three of the commissioners. The President declined.

Senators charged the action of Chairman Smith and Commissioners Draper and Garsaud indicated they were dominated by "power interests."

The commission said, in dismissing the men with the privilege of applying for reinstatement, that it was done because of internal friction.

Reappointment of most of the other power commission's employes was called to the attention of the Senate today by Senator Bratton.

Ellsworth Is Given Polar Flight Medal

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—Lincoln Ellsworth, American explorer, went to the White House today to be presented with the gold medal voted by Congress after his famous polar flight of 1925 and 1926.

In 1926, Congress voted medals for Ellsworth, Roald Amundsen and Umberto Nobile, both participated with Ellsworth in the transpolar flight of 1926.

CHELSEA MAN IDENTIFIED BY AGENTS IN THEFT

All Accused Plead Not Guilty; Physician Is Among Those Arraigned

Eight men were arraigned in Suffolk and Middlesex county courts today in connection with widespread investigations of an alleged automobile insurance fraud ring.

Identified as insurance agents and physicians as a ring who collected damages from several companies for staged automobile accident frauds, John Surago, 21, of Chelsea, Middlesex county, appeared in Suffolk court.

He pleaded not guilty to a charge of larceny of $1750 from the American Employers Insurance Co., and was held in $5000 for a hearing next Friday.

In Middlesex Superior Criminal court seven men were arraigned before Judge John Gibbs on indictments charging conspiracy to steal from the Travelers' Insurance Co., American Employers' Insurance Co., and the Employers' Liability Assurance Corp., Ltd.

ALL PLEAD NOT GUILTY

The defendants, who all pleaded not guilty, are Dr. George E. Jones, a Waverly dentist; John M. Lord, 329 S. Main st.; David White, 321 Church st.; Malcolm E. Wallace, Witherbee st.; Ralph Clishee, 13 Highland st.; Lawrence F. Child, 28 Walnut st., and James N. Dean, 11 Huntington ave., all of Marlboro.

Dr. Jones was released in $1000 bail and the others were held in $2000 each. They brought the total of indictments in connection with the investigation to 24, as 17 had been handed down by the December Middlesex Grand Jury.

According to Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick A. Crafts, who is handling the investigation, the men are accused of being either false claimants or the assured parties in connection with false claims.

PUT UP TO FOLEY

The Middlesex grand jury issued a report in December in which it requested Dist. Atty. Foley to make an investigation in Suffolk county to determine whether extortion and compounding felonies had been practiced in his district by insurance company officials.

Surago's arrest was the first indication that the Suffolk county authorities were investigating insurance frauds on their own account. Taken into custody by Inspector Frank Haggerty, he was looked over at headquarters by a number of insurance men.

Dr. Philip Levine of Chelsea identified Surago as a man whom he treated in 1929 for supposed automobile accident injuries and who

I. C. WRIGHT IS SAVED IN TIDE

Irving C. Wright, member of the Boston sporting goods firm of Wright & Ditson, was rescued early today from an island in Barnstable harbor after the high tide of icy water had drenched him to the waist.

He was taken to Cape Cod Hospital at Hyannis, suffering severely from exposure and frostbite.

He was stranded on the island after losing his boat while duck hunting yesterday, and it was nearly 1 o'clock this morning before his cries were faintly heard by Mrs. Catherine Sears and Henry Perry of Barnstable.

Flashlight signals from the mainland by Anthony George of Barnstable were answered by Wright and served to fix his location for his rescuers.

It was nearly two hours later, however, when state police effected the rescue in the bitter cold which gripped the entire coast. The place where he was stranded is known as Jewel island.

Wright went to the Cape with Bruce Coombs another Boston business man. Coombs participated in the rescue, having been notified while the state police were on the way.

ALL BANK ACCOUNTS OF MRS. GARRETT TRACED, LOURIE SAYS

JUDGE LIMITS TESTIMONY AT TRIAL

count prepared by the assistant treasurer of the bank, Judge Patrick M. Keating excused him so his assistant could later testify.

Tibbetts testified he had with him a signature card for a vacation club account of Florence H. Garrett.

Asked if he had any other records he said he had signature cards for accounts of Oliver B. Garrett, Florence Woodside and Oliver Bridge.

Following the lengthy conference he identified two checks for $10 each, dated June 22, 1927, made payable to Mrs. Florence H. Garrett as vacation club checks. Then a signature card for a savings account in Mrs. Garrett's name was introduced.

Another bench conference followed the introduction of a series of deposit slips.

REVEAL DEPOSITS

The government introduced an account in the Exchange Trust Co., under the name of Oliver B. Garrett.

The card was marked for exhibit and showed the account was started Dec. 8, 1925, with a $5 deposit. It revealed a deposit of $56 the following day; Jan. 29, 1926, $40; March 3, $100; March 31, $100; April 2, $250; April 26, $300; May 8, $100; May 19, $150; Oct. 1, $14.70 interest; April 1, 1927, $14.30 interest; Oct. 1, $5.20 interest; April 1, 1928, $5.38 interest.

At this juncture, Judge Keating called for adjournment until 9:30 a. m. Monday, when Tibbetts will be recalled to the stand.

The three incorporators of the Pine Grove Dairy Farm at Hingham were the daughter, son-in-law and a friend of Mrs. Annie L. Hall. It was testified by two of the incorporators during the morning session.

They were A. H. Wood, the son-in-law, and Mrs. Anna M. Muirenin, wife of Dudley A. Muirenin, the druggist, one of whose horses Garrett was driving when injured at the Marshfield fair.

Mrs. Garrett's daughter, Wood told the court, is sick in bed.

Neither Wood nor Mrs. Muirenin ever put any money into the dairy corporation, they testified, nor did they ever have any actual hand in the business.

SIGNED PAPERS

Mrs. Muirenin testified that she signed her maiden name to the articles of incorporation "as a matter of protection, because she didn't want to be held responsible if anything happened."

Mrs. Muirenin, asked to tell of a conversation she had with Mrs. Garrett regarding the incorporation of the farm business, said:

"Mrs. Garrett told me she thought of forming a company, and asked me if I would help her out. I said I would, and asked her what I had to do. She told me nothing, that I would just have to sign my name to a paper."

Asked to explain how she happened to sign the article "Annie M. Kane," she said:

"Mrs. Garrett said she was forming a corporation and, as a matter of protection, because I didn't want to be held responsible if anything happened, because I had property in my own name, I said I would sign it that way. Mrs. Garrett told me it wouldn't make any difference and if I wanted to sign it that way I could. So I did."

LAWYER PRESENT

Under cross-examination by Atty. Daniel J. Gallagher, she said a lawyer was present when she signed her maiden name—a lawyer by the name of Maguire, who, she had heard, was now dead.

She always knew Mrs. Garrett as "an honorable, peaceful and law-abiding citizen," she said. She didn't know that her husband kept his race horses at the Pine Grove farm, but thought he might have done so.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle sought to have Mrs. Muirenin's opinion of Mrs. Garrett's reputation stricken from the record, but the court allowed it to stand.

Wood corrected Garrett with an "Hello, Ollie," when he walked to the stand, and the ex-raider responded with an "Hello, Allen." Asked to tell of the farm incorporation, he said:

"My mother-in-law informed me that she was going to form a corporation to protect her interest, and I agreed with her that it was a good thing and, in substance, that was all that was said."

WANTED NO MONEY

Mrs. Garrett had said she would like to have friends or members of her family in the corporation and that she didn't want any money, he testified.

He said his wife was sick in bed and under a doctor's care.

The testimony given by Miss Hatch at the Warner inquiry was read by Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle while Joseph F. Mellyn, official stenographer who transcribed it, was on the stand.

The legislative report authorities, the Warner investigation was also read into the records of the trial.

Further evidence regarding real estate transactions entered into by the wife of the police raider was given by Miss Nettie Gardner of Cedar st., Hingham, and through introduction of a property deed showing transfer of property from Walter T. Jones to Mrs. Garrett, Hingham property was involved and the total purchase price was $3650.

WIFE RAN FARM

William L. Howard, town clerk of Hingham, was another witness supplying a certificate required by the town from persons doing business in the town under other names than their own.

It showed Florence H. Reddin as the operator of The Pine Grove Dairy Farm.

At the opening of the session, following a 45-minute conference with all counsel, Judge Keating instructed the jury to disregard as evidence eight $50 monthly notes introduced at the trial yesterday. These covered payments for farm equipment, but were all paid in 1929, whereas the period covered in the indictments ends in 1928.

Miss Gardner testified she owned property in High st., South Hingham, in 1926. Garrett and Mrs. Garrett called at her home, she said. An exhibit was then introduced to show that Miss Gardner agreed to sell for $2250 to Florence H. Garrett, property on High st., Hingham, consisting of a dwelling, stable and two acres of land, down payment being $200 in cash and $2000 to be paid the day the deed was passed.

Under cross-examination she testified the house she sold was small and without modern fixtures.

With consent of defense counsel, Doyle then stated to the jury that Walter T. Jones, a government witness, was ill and that had he been present he would have testified regarding property he sold to Mrs. Garrett at Sandy Hill, Hingham, for $1400; $200 cash and $1200 check.

SENATE VOTES FOR INQUIRY ON PRICE OF BREAD

Will Seek Reason Why Cost Was Not Lowered as Wheat Came Down

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Senate today adopted without debate a resolution for investigation of the reasons for the failure of the price of bread to reflect the decline in the price of wheat and flour.

Inquiry also will be made to ascertain whether bread prices are at their present level because of "combination of restraint of trade."

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee was given $15,000 from the Senate's contingent fund for the study.

The resolution was a combination of proposals offered by Senators Wagner, Democrat, New York, and Brookhart, Republican, Iowa. It said the price of wheat and flour had undergone a precipitate decline during the past year, that the price of bread had not gone down in proportion; that the price of whole wheat flour was now higher than white flour, and that the price of brown and unrefined sugars was now higher than whits and refined sugars.

All of these contentions would be investigated. The study concerning sugar prices will be conducted simultaneously with that into bread prices.

Senator Brookhart sponsored that part of the resolution for an inquiry into sugar prices. In this connection also the investigators were directed to determine if a combination in restraint of trade was responsible for conditions.

was paid $1750 damages by the American Employers' Insurance Co.

Thomas Ward, superintendent of the National Union Indemnity Co., said his company paid Surago $500 for injuries believed to have been suffered in an automobile accident. Lurgio was identified in the case by Dr. H. Dolce of Centre st., Jamaica Plain, who treated him following an alleged automobile accident.

He was also identified by Dr. Pope of the Travelers Insurance Co. as John Sikofski, who collected $700 while that company had alleged injuries.

Dr William F. Cotting of Jamaica Plain also identified Surago as a man he examined in connection with an accident.

Insurance companies were asked to obtain from their records the names of lawyers who appeared in the various cases in which Surago was involved. Inspector Haggerty stated also that drivers of cars alleged to have knocked Surago down will also be questioned.

DRY LAW DODDY SEES REPEAL AS DOOMED

Sheppard, Author of the 18th Amendment, Says Few Violate Statute

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—Marking the eleventh anniversary of national prohibition, one of the authors of the Eighteenth Amendment told the Senate today the dry clause would stay in the constitution forever.

He was Senator Morris Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, making the first Senate speech on the liquor question this session, with a fighting defense of prohibition.

Denying it had created an increase in crime or of drinking among young people, Sheppard said repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would "let loose upon your country evils which will mean the arrest of its progress, the wreck of its glory, the pollution of its name and fame."

SEES ANTI SPLIT

"Those who clamor for the restoration of legalized liquor have short memories or no knowledge of the lawlessness and corruption for which legalized liquor stood," Sheppard said.

"The fight against beverage alcohol reached an intensive status when increased population and increased chances for gain made possible by the machine age united to bring about the manufacture of intoxicants to an extent that threatened the permanent corruption and control of government. Any general impairment of health, morals and efficiency."

Pointing to what he called hopeless division among the anti-prohibitionists, Sheppard said:

"Some of them advocate the complete entry of the federal government into the liquor business, others suggest each state be authorized to engage in the liquor business, if it should so desire, and still others would leave the situation as it was before the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted."

"ENFORCEMENT VOLUNTARY."

"The comparative handful of prohibition enforcement officials, about 1700 scattered among 125,000,000 American people, would be overwhelmed but for the fact that they must cope with but a comparatively small and lawless minority.

"To call this enforcement group an army threatening the home, menacing privacy and imperiling the liberty of the American people is another wringing-wet absurdity."

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—The first car of a crowded seven-car train from Jersey City split a switch today in Hudson Tubes Terminal, 33rd st., and Sixth ave.

Of the 50 passengers in the car, 19 were injured, seven women and 12 men, four of them seriously enough to require hospital attention. Only the fact the train was running slowly prevented a long death list, officials said.

Confusion and fright sent scot-begrimed passengers scrambling for the doors in the darkness as broken glass showered around them.

Transit commission officials declared they were seeking a maintenance man. He was said to have waved his hand that everything was all right.

The indictments returned today, two in number, charge him with 32 counts of larceny from the Winchester Home for Aged, Indigent Women of Charlestown, aggregating approximately $200,000, and larceny of approximately $300,000 from the estate of William H. Hill, estates of Mark Hollingsworth, Charles E. Rogers and Bethany Union of Young Women.

Among the items listed as unsecured debts in the bankruptcy schedule filed in federal Court are the following:

"Money owed by the bankrupt as fiduciary," estate of William H. Hill, care of Donald M. Hill, Boston, $227,823; estate of Mary Langmaid, care of Clarence L. Newton, Boston, $70,000; estate of Samuel Langmaid, care of Clarence L. Newton, $8000; Bethany Union for Young Women, care of F. A. Dewick, Boston, $30,250; First Universalist Society of Charlestown, care of Rev. J. M. Ratcliffe, $4000; Franklin W. Leg, Trust, care of George C. Coit, Boston, $25,000; estate of Mark Hollingsworth care of Charles R. Cabot, Boston, $100,609; Winchester Home for Aged Women, care of Francis S. Moulton, Boston, $138,029.

Other large debts include $23,624 owed to Charles E. Rogers, care of Herbert Rogers, Belmont, and $118,500 owed to John J. Bettinger, St. Louis.

Tolbert at White House Fete Without Necktie

Washington, Jan. 16—Running true to form, Joseph W. Tolbert, Republican national committeeman, who never wears a necktie, attended a White House reception last night in his regular tieless custom.

In addition, he was a regular business attire, while he other guests were in formal dress.

Tolbert does not believe in "putting on the dog," and as for ties, he has asserted over a period of years they are "useless."

Balm Suit Against Mrs. Doegler Ends

Camden, N. J., Jan. 16—Withdrawal of a $400,000 alienation suit brought by Mrs. Doris K. Endor, former Follies beauty, against Mrs. Edna Lesdon Doegler, was announced here yesterday.

A check for an unknown amount was received yesterday by James M. Davis, counsel for Mrs. Endor. He refused to discuss the case or settlement.

Suit against Mrs. Doegler was brought some time ago when Mrs. Endor named the ashen-haired blonde as a corespondent in a divorce suit that she brought against Chick Endor.

Replenishment of stocks in merchandise, Thomas R. Hill, president of the Silk Association said, would mean an expenditure of three-quarters to one billion dollars and would stimulate industry, increase employment and restore prosperity.

Amy Johnson to Fly Back to London

Warsaw, Jan. 16—Miss Amy Johnson, British aviatrix, expects to start a flight back to London today, she said after testing her plane, which was damaged in a forced landing near here Jan. 4.

Amy Johnson

Miss Johnson left London about the close of the old year on a projected flight to Peiping, China, by way of Berlin, Warsaw, Moscow and thence over Siberia to the Orient. She was forced down several times before reaching Warsaw. The reason for her proposed return to London is not stated.

HOUSE ANTI-DRY 'BLOC' OPENS FIRE ON WOODCOCK'S POLICIES

Demand for Increase in Funds to Buy Rum in Hotels Is Called "Scandalous"

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Correspondent

Washington, Jan. 16—The enforcement policy adopted by the new bureau of prohibition in the Justice Department was subjected to a withering fire from the "wet bloc" today, as the House prepared to take up the annual supply bill for the Justice, State, Labor and Commerce departments.

Having little hope of preventing an increase in the prohibition bureau budget from $9,000,000 to $11,389,500, the anti-prohibition spokesmen directed their attack chiefly on enforcement methods being employed by Director Amos W. W. Woodcock.

ANTI-DRY DEMANDS.

Among the demands of the "wet" block spokesmen are that the bureau cease tapping telephone and telegraph wires, issuance of prohibition propaganada, use of public funds to buy liquor, setting up of government "speak-easies" and employment of informers or "stool pigeons."

The "wet bloc" stood committed to oppose the addition of 500 new agents, which would bring the force to around 2000.

Rep. Tinkham (R.) of Massachusetts, who dissented from the appropriation committee's recommendations, announced he would demand drastic reform in enforcement methods. He planned to offer several amendments to the bill.

SCORED BY TINKHAM

"The appropriation bill carries $250,000 for the purchase of liquor and payment of hotel meals and similar expenses of agents who buy liquor," said Tinkham. "In other words, this fund assessed upon the taxpayers, constitutes a federal government slush fund for the commission of crime. It is a scandalous and indefensible expenditure.

"The bill contains an item of $2000 for the purchase of stationery and supplies for undercover work. The use made of like appropriations in the past suggests the establishment by the government of offices where arrangements are made for the commission of crime and for the establishment of places for the illicit sale of liquor. A proviso should be added to the bill that no money is to be expended for such purposes."

Representative Schafer, Republican, of Wisconsin, who obtained an investigation of wire tapping by the appropriations committee, announced he would offer an amendment to prohibit this.

Four Horsemen Beat the Barrier

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The governor is chinning himself on the future.

He is opposed to prohibition, bootstrap legislation, tall tariffs, short Republicans, soda water with two straws, haunted garages and other war debts, rocking chairs in one-arm lunchrooms, paging guests with megaphones, compulsory breathing and trap drums in small apartments.

Governor Roosevelt also snapped both barrels of a presidential boom the same day. He is opposed to everything Governor Ritchie resents and favors markers on ferry boats so that you can tell one end from the other.

Jim Reed is the third candidate and President Hoover makes it an even third-of-a-dozen. He has written a presidential scenario based on the experiences of one who knows what it is to have won and suffered.

We don't know whether the opening gun has sounded or whether it was a false start on the pop of a bon-bon.

But apparently the boys are following Colonel Mosely's advice to get there fust with the mostest men.

And, even if you haven't got the then, get there anyway.

'It' Girl Tells Court Story of Many Checks Torn to Bits by Former Secretary Friend

THE TRIAL OF DAISY DE VOE, ex-confidential secretary to Clara Bow, goes merrily on—few tears intermingling. More is being told of "making love by mail," as letters and telegrams from Rex, Harry, Gary and Earl are referred to. You remember the trouble that Clara had over that affair with the Dallas dentist, whose wife sued her for heart balm. Well, here they are on the beach at Los Angeles. The correct name of the dentist is Dr. W. Earl Pearson.

BURNING "IT" GIRL'S love notes. Clara Bow, that red-haired "It" girl, whose smile was replaced by sobs, as the story of the burning of her love letters from Rex Bell, Harry Richman, Gary Cooper and Dr. Pearson, was told and retold in the Los Angeles courtroom. Daisy De Voe declared that she burned the love letters, so that trouble would not befall Clara.

NO MORE RINGS. They are all gone. Daisy De Voe, former manicurist-maid-secretary-banking adviser and friend of Clara Bow, photographed during investigation in Los Angeles. She heard many things as Clara Bow, the "It" girl, told story of many checks torn to bits by Miss De Voe. (International Newsreel photo.)

WALES OFF FOR SOUTH AMERICA

Le Bourget, France, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, landed this afternoon. The trip from Hendon, England, airport had taken two hours and 18 minutes.

The royal brothers' trip to South America will take from England for more than two months.

Liverpool, England, Jan. 16 (AP)—The liner Oropesa, which the Prince of Wales and Prince George will board Sunday at Santander for the trip to South America, carried a stock of bright green beer brewed in Edinburgh and especially put on board for the British heir.

Prince Would Like to Be Newspaper Man

London, Jan. 16 (AP)—Once upon a time—this is a true story in a book called "South of Suez," by the South African, William J. Makin—there was a prince who danced with a golden-haired girl in a desolate town on the coast of Africa.

"Rotten," the little girl answered.

"Well," said he, "if you're playing in any town where I happen to be, let me know and I'll come to your theater. That ought to help business."

The Prince, of course, was the Prince of Wales, and this is only one of the stories about him in Makin's book published today.

In another anecdote he discloses that the heir to the British throne would like to be a newspaperman if he didn't have to be a Prince.

"If I were not the Prince of Wales," Makin says he heard him say one time, "there is a job I would be delighted to tackle —special correspondent to a newspaper. Going out after a story must be one of the finest jobs in the world."

BOSTON'S COLD SNAP ENDED

The cold wave that sent the mercury below zero was broken today when the official thermometer at the Federal building registered 32 degrees at 3 o'clock.

The mark was reached following a steady climb by the mercury beginning at 6 a. m., when the official reading was 13 above.

The lowest temperature reading reported in the suburbs was zero at Carlisle, while two above was recorded at Bedford. Lorex at Concord, four at Wellesley, five at Dedham and Lexington, six at Wakefield, and seven at Waltham.

Northfield, Vt., reported eight below, while the thermometer at Tupper Lake in the Adirondacks registered 21 below.

Four fish draggers, beating in from the South channel in the teeth of a northwest wind, arrived at Fish pier today sheathed in ice. The draggers, all of which brought trips of groundfish, were the Marie & Winifred, the Elvira Gasper, the William L. Putnam and the Wamsutta.

Welsh Coal Strike Due to End Monday

London, Jan. 16 (AP)—Representatives of the mine owners and of the miners of South Wales returned today to the strike districts with a provisional settlement of the wage dispute which it was believed would permit return on Monday of 150,000 miners.

They will resume work at seven and one-half hours a day instead of eight with no reduction in wages. On the other hand, the mine owners obtained the desired elimination of the national industrial board and substitution of a joint conciliation board with an independent chairman.

Policeman and Three Held in Girl's Death

Washington Jan. 16 (AP)—A policeman and three other men were in jail without bail today because a coroner's jury determined they had "sufficient guilty knowledge" concerning the murder early December 31 of 19-year-old Beulah Limerick to warrant grand jury action. Patrolman Robert F. Langdon, one of those held, had been accused by the girl's family of threatening and impoturning the girl. The others held are her brother, Vernon Limerick; Richard Reed, a roomer in their home, and William E. Paddy, the girl's escort at a dance on her last night.

St. Lawrence Water Power Curb Sought

Albany Jan 16—Differing sharply from the other four members of the St. Lawrence power development commission on the method of marketing power that would be generated by harnessing that waterway, Thomas F. Conway of Plattsburg submitted a minority report.

Conway declared the majority's plan would place the state and consumers "at the mercy of the utility companies in case they should decline to enter into a fair contract for transmission, distribution and marketing of such power."

Athens, Jan. 16 (AP)—Floods in the plains of Thessaly and Argos have destroyed a section of the railway between Nauplia and Argos and marooned a party of American tourists at Nauplia.

2 DRYS NABBED, RELEASED

Francis L. Stevens, 25, a federal liquor sleuth, and Leslie W. Rogers of Methuen, an "undercover agent" for the prohibition department were arrested here today—and the charges were drunkenness.

Stevens, who lives in Lawrence st., Malden, and Rogers, of Pelham st., Methuen, were arrested by Patrolman Maurice Fitzgerald in the wee small hours.

The pair were released before court opened this morning, but it is understood that Boston headquarters sent another agent to this city, and with a physician, had the men examined to determine their condition. This report will be returned to Boston for action, if any, by the administrator.

SENATE HURTS RED CROSS

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—Officials of the Red Cross informed President Hoover today the organization is being seriously embarrassed in its appeal for a $10,000,000 drouth relief fund by proposals in the Senate that Congress appropriate and give money to the Red Cross.

Those present were Chairman Payne of the Red Cross; Secretary Lamont, Under-Secretary Mills and Assistant Secretary Hope of the Treasury, all members of the Red Cross central committee.

They reported unfavorable reaction to the appeal for funds because of the proposed relief measures in the Senate has been registered in a number of cities, particularly Philadelphia and Boston.

The Red Cross today announced receipt of $381,000 in the campaign for $10,000,000.

The largest single contribution reported was $100,000 from Mrs. Edward H. Harkness, of New York City.

Among chapters forwarding checks the first two days of the drive was Winthrop, Mass., $350.

STUDIO DENIES RUMORS

Meanwhile the Hollywood studio where Clara is under contract as a star moved today to the support of the actress in the face of reports she had broken down in health as a result of the ordeal of the trial.

Paramount studio officials after hearing the reports that Miss Bow would be given a vacation while Sylvia Sidney, New York stage actress takes her part in her current picture, announced they were determined to keep Miss Bow in the part.

B. Schulberg, general manager of Paramount studio, declared her contract was not endangered by the furore of the De Voe trial.

He said the studio stood ready in case Dr. Wesley Hummel, Miss Bow's personal physician advises it, to give her a rest, but that she will start work immediately on the story for Miss Bow's next production."

Schulberg admitted, however, that Sylvia Sidney, recently arrived fro mNew York where she made a stage success, was on hand to understudy the "it" girl opposite Gary Cooper in the production "City Streets," which goes into production next week.

LIKED EARL BEST

Maybe Clara Bow has had a lot of hot friend," but Dr. Earl Pearson of Texas fame is the man she liked in her life.

At least Daisy De Voe, the flaming-haired Clara's once upon a-time nest "close said so today.

Daisy for almost two years lived with the temperamental "It" girl and dressed her, staged her parties saw that she went to bed at night at "a decent hour" and that she got up in the morning in time to go to work.

And was "darn fond" of her, too, she claims.

Now, of course, that is all changed. Daisy, no longer the confidential secretary to the celebrated Clara is instead, on trial on theft charges.

But Daisy still remembers a lot about the "It" girl's life and loves.

STILL IN LOVE WITH HIM

"Of course there were 'boy friends—and boy friends, I might add," she reminisced, "But I am certain that Earl—you know, that Texas doctor—is the only one she was ever really crazy about.

"I could tell by the way she'd watch for his wires and letters—honestly, just like some little school girl who had got it bad. And she'd be peevish if they didn't come when she expected them.

"She would get confidential, too, and tell me how much she loved him. She still is love with him, for that matter, too."

"It might have been a good thing if she'd married him," the blonde Daisy ruminated. "But, then, I always thought he wasn't crazy to have a red-headed movie-star for a wife. That's just my opinion, mind you!

BLAMES BELL

"Clara needs some one to look out for her, though. She's grown up, and she makes a lot of money and is world known and all that, but she is a child at heart, just the same.

"Yes, I know"—with a deprecatory gesture—"she gave it to me hot and heavy when she put on that witness stand. But that's Clara. She doesn't hate me, really. She singed the fireworks only because Clara has got to be the main drag. She's got to be the center of the show.

"She said she felt bad to be giving me the works, and I believe her. I don't think the kid hates me. I think—well, if I should tell you what I really think about that Mister Bell and how he's got me in Dutch with Clara, you couldn't print it anyway. It would burn up the paper it was written on! But anyway, he's to blame for all this!

"Clara is a reckless youngster. Always has been. When I was there I had trouble with her all the time.

MADE HER SING

"When I was with her I made her mind me, all right! That was the agreement when I went to work for her. I was to be the boss about things that were for her own good, and I saw that I was.

"At first, when I'd try to make her go home from parties, or would calmly tell company they had to go home—that she had to go to bed, she'd get mad and start throwing things at me.

"But I broke that little habit—" she smiled, a little—not bitterly, just reminiscently. "I'd go over to her and twist her arm a little, not so that it would hurt, but so she'd know who was boss. Or maybe I'd give her a right smart slap. That would bring her out of it.

NEEDS A HE-MAN

"That's what Clara needs, you see," she confided, "someone to strong-arm her. And that's why I'm sorry she and Harry Richman didn't make a go of it. Harry would have worn the pants in that family, I assure you! But what Clara thinks she has to have is meek, mild boy friend without the nerve to kick when she gets out of lines.

"Take this latest crush of hers —the sweet patootie, Rex, for instance. Harry wouldn't have let her go to wild parties just as I wouldn't. But Rex doesn't give a darn.

"She will call him up and tell him she is going with another man and he will complain a little, and the next time he sees her he will be a little peeved—but not too much, if you get me.

"Oh," she finished, "I get so mad when I talk about him!"

HOPES FOR RECONCILIATION

"Well, then, let's change the subject. Let's talk about you, Daisy. What is going to become of you?"

This was her suave, smooth-voiced attorney speaking with Daisy's interest at heart, as usual.

"I, oh, whatever happens to me, will happen, so why should I worry about what I can't help?"

Daisy is a fatalist. She believes that everything is written in the stars, and in horoscopes and things.

"I've learned a lot in the last two years," she concluded, significantly, "and like my little friend, Clara, says she was, I've lost some illusions I assure you. But I'll get by.

"And," she added, "I'll tell you this, too. I have a feeling that, some fine day, everything will be 'Jake' between Miss Clara Bow and one Daisy De Voe.

Lied for Clara, but Won't Any More, Says Daisy

Los Angeles, Jan. 16 (AP)—Daisy De Voe, on trial on a charge of theft of $16,000 from Clara Bow, movie actress, told newspapermen before court opened today, "I haven't told anything yet," and added she was going to tell the truth "no matter how it hurst" Miss Bow.

"I've lied and lied to protect Clara Bow, and I'm not going to now," the former secretary of the actress said. "I've got to tell the truth for self protection, no matter how it hurts her."

2 BIG BANKERS MAY BE MADE TO TESTIFY

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—A subcommittee was ordered today to investigate legal rights of the House Banking Committee to force Charles A. Mitchell, of the National City Bank, New York, and George W. Davison, of the Central Hanover Trust Co., to furnish information previously promised.

A motion by Representative Beedy, Republican, Maine, to name the sub-committee to determine the legal rights of the committee to force the bankers to supply information demanded during the investigation of chain and group banking was unanimously adopted.

Mitchell declined to supply a separate financial statement of the National City Co., an affiliate of the bank of which he is chairman of the board. Davison, Chairman McFadden said, also refused certain financial data during the inquiry.

Mitchell wrote the committee it was "a settled policy" of his institution not to publish a separate statement for the National City Co.

Milk Is Foundation of Low Cost Diet

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—The low cost diet in a food diet prepared for the President's emergency employment committee has milk as its foundation. Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, said milk "excells almost all other foods in variety and quality of materials that it furnishes the body and is suitable for persons of all ages."

Canned unsweetened milk or powdered milk, she said, could be substituted for fresh product.

Court Holds Up Sale of Nine Schooners

Portland, Maine, Jan. 16 (AP)—Court approval of sale by auction Wednesday of nine schooners of the bankrupt New England Maritime Company was held in abeyance today with the prospect that the vessels might be purchased en bloc by the principal stockholder of the concern.

The nine vessels, built at an aggregate cost of more than $1,000,000 were auctioned for a total of $13,525.

Cash Bonus Would Bring Back Prosperity, Vet Says

Editor Boston American:

Being a veteran I have stood around different veterans' bureaus and watched them negotiate for loans on their compensation certificates.

I have also read articles in various papers of some of the well off Legion men who are not in favor of cashing same for face value.

I would like to know whether these people have any idea what circumstances the largest per cent of veterans are in. I believe it would change their minds if they stood around one of the bureaus for a few hours. I for one belong to no veteran organization and know at least 50 I could almost touch who are in very poor circumstances.

I also believe if the certificates were cashed and the money put into circulation you would see many new homes going up, factories running and a real business boom underway.

Urges President to Aid Veterans Before Others

Editor Boston American:

Why is it that the veterans get so many slaps in the face?

President Hoover is now going to try and get $10,000,000 for the Red Cross to relieve the drouth area. A certain party said that there were $4,000,000 now available for such a cause. The farmers' relief and drouth bill was passed. Why does the president want more money when he has received enough as it is.

If the citizens of Massachusetts have any money for this cause why not use it to help out the needy veterans at home here. If the money is used here it will be at least used without any overhead expenses.

I think it would be a good idea for Mr. Hoover to call on our Senators and Congressmen for action of Representative Paiman's bonus bill before calling on people to give money to other causes. Aid the veterans and then help out the others.

WALTER L. WOODWARD,

Ward Stands Out for Veterans' Preference

Editor Boston American:

Let veterans be given preference over aliens, by all means.

As a purely patriotic proposition, I am in thorough accord with it. Why shouldn't they be given preference over aliens—and citizen slackers?

Who hindered the soldiers' bonus bill? Aliens? Hardly! You'll find them in places which no aliens can occupy. And the average "vet" knows it, too.

If I were to ask that all aliens fought in the wars in which this country was involved, I should be stating an untruth. All aliens did not fight; neither did all of the Americans.

Mr. James Couley says: "An alien was not obliged to fight, but a citizen was expected to do his duty."

"Expected!" Yes—but did he always do it?

I think the alien was obliged to fight Mr. Couley.

Statistics (presumably impartial) ought to be available to settle the question of the national and racial origin of incorrigible criminals in this country.

My statement is not "preposterous," Mr. Couley, nor "an insult to real Americans." A real American is broadminded and fair; the others are not even fair.

Curiosity prompts you to inquire why I have not been naturalized, Mr. Couley.

Because I wish to purge myself of even the suspicion of "alienism" before I kneel in spirit at the feet of the Goddess of Liberty, a citizen who can conscientiously say he hasn't an axe to grind.

Favors Married Women Resigning Positions

Editor Boston American:

I sincerely hope that as soon as you can devote a little time and thought on the married woman whose husband is earning a living wage and whose selfishness and narrowness compel her to hold a position that rightfully belongs to the single woman.

I read your paper every evening and I love it. I admire your fairness and your frankness. I love those straight from the shoulder articles that appear quite often in your paper. Give the single girl a little space some evening very soon.

A SINGLE WOMAN.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

After reading of the Missouri lynching, I would suggest we send a few more missionaries to so-called heathen lands. The outrageous presumption of this crime-ridden country arrogating the right to teach other countries how to live is impertinence to the nth degree.

Sees Only Chaos if Dry Law Is Repealed

Editor Boston American:

I wish to comment on the widely reported statement of Mayor Heffernan, of Youngstown, Ohio, in which he gives as experience in trying to make Youngstown a clean and lawabiding city. He brings out that the American people face a terrific problem in "urbanization." Our laws, our administration, our opinions, are made by and for small pioneer groups. They break down entirely when transferred to big cities. "Corrupt and cynical cities," says Mayor Heffernan, "will lead to government collapse in the nation." The old idealism is gone. In its place we have the racket for wealth.

To repeal Prohibition and put back the domination of the liquor interests in city government is simply to make the problem of urbanization even harder.

It is plain we have never had a democracy fitted to cope with the corrupt, lawless, and cynical city sidewalks. We have got to get such a democracy or go under. Repeal of Prohibition makes the coming of the day when we can put fiber and idealism into our big cities much farther away.

Power to put on more self-discipline is the need!

No Cash for Vets, But Millions for Others

Editor Boston American:

In your editorial today (Pay That Bonus Now!) I think you were a little hard on our Communist for trying to save the few dollars for the veteran that Congress so generously gave him.

You state in your editorial the veteran was paid $1 a day for the time he was in the service. There is nothing to show that he saved any of that $1 a day; in fact, he did not because he had to hustle for a job as soon as he got out of the service, and today thousands of them and their families are broke and in want and in all the bread lines in the country.

On the other hand, those noble patriots who served for $1 a year became millionaires over and over again; also their families and friends.

That shows that the veteran must have a guardian if he can't save something from $1 a day when the patriot can save millions on $1 a year.

Lampoon "True to Form" in Scrubwomen Cartoon

Editor Boston American:

The Lampoon, famous literary volcano, is at it again, discharging its mess of lava. The poor scrubwomen having their rights justified by the alumni, must now be cartooned in an ugly fashion.

As a paper in its name, it is running true to that name. We were interested some time ago in its knocks against Mayor Curley and helped to smooth these troubled waters. But the paper is fuming again. It must be noticed. It must create a sensation. It must stand before the public eye as a lampoon.

It must twist, turn and twirl its thoughts and pictures to the extent of making many of their elders wonder why these boys cannot get Mrs. Winslow's soothing syrup that may have dosed them in early years!

SAWYER URGES FAIR LAW TO AID ALIENS

A change in the naturalization law, to eliminate injustice and excessive fees, is asked in a resolution filed in the Massachusetts legislature by Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, state representative from Ware.

Under its terms the legislature would memorialize Congress to amend the law, which the petitioner alleges "at present thrusts upon many residents of the state, who desire to become citizens, great hardships, injustice and excessive fees."

A bill calling on the Metropolitan District Commission to construct a boulevard from Administration rd., at Wampatuck rd., in the Blue Hills reservation, to Willard st., Braintree, was filed by Rep. Morgan T. Cahill of that town.

Half the cost would be paid by the metropolitan district and the rest would be met from the state highway fund, under the provisions of Cahill's bill.

Another measure filed by Cahill would authorize Braintree to construct schools or additions to present ones, and to issue bonds or notes up to $850,000 outside the debt limit. The selectmen signed the petition accompanying this bill.

Forty-four to Face Charges of Murder

Manila, Jan. 16 (AP)—The prosecuting attorney of Pangasnan provinces announced today he would file murder and sedition charges against 44 Colorums (religious fanatics) being held in connection with the recent uprising at Tayug, in which several persons were killed. Thirteen girls will face the sedition charge.

Airway Lighting Work Speeded Up

Washington, Jan. 16 (INS)—With other federal, state and municipal activity in construction work, the aeronautics section of the Commerce Department is speeding its program of lighting 25,000 miles of airways, it was learned today.

Already there are close to 15,000 miles lighted and equipped with radio aids to air navigation.

Mrs. N. E. L.—
"My neighbor asked if I had changed my laundress"

"My wash was on the line two hours earlier than usual. 'My, your clothes look nice this week!' a neighbor said. 'Have you a new laundress?' I simply beamed with pride as I confessed that I was the new laundress, but that the Chipso Granules suds had done all the hard work for me."

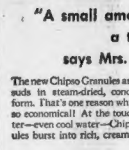
Mrs. H. B.—
"Chipso suds break all records"

"I put my clothes to soak in Chipso Granules suds and lukewarm water. After leaving them several hours, I could hardly believe my eyes! Those suds had broken all records I ever heard of for lasting. They were almost as thick and creamy as at first—and they had loosened the dirt till it fell right out of my clothes."

"A small amount of Chipso Granules—a tubful of suds!" says Mrs. C. P., of West Roxbury

The new Chipso Granules are Chipso suds in steam-dried, concentrated form. That's one reason why they're so economical! At the touch of water—even cool water—Chipso Granules burst into rich, creamy lather.

And since every bit of soap dissolves instantly, it takes a surprisingly small amount to make all the suds you can use. You'll be amazed at the time and labor saved when you get lasting suds like these so quickly!



Mrs. I. M.—
"Always dreaded dishwashing—enjoy it now"

"Chipso Granules make such a sparkling, sudsy dishpan that grease just seems to melt away without effort! Now pans aren't any work at all—I let them soak themselves clean while I dry my silver and glassware. You should see how my hands have improved since I stopped using harsh cleaners!"

Mrs. A. S. K.—
"Most delicate colors wash successfully"

"The very first time I saw the heaping, bubbling suds that Chipso Granules make, I said, 'Now I'm not afraid to trust colors to a laundry soap.' And into the washing machine went my daughter's choicest little hand made frocks! . . . Of course, the colors came out bright as new. My white clothes seemed snowier than ever before, too!"

TEACHERS LEAD 650 TO SAFETY IN BEVERLY

Beverly, Jan. 16—Fire crackled and smoke poured through the building, but 650 pupils of Briscoe junior high school marched out in 90 seconds today under leadership of their teachers.

The fire started in a sewing room on the second floor and caused considerable headway before smoke resulted in its discovery. The cause is undetermined.

Principal James Cronin detected the smoke, sounded the school alarm and notified fire headquarters.

All the pupils were out and were watching the progress of the blaze several minutes before the fire apparatus arrived in charge of Deputy Fire Chief Cressey.

The fire caused a damage of $2000.

MISS BARRELL TO WED WOODS

Miss Elizabeth ("Betty") Barrell, Boston society girl, will wed Joseph W. Woods of Chestnut st., Beacon Hill, in March, according to announcement today by; Mr. and Mrs. Augustus F. Goodwin of "Brackenside," Hamilton. Mrs. Goodwin is her mother.

Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods, has two young children, a boy and a girl, by his first marriage. Their mother died about two years ago.

Miss Barrell made her debut in 1927 and is a member of the Junior League and prominent in the hunting set of Hamilton and Aiken, S. C., from where the announcement of her engagement was made.

Woods was graduated from Harvard in 1926 and is a member of Spee, S. K., Stylus, Hasty Pudding, D. K. E., Harvard Club of Boston and the Tennis and Racquet clubs.

THE ENGAGEMENT of Miss Elizabeth Barrell, Boston Junior Leaguer, and Joseph W. Woods of Beacon Hill, was announced today by her mother, Mrs. Augustus F. Goodwin of Hamilton.

Trestle Fall Fatal

California Oil Men Fight Wilbur Plan

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—An appeal has been sent the California congressional delegation to oppose Secretary Wilbur's plans to put the rich Kettleman Hills oil field on a unit basis of operation.

Jones laid his protest against the agreement before Wilbur yesterday, charging it would turn the destiny of the field over to the Standard Oil Company and create a monopoly.

U. S. Buys New R. I. Lighthouse Site

Newport, R. I., Jan. 16 (AP)—Purchase of a site at Bristol, R. I., by the United States Lighthouse Service for a Narragansett Bay station was announced today by the Newport Realty Trust Corporation. The purchase included the former short line ferry terminal owned by State Senator William H. Vanderbilt which was abandoned when the Mount Hope bridge was opened. The lighthouse service is understood to have $75,000 available for buildings.

French Plan Biggest Electrical Liner

Paris, Jan. 16 (AP)—The French Line today announced its intention to construct what it calls the fastest and largest electrically propelled passenger ship in the world.

The length of the ship will be 1000 feet and its speed more than 20 knots. Construction already has been begun at St. Nazaire. She will have four screws.

Easiest Way To Break Up a Cold

Millions Say of This Proved Way

Works Fast—Makes You Feel Like a New Person Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a hiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

BRIAND PLEADS FOR UNITY OF EUROPE

Geneva, Jan. 16 (AP)—Europe has come to the belief that her nations must unite if they are to live, Aristide Briand today told delegates from 26 European states gathered here under the auspices of the League of Nations to examine its plan for a Pan-European federation.

"We have a long road to travel," he told the assembly as he opened its sessions, "and we must map it out. We must never be swerved from our purpose and in our task we will reject the co-operation of none."

Dr. Julius Curtius, Germany's foreign minister, echoed the French chairman's declaration, asserting that his nation, supporting any program of co-operation and peace, agrees that these points must be emphasized.

Dr. Curtius relied upon Briand's assertion that the commission would reject no one's co-operation, and asked when Germany's proposal to invite Russia and Turkey to sit with the commission would be considered.

Briand replied he already had indicated he wanted to call on all governments to participate, but that there still was a question as to the proper time for inviting these non-members of the League of Nations.

Dino Grandi, Italy's foreign minister, supported the contention of Curtius that both Turkey and Russia be asked to sit in.

Girl Coasting-Victim in Coma 11 Days Gaining

Worcester, Jan. 16—The 11th day of coma for 11-year-old Ida Ducharme, coasting accident victim, started today in St. Vincent's Hospital.

The Dartmouth st. girl showed an improvement during the night, doctors reported today in an announcement that the hitherto deep unconsciousness of the girl had become more of a "doze."

Liquid food has been given her at intervals, the muscles of the throat responding sufficiently to swallow, but the swallowing is subconscious, physicians said.

At 11 a. m. she reached the 264th hour of coma, a state she has been in since she crashed into an auto of a Main st. man while coasting near her home. The accident occurred at 11 a. m., Jan. 5.

History Teams May Go on the Gridiron

Davenport, Ia., Jan. 16 (AP)—Intercollegiate competition between mathematics or history teams before crowds of "big game" football size is conceived by Harry Kipke, University of Michigan football coach, as a possible way of altering opinions that the gridiron sport is over-emphasized.

TIGER HEART

By Robert Terry Shannon

CONNIE NOTICED, even as she spoke, that something of the kindled light in Kitty's eyes was dying out. Again, the old surly look was creeping over the girl's face.

"Suppose he don't like the horrible confession you'll have to make?" Kitty asked.

"Don't worry about Jim not liking you—he's wonderful," Connie told her. "He'll tell me exactly what to do and how to do it."

"Well, if you need somebody to tell you what to do, I suppose this Tracy fellow is as good as any," Kitty said. "Where is he?"

Jim Answered

Jim himself answered the long distance call when she got his house up near Stamford. Since he had seen her driving away mysteriously toward New York, he had been miserable with suspense and apprehension. He had trumped up a garage and obtained gas for his own empty tank. By that time pursuit was hopeless and, highly wrought, he had driven home where, when she called, he was pacing the floor in anguished mystification.

"My God—where are you?" he demanded, at the sound of her voice.

"Now don't get excited, dear," she said, soothingly. "I'm quite all right and perfectly safe—but I'm not home. I want to see you tonight. I have something important to tell you."

She could detect the note of fear in his tone. "What's wrong? It's 1:30 in the morning and I don't even know where you are, Connie—"

"I'll be at your place within an hour or so," she said, crisply. "Meanwhile, don't worry your head. Something has come up, Jim—but it's nothing to worry us. I'll tell you everything as soon as I get there."

When she came out the booth, Garson and Kitty were standing ready to leave.

"Where can I reach you tomorrow?" she asked Kitty. "I'm going back now, but I'll get in touch with you in the morning."

Here— Duke Garson handed Connie a card on which he had written Kitty's address and telephone number with a pencil.

"I suppose I ought to wish you a lot of luck on your marriage," Kitty said, "but you were born lucky, so I guess you don't need it."

"Don't mind what Kitty says," Duke Garson said, with a smile. "She can't play sociable long, poor kid. I think both you girls are upset tonight, anyway. You go ahead and handle your end of it the best way you can."

"I'm going to do the right thing," Connie told Garson, looking straight into his dark eyes.

She was now acutely conscious of him as a man; all of the harshness that had seemed so vicious in his manner had disappeared. He was handsome, invigorating, without any of the petty tricks of chivalry. Still she found it hard to forgive him for his previous threats, which amounted, almost, to attempted blackmail. He looked at her steadily and seemed to be reading her mind.

"Don't carry away the idea, please, Miss Calvert, that Kitty and I were trying to gyp a defenseless girl," he told her, with a half smile. "We were prejudiced against you from the start—and the under dog has the right to snarl a bit, because he is the under dog. We didn't know at first that you were as square as we do now—did we, Kitty?"

"You two," Kitty retorted, eyeing them, "certainly have lots of arguments in common. What's the good talking? Let's all tell each other goodnight and wait for the breaks."

"Won't you kiss me and wish me happiness?" Connie asked her sister awkwardly. Kitty obeyed.

But on the swift drive back to Connecticut, with the cool night air rushing past her ears, Connie was lingeringly aware of the firm, magnetic pressure of Duke Garson's farewell handshake.

Flying along the deserted country road in her car to visit Jim Tracy in the dead of night, Connie was conscious of a queer, detached feeling that separated her from all her past ways of thinking. Hitherto, she had floated merely with the social tide; life had been a secure round of genteel living and pleasures, a succession of thrills that no more than touched the surface.

Life Secure

Now, suddenly, a new virus tingled in her soul. A scandal had come into her life, but, facing it, all fear had melted away. She had found herself connected with the underworld—had discovered an underworld of sister, an abandoned daughter of her own father.

She, Connie Calvert, was bloodtied to Kitty Calvert of Tenth ave. . . .

It was a shock, of course, but it was also a stimulant. Already she was highly wrought up because of her wedding tomorrow with Jim Tracy. Somehow, her spirit seemed loosened from its mooring of sensation. The beautiful road undulating tempted her and she sped her roadster up to 60, to 70 miles an hour, enjoying the slight tingle of danger in her breast. She thought of Duke Garson, and the memory of him excited her like a bitter, mysterious wine.

Perversely, Connie began to feel a mischievous anticipation as to the way Jim would receive this bewildering news. His sense of conventions by would be outraged—at first; Jim was so fond of security, of well-ordered behavior. She had noticed, frequently his unconscious habit of clinging to established customs for the stability they gave to his life. Not much of a fellow himself for taking chances, he plied his trade on the most insecure thoroughfare on earth—Wall Street—but even there he was safe. Other people bought the stocks and bonds from him and took all the chances.

His home life, as a bachelor, was perfectly secure. He lived in a small country house within commuting distance of New York, with his mother and his father, a retired physician, with an income from invested funds that was barely sufficient to meet the needs of a small place . . . just a well brought up young man of pleasant charm to whom nothing much had ever happened.

When she reached his house, she saw no lights were burning, but he met her down at the road. His hat was off, and his eyes had a strained look.

"If you come up to the house you might alarm the folks," he exclaimed. "Lord, Connie, do you realize that it's after 3 in the morning—and that the wedding is to be at noon?"

BETTER TIMES SEEN BY ROSE

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP)—Marc C. Rose of New York, editor of Business Week, today said the bottom of the business depression has been reached, the tide has turned and the year 1931 will mark the beginning of a gradual return to normalcy the world over.

Mr. Rose spoke at the mid-winter meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"Business will improve during the first quarter," he predicted. "We shall have a summer letdown.

"Business should turn upward again in the Fall. The Fall peak should be higher than the Spring peak.

"Measured in terms of human hardship and suffering this depression is far from the worst ever known due in part to the fact that the American people were in better shape to withstand a seige from the wolf at the door than in some previous depressions.

"Second, I think it is due to a much more enlightened policy on the part of employers."

Fireman Killed in Quarrel on Liner

A fight which broke out on the freighter Nantucket, en route from Philadelphia to Boston, resulted in the death of Julius Walker, 28, negro fireman, of Savannah, Ga., it was disclosed today.

Walker is alleged to have been slain by Robert Parsons, 29, with a pocket knife after a quarrel over a coal-hanger. The vessel returned to Philadelphia, put ashore the body together with Parsons and four other stokers as witnesses, and left again for this port.

Prison Head

DR. A. WARREN STEARNS, Massachusetts commissioner of correction, who will be the speaker at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Republican Club next Tuesday.

Dr. A. Warren Stearns, state commissioner of correction, and dean of Tufts Medical School, will speak at the January meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts, Tuesday, January 20, in Ford Hall.

Mrs. J. Hasbrouck LeFavre, member of the State Republican Committee, will bring the club up to date with her talk on "Current Events."

32 SHOT DOWN IN INDIA RIOT

Bombay, Jan. 16 (AP)—Police fired on a meeting of striking mill-hands at Lalbagh in the Parel area today, wounding two persons. Thirty were injured in a battle with police at a demonstration on the Maiden esplanade this evening.

These instances of rioting marked observance of a day of mourning called by Indian nationalists protesting against the execution recently of four rioters convicted of killing a policeman at Sholapur. During the day more than 100 persons were injured as police broke up sporadic demonstrations.

Despite the martial street cars and taxis were running. In the mill areas 77 out of 80 mills were closed down, nearly 140,000 operatives having stopped work for the day.

The entire Bombay police force, numbering 5000, had been mobilized to put down any trouble.

Well-Dressed Men Must Live 'Wearing o' the Green'

Philadelphia, Jan. 16 (AP)—Here is how the well-dressed man will look in the spring and summer of 1931, as decreed by the International Association of Clothing Designers:

The predominating color is green.

Shoulders will be broader, waists slimmer and higher, coats longer and sleeves narrow at the hand, indicating that anything but the slender young man will be passe.

Bottle green and a deep, dark blue are the predominant colors for sports wear, and a return of the notched lapel is favored. Sports coats to be worn with flannels are trimmed with white pearl buttons, patch pockets and belted backs, and one display of business suits was of bright green, elaborated with bright green buttons.

In topcoats various types of outer garments ranging from dress garments to sacks to the larger roomy overgarment featuring half-belt will be much in demand.

Airplane Funerals for Australian Folk

Brisbane, Australia, Jan. 16 (AP)—Because so many well-to-do settlers in lonely parts of Queensland want to be buried in the beautiful cemeteries of the towns where some of them have family vaults, an airman here is using a specially constructed plane as a hearse.

Mourners are able to follow the hearse in passenger planes, attend the burial service and return to their plantations the same day.

Red Leader Auto Victim

Manila, Jan. 16 (AP)—Antonio Ora, president of the Communist party in the Philippines, was killed in an automobile accident at Cavanatuan, Neuva Ecija province, today.

BOYCOTT URGED TO AID DAIRIES

Concord, N. H., Jan. 16 (AP)—The boycotting of butter substitutes by state institutions and the New England public was offered today by George M. Putnam, veteran rural leader, as one plan to aid the farmer to recover his "economic equilibrium."

"I question the wisdom," he said in his annual report today, "of using any substitutes for dairy products at any time. There certainly is no justification for it under present conditions, when good grades of butter are selling at 25 to 30 cents a pound, the lowest price since 1910.

"Under existing conditions, I believe the state should give preference to products produced by its own citizens and taxpayers."

British Weavers to Vote on Strike

Manchester, Eng., Jan. 16 (AP)—Faced with a general lockout that would affect half a million workers, the Weavers Union today announced it would take a vote to determine whether it would stand by its refusal to accept the "more looms per weaver" system. The mill owners have threatened to shut down tomorrow at noon if the dispute is not settled.

Mammy Goose CAN'T Cough

PERTUSSIN

"RADIO people must be particularly careful of their voices," says Miss Malone, whose original sketches and songs have made "Mammy Goose" a household word to thousands. "Huskiness or coughs would just ruin a program."

That's why so many radio entertainers like to have Pertussin always close by. They can rely on it to relieve coughs quickly.

They like it, too, because it is entirely free from narcotics and injurious drugs and is pleasant to take.

These winter months are coughing months. Watch out! Take Pertussin. It's so safe, doctors have prescribed it for children's coughs for 25 years. It gets at the cause of the irritation. Stop in at your druggist for a bottle today.

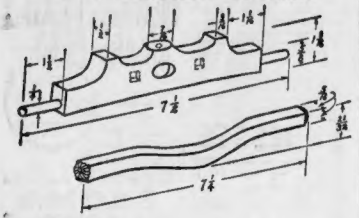
Coach Builders Start on Construction of Axle



THE FRONT AXLE AND SPLINTER BAR ARE NOT DIFFICULT TO MAKE

Today's Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild lesson harks back to earlier work in the construction of the prize coach and takes up the shaping of the front axle and the splinter bar, two of the most essential parts of the running gear. This lesson, to keep the sequence of work in proper order, will be called lesson No. 7. Lesson No. 6, for those who missed it, will be printed in the Boston Evening American next week.

Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild members will find in today's instructions a splendid opportunity to use their own initiative in working out construction details. The plans call for ornamental rosettes on either end of the splinter bar. One way of making these would be to carve them on the ends of the bar with a sharp knife or with small woodworking chisels. Still another, as suggested in one of the paragraphs following would be to cast them of lead, plaster of Paris or other suitable material.

Front Axle and Gear

In a previous lesson we described the making of the rear axle. The same method may be used in making the front axle which is a part of the lower front gear. Use carbon paper to make the pattern to exact shape shown on your scale drawing. Disregard the holes for side-arms and reach-pole while working the axle to shape. These can be cut in to better advantage a little later.

The front gear of the coach consists of two assemblies: The upper front and the lower front. Study your Guild drawings and perspectives carefully so that you will be familiar with the names and location of the different parts. Any part of the drawings not dimensioned may be measured direct from your plans, as they are drawn full size.

67—For the front axle you will need a piece of wood ½ inch x 1 3-16 inch x 7½ inch.

68—Now proceed as in steps 62, 63, 64, 65 and 66 of Lesson No. 6, which will be printed next week.

The Splinter Bar

The splinter bar is an important part of the lower front gear. To this bar is attached or fastened all the lower gear parts and the single trees for the horses. This bar largely controls the movement of the coach in making turns.

69—For the splinter bar work a piece of straight grained wood to the size 3-16 inch x21-32 inch x 7½ inch.

73—Finish with file and sandpaper.

74—Cut or carve the ends of bar to design shown on your Guild drawings. This may be done with a sharp knife, file and sandpaper. A set of carver's chisels could be used if available.

KONJOLA GAVE REAL HEALTH

New Medicine Brought Quick End to Stomach Ailment And Constipation

What a wonderful thing it would be if one could weigh or measure the joy and health that Konjola, the modern medicine of 32 ingredients, has brought into the world.

MRS. LYDIA SMITH

Tens of thousands have found in Konjola their first and only relief from ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. One of these grateful people is Mrs. Lydia Smith, 154 Lafayette street, Schenectady. Compare her case with your own, see how Konjola helped her—how it brought relief after all other treatments and medicines failed. Then resolve to get the facts from the Konjola Man at the Epstein drug store, 2-4 Scollay Square, Boston. Learn for yourself what Konjola has done for others—find out for yourself why Konjola is called the "medicine with a million friends." But right now read the experience of Mrs. Smith as she tells it in her own words:

"My stomach troubled me for six years. Gas formed after meals and I was subject to frequent attacks of nausea. I had severe headaches and at times had to go to bed for days. I was constipated; my liver was sluggish, and finally I lost all desire for food. No medicines I tried seemed to do any good. After only four bottles of Konjola I can honestly say Konjola helped me wonderfully. My stomach is normal and my bowels are working as they should. The headaches and pains in my side no longer bother me."

Taken systematically over a period of from six to eight weeks, Konjola brings amazing results even in the most severe cases.

The Konjola Man is at Epstein's—Scollay Sq. (Epstein Drug Co.), Boston, where he is meeting those who come to ask about Konjola and its merits.

ABUSED, CLAIMS YOUNG BRIDE OF HUNNEMAN

On the very first day of their honeymoon, Benjamin A. Hunneman, wealthy Boston and Salem business man and yachtsman, called his 18-year-old bride a "gold-digger" and got helplessly drunk, she charged in probate court today.

The bride of only three years ago, Mrs. Helen Baldwin Hunneman, formerly of Tappan st., Brookline, but now of New York, was granted a six months' divorce decree by Judge McCool following her recital.

The couple were married June 11, 1927, when she was 18 and he was 58, but within a few weeks, she declared, all the wedding presents were taken back to the stores by him and he kept all the money he received for them.

On the first day of their honeymoon to New York and Atlantic City, Hunneman became incensed at his bride, she testified, and recused her of marrying him only for his money. Then he got so drunk she could hardly get him back to the hotel, she declared.

She testified to several instances of alleged cruelty.

No alimony was set by Judge McCoole, an agreement having been reached whereby Mrs. Hunneman receives the income of two trust funds totaling $45,000.

THE LAST MILE

By Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER 47

MAYOR TRIED to rise, but fell back. D'Antoro and Kirby let drive.

The man with the wire stumbled and fell. The man with the bo.: came on.

D'Amoro fired, but there was only a click.

"My last clip," he said, fumbling to insert it.

Another rain of bullets made Kirby duck. He looked again and leaped down.

"Aw, they got away," he said.

They got the cot half way through the hell door when the explosion came. There was a terrific roar, great flashes of red flame, and the sound of falling pieces of masonery.

Then silence.

"Hol-mes," cried Eddie Werner.

"Oh God, this pain's killing me—what was it that blew up—my chest I guess—Oh—"

"If we had an opiate he'd die easier," Father O'Connors said.

"Thought you could save him in a hospital?"

"If—if this would stop," groaned Mayor.

"That hole's so big we can't go near it with them searchlights o'kin'," Kirby said.

Mears said so heed. He turned to Father O'Connors.

"Mears," said the priest, quietly, "I know a lot of you feel, but you've got to listen to me."

"I'm listen-in'"

"You mean—give up?"

"No! He took his chances."

"There's only one more chance, you know that."

"I wish—I wish—"

"What, kid?"

"I want to sleep."

"Stay with 'em, kid!"

"I'll stay——" Suddenly he let out a scream of agony that was heart-rending to hear. Then he turned white and lay still. Mears leaned over him.

"Listen, Freddie—listen—can you lissen?"

"Yes, Mears," Mayor whispered. "I'm gonna get a doctor, put you in a hospital—understand?"

"Yes."

"We're licked, anyway and—"

"I'm goin' out like a fight, so don't null."

"O'Connors here says not—if you get to a hospital—you got a big chance to pull through."

The most terrific rain of bullets, the loudest fusillade of shots of all, came then, and a lull followed with the searchlights flashing on the hole in the deathhouse. Eddie Werner began to recite, excitedly, as if he sensed the situation suddenly:

"Cannon to the right of them, Cannon to the left of them, Cannon in front of them.

Volleyed and thundered. Flashed all their sabres bare, Flashed as they turned in air, Sab'ring the gunners there.

He stopped.

"That's a good poem, Eddie Werner. Let all the world wonder," Mears said. He turned to Mayor.

"You'll be all right soon, Lid."

"Don't quit—don't—"

He gasped and screamed again in pain.

He walked to the outside door in the guard room and reached for the keys he had taken when he hair strangled Drake.

"You can't Mears," Kirby said. "they'd shoot you down—there's a searchlight on that door—you'd get a hundred bullets in you!"

"Sure, I know it," Mears said.

He unlocked the door and grasped the latch.

"Open her up, we're with you," Kirby said.

The door opened. Mears, D'Amoro and Kirby got about four steps from that door when the volley came and they all fell.

Father O'Connors managed to fly a white flag.

Soldiers came on the run then.

"Take this boy to the hospital," he said, indicating Mayor on the cot that had been hauled half way out into the corridor from the cell.

One of the soldiers leaned over him.

"He's dead, already," he said.

It was true.

"Hol-mes!" wailed crazy Eddie Werner.

She had written to Sid Cavanaugh at his Mexico City address, begged him to be careful for her sake, and told him when she would sail and where to reach her in Paris.

Someone rushed up to her.

It was Sid Cavanaugh.

"Nina," he said, softly, but tensely, "there's no need for you to go to Paris—can't you understand?"

"Oh, Sid—do you mean I'm free? How?

"You are a widow, dear."

"Oh, Sid—you didn't——"

"No I don't murder. The jealous husband of a little Mexican wife finished him the day I located him.

"I want to get away. Sid—can't we both go to Paris?"

"Sure, I can make it, on the next boat after this. That gives me time to fix up my passport, meanwhile we can be married."

"I've been waiting so long for you to say that, Sid!"

THE END.

OIL MAN RAPS ANDY MELLON

Tom E. Cranfill, of Dallas, said the cabinet member was the guiding spirit of the Gulf Oil Co. Extensive imports by that company were largely responsible for the plight of the industry, he contended.

"Pull off the false whiskers of the Gulf Company and you will find the face of Uncle Andy Mellon," he said.

He charged the Gulf Company with an effort to drive Texas independent producers out of business by establishing a distributing system of its own.

HASTINGS SENT HIS EX-WIFE LOVE NOTES

A surprise witness who came into Middlesex Probate Court of his own accord today testified to the love of the late Samuel B. Hastings, wealthy Lexington sportsman, for his divorced wife, Mrs. Hazel Hastings Somers, of West Medford, who seeks $10,000 bequeathed her under the terms of a will destroyed two days before Hastings committed suicide.

William O'Neill, a Tremont st., Boston real estate dealer, living at 249 Exeter st., Boston, told the court he had read of Mrs. Somers' legal battle in the newspapers and felt it his duty to tell what he knew of the affair.

He resumed on the stand the tale of feud between Samuel and his brother Augustus Hastings was the result of Sam having Gus for love and hand of Hazel.

LETTERS OF LOVE

This testimony and several love letters sent Mrs. Somers, after she had divorced her second husband, by Samuel Hastings, in which he implored her to return to him and one, written from a sanitarium, in which he "threatened suicide," were the highlights of the day.

Mrs. Somers had commenced her second day on the witness stand when O'Neill volunteered to testify.

He said that on several occasions Samuel had told him:

PHONED EVERY DAY

Continuing, O'Neill testified that Samuel was very fond of Mrs. Somers and telephoned to her as many as a dozen times a day.

Mrs. Somers is trying to probate a copy of the destroyed will, and her action is being contested by Hastings' father, A. E. Hastings, Boston sash and door dealer, who claims that his son revoked his will by destroying it.

Mrs. Somers, 42, and attractive, told the court of eloping to New York with Hastings in 1906. They were happy she said, until he started to drink heavily. She divorced him in 1917.

A few weeks later, she said, he started to court her again, but she married Roy Somers.

On the day that Mora was a year old, Mrs. Somers testified, Hastings started to woo her again. He brought flowers for her, she said, and presents for the child.

They discussed remarriage, witness admitted, and, as a result of their planning, she sought and obtained a divorce from Somers. Hastings had been imploring her to remarry him, she said, but she made him wait until he could straighten out and overcome his drinking habit.

Mrs. Somers testified that Hastings told her that his father wanted him to destroy his will, and that he had been told that he would be put out of the sash and door business, and his money cut off, if he did not do so.

She quoted Hastings as telling her "they" threatened to drag the will through the probate court and prove he was insane when he made it.

LUCAS FLAYED FOR 'POLITICAL SPY' SYSTEM

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—Robert H. Lucas, executive director for teh Republican national committee was denounced by some Republicans in the Senate today for sending a letter to his former subordinates in the Internal Revenue bureau asking them to keep him informed of political conditions.

It was read to the Senate by Senator Cutting (R.), New Mexico.

SEKING CONTROL

Senator Johnson (R.), California, said:

"It is obvious the internal revenue collectors, acting for the department in Washington, through internal revenue taxation, attempt to or do control the politics of the nation."

The New Mexico Senator said the collectors' Lucas had appealed to might be termed "political spies."

Cutting said he thought Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential candidate in 1928, was entitled to a "square deal" and that Lucas had evaded the issue in replying to Smith's demand for an apology from the Republican national committee for "permitting" Lucas to send out a barroom cartoon in the last election with a "false" quotation.

Cutting said Lucas had used a "fake" name in sending out literature against the re-election of Senator Norris, Republican Independent, Nebraska.

WROTE IT HIMSELF

He said further the executive direction had sent out a postscript to a letter allegedly to have been written by a man named O'Shea as head of the "Democratic Victory Scouts—1932" but that no man or organization by that name had ever been disclosed.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, asked if it was not logical to conclude that Lucas concocted the letter himself.

"That is a possible conclusion to draw," Cutting replied.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, asked if Cutting was of the opinion Lucas had "forged the signature."

"I wouldn't accuse him of forging or conniving to forge," Cutting replied. "But if he did not he is the least intelligent man who ever directed the activities of a political party."

Wife Whipped 6570 Days in Succession Is Tired of It

London, Jan. 16 (AP)—Mrs. William McKechnie of Gaven told a magistrate that she had been whipped by her husband every day for the past 18 years and was growing tired of the procedure.

Magistrate Campbell, doing a lightning calculation, figured she had been thrashed about 6570 times, and placed William on probation for 12 months, promising a jail sentence if he used his razor strop on his wife again.

NEW QUAKES IN MEXICO; FEAR 48 ARE DEAD

Mexico City, Jan. 16 (AP)—Pretty Oaxaca, four-centuries-old Spanish and Indian city of 50,000, lay in ruins today. Soldiers and volunteer corps searched the debris of its buildings for victims of Wednesday night's earthquakes. New quakes felt last night caused no damage.

Eleven bodies were in morgues and estimates on the number of dead ran as high as 48. The injured list was much larger, and estimates on damage to the city ranged from 50 to 90 per cent.

Outside of Oaxaca three deaths were reported. All these were in Mexico City. Six others here are gravely injured, and some of the six probably will die. Fifty persons received minor injuries.

Lonsdale (R. I.) Girl Is Safe in Earthquake Area

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—In a telegram from Oaxaca, Mexico, to the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, Ethel Doctor, missionary, reported today that she was safe after the earthquake there.

Miss Doctor's home is at 700 High st., Lonsdale, R. I. She has been in Mexico since 1922.

Round Table Awards

Six awards of $1 each will be published each Saturday for the best contributions to this department during the week. The household suggestions may include not only recipes, but any sort of helpful hints for housewives—economical cookery or housekeeping in any of its forms.

Address all contributions to Martha Lee, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

INDIVIDUAL SHORTCAKES.

Batter.
¼ tsp. salt.
1-3 cup sugar.
½ cup milk.
1 tsp. baking powder.
1 cup flour.

Heat fruit in cups, placed in steamer before filling up cups to within about ½ inch of top. Steam 5 to 8 minutes and serve with whipped cream.

TO SEPARATE EGGS
Break them one at a time into a small funnel; the whites will pass through into the bowl and the yolks remain in the funnel.

KEEPING DINNER WARM
Put a kettleful of boiling water on the stove and place over this vegetables. A pan placed over the pikte completes the arrangement. The dinner may be kept warm for hours in this manner.

KETTLE COVERS
Of all the cooking dishes, the kettle covers are the most troublesome. When not in use, make a large pocket of oilcloth binding strong with bias binding; tack in a handy place near the stove and you can see just the cover you want without handling all the others.

Eggs Add to All Menus

Important as it is to see that small children and growing boys and girls obtain proper nutrition, it is also necessary for the adult members of the family to be liberally supplied with the nutritive foods to repair and replace the constant waste processes going on in the body.

And I don't know how this can be done more easily and economically than by the liberal use of eggs in our menus.

Eggs are among the important foods which contain high restorative and building powers. Eggs are one of the best sources of protein, which is essential to muscle-building, rich blood and healthful resistance to the destructive little germs which attack from all sides.

In addition, the egg contains valuable minerals, such as a large proportion of phosphorus, potassium, sodium, lime, magnesium, iron, fluorine and chlorine. It would be necessary to eat a great amount of green vegetables to get the equivalent of the same mineral content in half a dozen eggs.

Eggs can be served many times during the week and can be made to look and taste quite different every time.

As I said a few days ago, I have hundreds of egg recipes which I will be glad to share with you if you'll just drop me a line. Address your letters to Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston.

New Nut Loaf Good, Cheap

Hostesses always welcome anything new that is suitable for serving at bridge and tea parties. Nothing is more satisfying than a wholesome raisin nut loaf, a new tasty and delicious product baked in the bungalow bakery, where that famous Swedish health bread is also baked.

Raisin nut loaf is made of the purest ingredients, with extra goodness lent by plenty of plump, juicy raisins and crunchy, rich walnuts. It is a specialty of this well-known baking company and a real treat for your table any time.

Raisin nut loaf is on sale at all grocers and food shops in metropolitan and suburban Boston on Fridays and Saturdays only.

Martha Turns to Pork for Delightful Meal

By MARTHA LEE

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WLEX.

It's not a bit too early to begin to plan what we are going to serve for Sunday's dinner, and looking over the current market prices, I think the Lee family is going to have a crown roast of New England dressed fresh pork. Pork rib roast is selling at from 19c. to 22c. a pound, and it's from the rib cuts that a crown roast is made. Your butcher will select for you two curved rib sections of New England pork, which he will sew together for you to form the crown.

Martha Lee

He will trim, or "French," the ends of the chops and later you can decorate these with tiny paper frills made by folding a four-inch strip of paper double, fringing it on the fold; then turn inside out and cut into pieces long enough to make into a little round fringed stocking for each of the bones. (Fasten ends with a pin.)

TRIMMINGS SAVED

Have your butcher give you all trimmings from roast chop, and put them in a bowl, adding to them 1 c. of finely chopped onions, ¼ c. finely chopped parsley, 1½ c. bread crumbs, 2 tsps. salt, 1 tsp. pepper, ½ tsp. thyme and ½ tsp. sage. Mix this dressing thoroughly and place it in the center of the crown roast. Then tie pieces of heavy well-larded paper around each bone to prevent scorching. Place the crown roast in your covered roaster, arranging peeled potatoes around it. Dust the meat lightly with flour and cook in a hot oven, allowing 20 minutes to the pound.

If you don't use a self-basting roaster, baste regularly every 15 minutes with boiling water. When the roast is done, pour off all but 3 tbsp. of fat. To this add 3 tbsp. of flour and stir until smooth and the flour slightly browned. Then add salt, pepper, onion salt and celery salt and 3 c. of cold water. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly until thick and smooth, scraping all the rich brown coloring from the bottom of the pan. Arrange the browned potatoes and small baked apples around the roast.

GOOD FOR BUDGET.

A friendsss of pork shoulder is a good penny-saving recipe for these days of necessary economy. For this, you will need 2 pounds New England dressed fresh pork shoulder steak, 2 tbsps. of butter, a liberal amount of salt and pepper, 6 medium potatoes, ¼ tsp. of sugar, and 2 cups of milk. Cut the steak into individual servings and brown quickly in a hot, heavy frying pan. If the pan is hot enough you will not have to grease it and the meat will not stick.

Before browning, the meat should be sprinkled with salt, pepper and just a sprinkling of sage. Slice the potatoes very thin into a well-buttered baking dish, sprinkle the layers with salt and pepper. Arrange the steak in the middle of the potato layers, dot with butter and sprinkle with flour. Pour the 2 cups of hot milk overall and bake in a moderate oven, 350 F., until the potatoes are tender, which will take about one hour.

PARSLEY ADDS COLOR.

This is such a colorless dish that you will appreciate the addition of some parsley sprigs when you are serving this from the casserole.

You will notice that we suggest your using New England pork, first because we believe in patronizing New England products, and, second, because to truly know the deliciousness of fresh pork, you must serve pork that is strictly fresh, and an excellent way to assure ourselves of getting pork at its best, is to buy by brand.

The New England brand on pork is for your protection, and means that it is the finest, freshest pork that money can buy and has been United States government inspected and passed.

TASTY RECIPES

If you didn't secure your copy of "21 Reasons for Using and 21 Ways to Serve New England Dressed Fresh Pork" last spring I wonder if you wouldn't like me to send you a copy now? There are some wonderfully economical, as well as delicious, recipes in this book. For instance, pot roasted pork butts with vegetables; fresh ham, roasted with cider; fresh pork chops, browned and then baked in a delicious thin cheese sauce and served with spinach.

Then there is a luscious Baked Fresh Shoulder, stuffed with an apple and chestnut stuffing that's new and extra good. And I mustn't forget the Planked Fresh Ham Steak, covered with chili sauce, fried golden brown on one side, then arranged on a plank or platter, surrounded with tomatoes, bacon and grilled sweet potatoes. Yum! Yum!

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

BY WHATEVER TERM you may describe it — comic opera or operetta — "A Wonderful Night" swept into the Schubert last evening and wiped out the musical famine that has kept our theater district despondent. Not in many long and weary months has there been a "first night" like it; not in many more will you see it matched in enthusiasm on one side of the footlights or in smashing entertainment on the other. In the final critical assay on cause and effect, hardly less than to the players themselves must credit go to that swanky, music-loving audience which almost shouted its encouragement.

QUITE THE MOST pretentious affair in comic opera the theater has brought forth, "A Wonderful Night" gave you not only the inspiring melodies of Johann Strauss, and an excellent company to interpret them, but introduced for rival attraction a massive revolving stage. And so, the men and the mechanics of the theater and the ingenuity of its engineers, took the artistic affairs of Herr Strauss in hand with astonishing, if not positively bewildering results. There were no pauses between scenes, no lowering of the curtain; just the fading away of one scene and the immediate flash of the next. There was a suggestion of the movie fade-out in its operation.

ENOUGH OF MECHANICS, motors and engineering. The performance itself was the main item in the night's decision. For novelty you may whirl your players out of view on a turntable, but they must play their parts in the usual manner. Of course, the Strauss music proved excellent background for the boys and girls who sang, and also for those who danced. Rearranged and reappointed from the popular "Die Fledermaus," with considerable modernization, "A Wonderful Night" gave at least two young women an opportunity to reach for and attain the good will of the multitude. Gladys Baxter and Greta Alpeter sang themselves into every throbbing heart in the big Shubert gathering. Their's was the heavy vocal duty of the performance and they faced it with a smile and hearty response.

TO THE HOPEFUL playgoer, "A Wonderful Night" may be accepted as comic opera done in a large way and, except for minor details, presented flawlessly. At every turn you were faced with superlatives: costly mountings, brilliantly designed costuming, countless personnel and, finally, the great revolving stage. Better than all these, however, was a performance of great merit. The Messrs. Shubert have a clear right to a grain of satisfaction in this experiment.

Rachmaninoff

Sergei Rachmaninoff will visit Boston for the first time this season to appear in the Sunday afternoon concerts in Symphony Hall. The great Russian virtuoso and creative artist will give a recital January 25, at 3:30.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT" ANOTHER TRIUMPH FOR RUGGLES

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

ONE WOULDN'T EXACTLY call Charlie Ruggles a "perfect lady," but he certainly is perfectly successful as a screen beldame. With the aid of this ripping good comedian, and of others, Columbia scores another triumph in "Charley's Aunt," talkie now holding top place at RKO Keith's. This makes two in a row for that production company, as the Ruggles "wow" comes right on the heels of the great Huston in "The Criminal Code."

TO UR "CHARLEY'S AUNT" seems to have more laughs than there are stars in heaven. Real humor, too—

Charles Ruggles

it took the "kinks" out of our system, and then left us with aching sides. Exactly how many laughs we couldn't count them, but Miss Mary Hildegarde Healey, RKO expert who is posted on such statistics, informs us there are just FOUR HUNDRED AND TWENTY-TWO side-splits present and accounted for. That should be how scientifically precise they are in putting out a box office success these days. We wouldn't advise you to try checking up on the sum total; long before you have reached a hundred, you will have fallen victim to grinning at Ruggles' antics, to the forgetting of all counting of laughs.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT" is an oldtime evergreen, and that it still can make rare treat, is tribute to its many years on stage in the past, and on screen as a silent, with Syd Chaplin, five years ago. Our opinion is that the talkie surpasses them all; for it has not only the genius of Ruggles, abetted by other good acting, but it has all that Al and Charles Christie could put into it from Columbia. Which is saying that it is superbly directed, with an abundance of fine camera action, and oh! a marvelous mirthquake of merriment!

NEXT TO RUGGLES, the best actor is an old stager, Halliwell Hobbes, who is a great Daddy Spettigue. Doris Lloyd is a splendid Donna Lucia. Decoratively appearing are June Collyer and Flora Le Breton.

Ruggles as the Aunt, makes comic history for the sound screen. None should miss this show.

luncheon today at the Hotel Bradford with the guests including press reps and celebrities and their friends, at the invitation of Manager Victor J. Morris of Loew's Orpheum. D'Arcy makes a personal appearance in Boston, headlining the vaudeville bill at the Orpheum, and displays, for the first time, his ingratiating personality, entirely at variance with his famous roles in the films. Another guest of honor will be Lieut. Gitz-Rice, war-time composer of "Dear Old Pal of Mine," and other popular song hits, who is also appearing on the bill.

DOLORES COSTELLO WILL STAR IN "WE THREE"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16—John Barrymore and his young wife, Dolores Costello, will be on the same lot but they won't be working for the same company. John is a Warner Brothers' star and Dolores belongs to First National. Splitting a hair, I suppose you call it, yet there is a difference and First National announces with a great deal of pride they have already bought Dolores' first starring vehicle.

"WE THREE" is the name and it is by Edith Fitzgerald who authored "Illicit." "We Three," briefly, is a story of the daughter of the village lady of easy virtue. It is dramatic, we are told, and the role of play to bring Miss Costello back. Florence Ryerson is doing the adaptation. I think I ought to add right here that we have seldom had more letters about any actress than we have about Miss Costello. Her public is waiting for her if one can judge from the letters asking for her return to pictures. This will be her first appearance in two years but Mr. Barrymore himself is now eight months old and old enough to be left to the care of nurses.

POOR CLARA BOW, who is occupying the headlines with this Rev. Bob Shuler in our Los Angeles papers, has probably been a foolish girl but her sins are more those of carelessness than of malicious intent. I think everyone in the film industry feels sorry for Clara who is always getting herself into hot water. Her picture, "City Streets," in which she will be co-starred with Gary Cooper, is now being held up waiting the finish of Clara's lawsuit. Juliette Compton and Guy Kibbe have already been signed. Guy Kibbe was starred in "The Torch Song" in New York and he played opposite William Powell in "Gentleman of the Streets," also in "The Hairy Ape." And he is an actor who is well known.

THE GIRL who vamps Will Rogers into wearing dress suits, knickerbockers and white flannels will be played by Fifi Dorsey. Fifi got her first recognition in "They Had to See Paris" opposite Will Rogers and is put her right on her feet. She made no secret of saying that will Rogers coached her in her English and helped her to put over her big moments.

WERRENRATH SCORES AGAIN

By MOSES SMITH

Reinald Werrenrath gave a concert at Jordan Hall last night, at which he sang German lieder by Schubert, Brahms and Hugo Wolf. Having given a miscellaneous program earlier in the season, he gave last night ampto scope to a more intimate phase of his art.

It is late date at which to expatiate on the virtues of this singer as an interpreter. In this program he offered a few if occasionally an overstated—conception of each song. It was obvious that he was fond of these songs because he loved them. Anyone hearing him last night might have wished for a little limitation of his voice; but the singer was suffering from a severe cold, which he made no attempt to conceal.

An excellent feature, in fact the central interest, of the program lay in Mr. Werrenrath's running fire of comment. He talked about the lied genre at the opening of the concert, and spoke stimulatingly before singing each number. Not only was this procedure edifying; it also served to break the spell of formation that haunts so many concerts, which should be joyous occasions. Our only criticism of Mr. Werrenrath as master of ceremonies was that his remarks had a tinge of sophisticated cliches.

CONCERT FOR CHILDREN

The first of the children's concerts by Ernest Schelling will take place in Jordan Hall tomorrow morning. Mr. Schelling will again talk of the composers, the instruments and compositions included in his series. Hundreds of new aiding will be shown for the first time and the large group of players from the Boston Symphony Orchestra will play numbers at these programs.

Oakie Satirizes the Gangster Photoplays

The Cast

Cyclone Case ..... Jack Oakie
Sylvia ..... Jean Arthur
Slade ..... William Boyd
Zelda ..... Wynne Gibson
Martine ..... William Morris
Pete ..... Francis McDonald

In "The Gang Buster," feature film at the Metropolitan, Jack Oakie uses satire a-plenty to spray a sure-fire laughter mixture all over the gangster films. Turning in the best of all his zap roles, Oakie goes his boob way in addition to all sorts of gunman perils, and does it in merry fashion, so that the picture becomes a rollicking comedy with a slant towards farce.

Jack Oakie

Oakie steps up as an accident insurance salesman, and a ripping good take for the organization is. A certain big lawyer, with a pretty daughter, Jean Arthur, is threatened from an alliance with a gang leader, William Boyd. Fast first into danger slides Oakie, as he starts saving the attorney from crookdom vengeance, and thus he slides into the fair lassie's heart. Thereafter, the plot becomes the conventional gangland tangle, but done over into a goulash of humor, with the star poking his nose into all sorts of unexpected situations. The audience soon is howling with the humor of the piece.

Incidentally, the picture takes a few shots at the night club movies, scoring more laughs. All in all, it's the most mirthful of all the burlesques on crook movies. Oakie is ably backed by the very capable Boyd, who gives a finished performance as the gang leader. In general, those filling the crook roles are far better than others in the cast.

A. Edward Sutherland, who handled Oakie in other zap role films, does an almost perfect job in the direction. He cuts his scenes sharply and achieves action and much speed; the camera work is superb.

On stage, the revue features Liora Hoffman, Frank Gaby and company, and the Stanley Brothers. Mr. Martel presides at the console; and Mr. Geissler conducts the full orchestra through enjoyable music. Attention may be called to special food work by Tom Howard, of the projection room, on screen, advertising the coming of Rudy Vallee; the four "layers" of superimposed matter merit notice.

Lymans Give Dance for Daughter

MR. AND MRS. RONALD T. LYMAN of 30 Beacon st. are giving a house dance for their debutante daughter, Miss Charlotte, and her friend, Miss Ann Dick, this evening. Miss Lyman and Miss Dick have been among the popular "buds" of the winter and are provisional members of the Junior League and were elected to the Vincent Club.

SOFT PINK AND GOLD BROCADE with French blue belt will be worn by Miss Lyman and Miss Ann will wear a graceful frock of pale green lace with pink at the waistline. Mrs. Lyman will receive with her daughter in turquoise blue satin. Mr. and Mrs. Hazard Mackerman of Hamilton, relatives of Miss Dick, will give a dinner in her honor at the Somerset Club before the dance, which will be attended by Miss Lyman. Mr. and Mrs. Lyman will be host and hostess to another group at their home.

RONALD LYMAN, JR., WILL head his sister's usher corps, assisted by Chase B. Adams, Waldron P. Belknap, Desmond Fitzgerald, Reginald Fincke, Robert Livermore, William Patten, Oliver Pendar, John Preston, Morgan Pruyn, Philip de Lazlo, Gordon Harcwell, Frederick Versen, Marcus Wheelock, and J. Huntington Wolcott. Among the maidens who will attend the ushers' dinner will be Anne Warren, Fanny Homans, Elizabeth Henry of Philadelphia, Grace Livermore, Avis Thayer of Philadelphia, Ethel Grew and Mrs. Gordon Harrower. House guests over the week-end at the Lyman home will be Miss Helena Macy of New York, Miss Dorothy Dillon of New York and Miss Estelle Freilinghuysen of Princeton, N. J.

MRS. ALEXANDER LINCOLN of 265 Beacon st. will give a dinner this evening for her son's debutante daughter, Miss Emily, before the Brattle Hall dance in Cambridge.

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE PROVISIONAL members this morning heard a lecture at the league rooms at zero Marlborough st., by Miss Jane R. McCready, director of the Ellis Memorial Neighborhood House. The subject of her discourse was "Who Are Our Neighbors?"

Several Society Girls Choose June for Weddings

ALREADY THE ENGAGED girls are looking forward to the sunshine of June for their weddings—Mary Buttrick of Concord, whose engagement to John Amory was recently announced, has chosen that month for her marriage and Adelaide Brown and Stoughton Bell of Cambridge will also pledge their vows in the month of roses. Susan Moller will return from California to wed Paul Brooks in June. Her sister, Mrs. Robert Sanderson (Elizabeth Moller), and Mr. Sanderson, who were married Christmas week, have returned and are living in Cambridge. Miss Susan and Miss "Libby" Kept bachelor quarters on Charles st. before the wedding bells chimed. They have rented their "digs" for the remainder of the season.

VIRGINIA SARGENT, POST-debutante daughter of the Cyrus Sargents, has gone modern and left home to take up bachelor quarters in Brookline. She teaches at the Pierce School in that town and has taken an apartment near the school. Her sister, Miss Jean, is a debutante of this season.

MRS. SAMUEL WARREN has sent out invitations to a dinner on February 6 at her house in honor of Miss Mary Weld, daughter of Mrs. Philip Weld, and Lorraine Cutler, daughter of Mrs. Roger Cutler, recently of Reno, where she obtained a divorce from Mr. Cutler. Mrs. Warren has two beautiful daughters, Miss Helen and Miss Anne.

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS AUGUSTUS HARDING have sent out invitations for a dance at the Country Club on February 16 in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Elizabeth Harding, a provisional member of the Junior League.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES MASON of Boston are giving a dance at the Chilton Club for their niece, Miss Elizabeth Mason, the first week in February. Miss Mason is the daughter of Mrs. Herbert Mason, a charming member of the Women's Republican Club. Mrs. Mason and her three daughters live at Spruce ct., Beacon Hill.

MISS ANNA WALCOTT, whose engagement to Mr. Hayne of California was recently announced, has left Bryn Mawr College, and will no doubt study homemaking in preparation for her marriage in June. Mr. Hayne teaches at the Santa Barbara School, in which city the bridal couple will reside after their marriage.

AMONG THE PROMINENT society people at the opening of "A Wonderful Night" at the Shubert last evening were Mrs. Dana Osgood and Mrs. Clara Draper of Hopedale and Mrs. Robert Emery of Boston. Also Mrs. William Gaston and a party which included her charming daughter: Miss Evelyn Royce with John Ames, Miss Sally Syracuse with Harry Nicholas and Miss Rebekah Hobbs with Mr. George Henderson. Miss Hobbs is leaving for New York today on a business and pleasure trip

LADY HELEN BECKLEY-HASTINGS, who recently arrived in New York from London, came to Boston yesterday for a visit. She is a guest at the Hotel Bradford.

MR. AND MRS. REINALD WERRENRATH — the former a well known baritone — are guests at the Hotel Lenox. Mr. Werrenrath sang last evening in Jordan Hall.

MRS. PAUL DRUMMOND RUST and Mrs. Wainwright Johnson are at the St. Regis Hotel in New York.

Betty Alden

Mother of Popular Bud

MRS. RUSSELL BURRAGE of Beverly Farms and Boston, mother of Miss Katherine Burrage, one of the season's most attractive debutantes, was wearing pale blue lace and a corsage of the famous Burrage orchids at a recent ball. Mrs. Burrage will bring out another daughter, Miss Alice, next season.

South End Women's Club to Hear Travel Talk Next Monday

Miss Florence N. Wilson, recording secretary of the South End Women's Club, will entertain the membership with descriptions of her trip abroad last summer, which included a visit to the Passion Play, when the club meets next Monday night at the Assembly Room, 20 Union Park, at 8 o'clock.

Lantern slides of the countries visited by the speaker will supplement Miss Wilson's travel talk. Hostesses for the evening are to be Mrs. A. F. Gray and Mrs. Helen Willey. Mrs. Carolyn V. D'Pamia, music chairman of the club, will present a musical program.

Ace of Clubs Hold Annual Supper Dance

More than 600 people are expected to attend the supper dance of the Ace of Clubs at the Hotel Somerset tonight, of which affair Miss Alice Fitzpatrick, president of the club, is in charge. Mrs. Raymond I. Stuart is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Several leading actors and actresses of the shows now appearing at downtown theaters have promised to attend the supper dance.

Music Clubs Federation to Aid Young Artists

By NANCY BREWSTER

To create greater interest and raise the vocal standards in junior choirs, the Massachusetts Federation of Music Clubs is offering prizes in contests to be staged early in the spring.

At the same time, there will be contests for young artists in solo work, for junior bands and junior orchestras, and when the winners are chosen they will be given the opportunity to compete nationally during the biennial convention of the federation, this year, scheduled next June for San Francisco.

Mrs. Frederick L. Milliken is president of the federation. In making the announcement of the junior contests, Mrs. Milliken says:

"The junior contest is a stepping stone in the students' and young artists' contest, and are open to boys and girls up to the age of 18 years. We hope to stimulate interest in the work, and create sufficient incentive for boys and girls to carry on."

Miss Mary H. Sheedy, 8 Knollin st., Malden, committee chairman of the junior contests, is handling the registration of entrants.

The National School Band and Orchestra Association is co-operating with the National Federation in supervising the national contests in connection with its own solo events.

Boston Y. W. C. A. to Hold International Meeting on Monday

New England States, New York, England and Nova Scotia will be represented at the membership supper of the Boston Young Women's Christian Association when Mrs. Harold C. Stuart, hostess of the evening, calls the meeting to order next Monday night at the Clarendon st. building.

Girls living in the residences, members of the clubs and activities, committee members and members in general will meet at 6 o'clock in the activities building for the monthly meeting of fun and get-together.

Following the supper party, a popular program, under the direction of Miss Flo Nickerson, will be introduced, including Lillian Rose, Edna Reid, Ruth Collins, Grace Chadwick and Miss Nickerson.

Mrs. Stuart has on her committee of arrangements Marjorie Fales, Mrs. Robert Hallowell, Mrs. John C. Johnston, Mrs. Henry Kendardine, Mrs. Oliver Pope, Mrs. Robert C. Seaver, Barbara Rogers, Mrs Brockholst, M. Smith, Mrs. James R. Tobert and Mrs. H. H. Walker

State Federation Leaders to Attend Mid-Winter Session

A Federation dinner party is scheduled for January 21, at 6 o'clock, at the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts, with Mrs Carl L. Schrader of Belmont, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, the hostess of the evening.

Guests will include members of the executive board, past presidents of the Federation, present and past presidents of the Ivoryly Woman's Club and some honor guest. Mrs Sadie Orr Butler, chairman of the welfare department of the General Federation.

Mrs. Dunbar comes from Washington where she has been attending the annual board meeting of parent organization, to speak at the mid-winter meeting of the State Federation at the Hotel Statler, January 22.

This small and family dinner party has been substituted for the large dinner get-together that was originally scheduled to officially open the mid-winter session of the clubwomen of the Commonwealth.

Next Tuesday afternoon, the Women's Auxiliary to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will hold a guest day at the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts under the chairmanship of Mrs. Arthur W. Hurlburt, vice-president of the auxiliary.

Lt.-Gov. William S. Youngman is to be the speaker of the afternoon Mrs. May Herrick of Providence will follow the state executive offering a program of musical entertainment.

Mrs. Edith Washburn Clarke, president of the auxiliary will be the official hostess of the guest day, with Mrs William J. McDonald, sixth district director of the State Federation, her assistant.

Coat Nucleus of Budget Wardrobe

By ANN ARDEN

MODEL FROM C. F. HOVEY CO. (Staff photo.)

CHIC AT a price is not the elusive commodity that it would seem. There are clever ways, though means are few, of making well-selected things look like a closetful of smartness! Getting the allowance in hand, so to speak, for the purpose of the season's shopping, is only a matter of smart sartorial juggling. How many ways can a costume do fashionable duty is the plot. By serious forethought and more than a bit of ingenuity, you can make a little go a long, chic way.

BEGIN WITH the coat, make it the nucleus of your entire expenditure. It should be well cut, of fine fabric and of a style that will not wane with the year. Around it select your frocks, your accessories. Avoid tiresome repetition of color—it is not necessary in this age of startling color contrast.

BLACK PERSIAN lamb has not sacrificed a particle of its prestige. It blooms with colors in the new coats, being a particularly effective foil to such things as yellow tweed and beige broadcloth. Striking in a shawl collar, the fur is even more chic in revers facings and in bandings such as feature a coat seen recently.

A JEWEL in the midsummer wardrobe is the light or bright silk crepe frock. New dress-making details are assets, but the tone alone of a gold frock will do great things for a staid brown coat, while vivid red, or Kelly green add a happy contrast and diversion under the black coat. The costume pictured is both smart and practical. The coat of black chinese, a tweed-like woolen, has crushable collar, and flare cuffs of black Persian lamb. It is worn over a frock of bright rust red wool crepe, the draped neckline is formed of an extra piece which buttons to the side, with buttons of red and silver. The skirt is circular from pointed side sections. The frock has long fitted sleeves, and belt of the material, fastened with button.

THE HAT is formed of alternate bands of black felt and Panamaine straw, its flare brim wide on sides and caught with ornament of black and white eire cords. The bag is of black suede, with simulated tortoise shell trim, and the gloves are black suede, too. For general town wear, for the week-end trip, or for the office, the bright red wool frock with this coat is perfect.

Planning...hoping ...and then—the thing she dreaded

Nature won't postpone her process to accommodate social engagements! Two weeks ago she was sure she could go. Then—just an hour before the party—it had started. That excruciating pain which is now avoidable.

Expected. Dreaded. Those muscular pains reckoned by the calendar. You can't always tell to the day and hour when they'll begin. But you can count on their relief seven minutes after taking Midol!

The periodic process is natural, but the painful part is not. Midol is non-narcotic; it never interferes with the process, but it does banish the pain. These tablets take effect in five to seven minutes. Better yet, the woman who takes them beforehand will experience no pain at all. Midol relieves headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, too. Always to be had at any drugstore.

EINSTEIN PAYS HONOR TO U. S. SCIENTISTS

Albert Einstein of Germany spoke his thanks to the American genius: Dr. William W. Campbell, astronomer and President Emeritus of the University of California, Dr Albert A. Michelson, f rmerly of Chicago University, and Dr Charles E. St. John of Mt. Wilson Observatory, for the proof they had made of his theory of relativity.

SPEAKS OVER RADIO

This symposium took place in the Colossal Athenaeum, a retreat which wealthy men have built on the campus of California Institute of Technology for the scientists of the world.

Introduced by Dr. Robert A Millikan faculty head at Cal. Tech Einstein spoke, and his words were broadcast to American radio listeners. Professor Einstein said

"From far away I have come to you, but not to strangers. I have come among men who for many years have been true comrades with me in my labors.

"You, my honored Dr. Michelson, began with this work when I was only a little youngster, hardly three feet high. It was you who led the physicists into new paths, and through your marvelous experimental work paved the way for the development of the theory or relativity.

THEORY ON REAL BASIS.

"You uncovered an insidious defect in the ether theory of light, as it then existed, and stimulated the ideas of H. A. Lorentz and Fits Gerald, out of which the special theory of relativity developed.

"These, in turn, pointed the way to the general theory of relativity, and to the theory of gravitation. Without your work this theory would today be merely more than an interesting speculation. It was your certifications which first set the theory on a real basis."

Goldenberg Indicted in Killing of Girl

An indictment charging first degree murder in the killing of his declared sweetheart, Miss Lilyan R. Franks of Malden, was returned today by the Suffolk grand jury against Abraham Goldenberg, 23 of Lorne st., Mattapan. Louis Skolnick, 25, also of Lorne st., was indicted on two counts—carrying a loaded revolver without a permit and carrying a loaded revolver without a permit, as an alien

Skolnick is alleged to have loaned Goldenberg the revolver with which Miss Franks was slain in Franklin Field, Dorchester, last Friday. The girl, 22, was murdered after she told Goldenberg she could not marry him

Cambridge Man Held as Wife Slayer

Alexander Petrofsky, 42, a painter, of Squires ct., East Cambridge, in Cambridge district court today entered a plea of guilty to the charges of murder of his wife Mary, last night. The court changed his plea and held him without bail for the Grand Jury A drunkenness charge was waived

MRS. GILMAN, 2 OTHERS HELD IN $11,000

Mrs. Florence Bennett Gilman of Newton, whose alleged shoplifting case and its side issues caused four official investigations, pleaded not guilty before Judge Williams in Suffolk Superior Court today, and was released in $5000 bail

Arraigned with her were Miss Julia Riley of Brighton and Miss Lillian Donovan of Brookline ave., who were released in $2000 bail each. They pleaded not guilty No date was set for trial

All three are charged with conspiracy to steal from six downtown stores, larceny from these stores and receiving stolen goods

POLICE THEORY OF CASE

It is alleged that within a period of about two hours on Nov 22 they stole a large quantity of dresses, stockings, lingerie and handbags

It is also alleged that Mrs. Gilman was as well known to store detectives, because of her record before her marriage, that she hired the other two women to steal for her

Police say Mrs. Gilman went to the stores as a decoy on the day in question, and when detectives trailed her the two women confederates committed the alleged thefts.

JURY INQUIRY DROPPED

Grand jury investigation of a party at Mrs. Gilman's home on January 6, at which certain officeholders were present, was suddenly dropped today. The foreman, William F. Kearns of Dorchester, sent the following telegram to Coroner John W. McCormack at Washington:

"Your inability to present more evidence compels us to believe there is no necessity of your meeting this body on Monday The grand jury adjourned today until the February session."

McCormack named as the borrowers of a car which was outside the Gilman house that night, appeared before the jurors and was exonerated Later he announced he had learned things which the district attorney had not put before the grand jury

The jurors invited him to appear befor them again, but he was busy at Washington. Last night he wired that he had no way of ascertaining whether the evidence he had was something additional to what the jurors already knew He promised to appear Monday if they wanted him.

QUINCY WOMAN DIES IN FRANCE

Rheims, France, Jan. 16 (AP)—Mrs. Romeo Houle, wife of an American architect, was found dead by police at her home at Somme, last night, with a bullet in her breast. DEATH TOLL DUE TO DRIVERS OF EXPERIENCE

Hartford, Jan. 16 (INS)—Nine out of every ten of the 32,500 persons killed in automobile accidents in this country last year were the victims of drivers who had more than a year's experience, and 97 out of every 100 fatalities involved a driver over the age of 18, accident statistics disclose.

Actuaries of the Tremelers Insurance Company have compiled data showing persons with less than three months of driving experience were involved in only 2 per cent of the fatalities and not quite 2 per cent of the non-fatal accidents, involving nearly 1,200,000 cars.

ONLY 1 PER CENT

Operators of cars with experience between three and six fatalities and 1 per cent of the non-fatal mishaps. Drivers with from six months to a year of experience were involved in approximately 2 per cent of the fatalities and also the non-fatal accidents.

More than 29,000 of the deaths during the year, it is shown by the study involved drivers of experience while more than 1,100,000 were in non-fatal accidents were operated by experienced drivers.

FEW WOMEN IN ACCIDENTS

Drivers between the ages of 35 and 24 last year figured in more than 30 per cent of the fatal accidents and in about one-fourth of the non-fatal mishaps. Operators between the ages of 25 and 64 figured in nearly 60 per cent of the fatal accidents and in approximately seven out of every 10 of the non-fatal mishaps. Drivers over the age of 65 were involved in more than six per cent of the fatal accidents and in four per cent of the mishaps producing injuries.

Records indicate that men were behind the wheel in 83 out of every 100 cars in accidents. Approximately 77 per cent of all motor vehicles in accidents were cars of the private passenger type.

Jury Frees Man as Judge Nabs Him for Drinking in Court

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 16 (AP)—Acquitted on a charge of possessing a still, W. L. Hackworth, a gray haired farmer, was in jail today accused of taking a drink in the Federal building while on trial

Waiting in the prisoner's dock of the marshal's office yesterday for the jury to return its verdict in the still case, Hackworth drew a flask from his pocket, according to Prohibition Chief Carroll Cate, and took a deep "pull."

Federal Judge George Taylor immediately issued a warrant charging Hackworth with transporting and possessing liquor in the Federal building. A few minutes later the jury reported a verdict of acquittal on the still possession charge

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

By ANTHONY ABBOT

A GREAT COMMISSIONER

As Police Commissioner of the City of New York, Thatcher Colt was confronted with a number of mysterious crimes. In the face of grave difficulties, not all of which were known to the public, he personally conducted the investigations and, under circumstances that might have discouraged a less determined man, solved the crimes and saw the guilty convicted. Yet the credit for his detective work was given to others.

He has finally consented that the facts of these cases be given to the public through the Boston Evening American, on the ground that it would bring honor to the Police Department.

The American public does not sufficiently appreciate its police. Police face crime and mystery as part of their daily routine, and solve their cases by knowing their business and attending to it—by vast and competent organization, patience and determined hard work, ingenuity and an occasional streak of luck.

New York has been fortunate in its succession of Commissioners from Woods and Roosevelt down to Whalen and Mulrooney, but greater than any of these was Thatcher Colt, because of his peculiar fitness for the job. Born to wealth, family and position, he made crime his hobby in college. He knows modern criminology from Lombroso to Adler. He is never afraid to try new methods and maintains an open mind until all the evidence is in his hands.

He has chosen the bewildering and brutal murder of Geraldine Foster. It is still regarded as one of the classic cases of the department—a crime of unexampled ferocity and cunning, surrounded by mysterious circumstances, planned and executed as if with the cold savagery of an inspired lunatic.

The Boston Evening American is fortunate to be able to present herewith the Police Department's own story of the crime and its solution by Commissioner Thatcher Colt.

CHAPTER 1

Miss ng!

THE DISAPPEARANCE of Geraldine Foster was first reported to the authorities on the third day after Christmas, several years ago.

Only a desk-lamp was burning in that famous private office at the north end of the second floor of police headquarters at 240 Centre st., New York city.

Finally he glanced up at me quizzically.

"You can go, Tony," he said. "I've done enough work for one secretary today."

"Capt. Henry wants to see you, but I told him you didn't wish to be disturbed," I replied.

"Oh, well—send him right in."

Capt.—now deputy inspector—Israel Henry was in charge of the cluster of offices surrounding the private room of the police commissioner of New York city. In this capacity he was the guardian of Thatcher Colt's privacy and all visitors had to see him first.

Lady Calls

Responding to my call, Henry marched into the office, a heavyset, silver-haired police captain, and, saluting, laid an opened envelope before Thatcher Colt.

Thatcher Colt read the letter with deep attention. Under the lamp-light, the commissioner was a striking figure, with his huge and powerful frame and soldier's face.

He was the best dressed man in public life, and regarded by the more frivolous newspapers as a fluenev or, at best, a dilettante in crime, yet not since the days of Theodore Roosevelt had the department known a chief of such strength, courage and decision.

His black hair was crisp and closely cut, his brown eyes sombre and resolved and in his firm features lived action and authority.

Attractive Face

Having read the letter, Thatcher Colt picked up the telephone.

"Is Captain Laird still in the building? . . . Hello, Captain . . . Young lady in my office—sent to me by one of my oldest friends. Mind if we talk with her together? Come right up."

Meanwhile, Capt. Henry had led the girl whom he introduced as Miss Betty Canfield. She had an attractive and piquant face and exceedingly large brown eyes, and she was becomingly dressed in a squirrel coat, saucy blue hat and the smallest snake-skin shoes I had ever seen.

As I brought forward a chair, Thatcher Colt greeted her pleasantly.

"So you are the niece of Frank Canfield," he began. "It will be a pleasure to do anything I can for you. Do I understand one of your friends is missing?"

"Mr. ro-mate," said Betty Canfield, with a catch in her voice.

The door opened then to admit Capt. Laird, a tall, slender, keen-eyed officer in middle years. Laird was one of the first university men to choose a career in the Police Department.

At Dartmouth he had been a track star, and now the 34 detective sergeants under his command were all athletes. Addressing Betty Canfield, Thatcher Colt explained:

"Captain Laird is the chief of our Missing Persons Bureau. More than three thousand disappearance cases are reported to his office every year and he manages to account for an average of 98 per cent of them—so you've come to the right place."

"However, our most difficult case," admonished Thatcher Colt, "is one in which the family or friends give only a part of the truth, and not all. So tell us everything."

Curious Story

With admirable directness, Betty Canfield related a curious story. For three years she had been sharing a small apartment on Morningside Heights with Geraldine Foster, a girl of about her own age, who worked in a doctor's office in Washington sq.

Recently the two girls had agreed to separate, because Geraldine was planning to be married, the date having been set for January 2.

The last time the two had been together was around noon on the previous Saturday, which was Christmas Eve, when they lunched at the Hotel Brevoort and then looked at a one-room apartment in E. 10th st., which Betty had decided to lease.

"I said goodby to Geraldine at the southeast corner of Fifth ave. and 10th st. Suddenly she leaned forward and kissed me and she said, 'If I don't come home for supper, Betty, don't be worried—I'll be doing my Christmas shopping.' And before I could answer she had crossed the avenue and was walking down toward Washington st."

"I talked with her later that afternoon over the telephone and, Mr. Colt, it was that last conversation which makes me feel so frightened."

"Why, how is that?"

"I called Geraldine to tell her about a Christmas bonus that our firm had given to the employes. I waited for an hour because Geraldine had said the doctor would be out at that time. I could tell by her voice that she had been crying and I asked her what was the matter. She admitted that she and Doctor Maskell had quarreled, but she

SELLERS NO MATCH FOR NEWWED

Notable Honeymooners Hardly Settled in Cambride Before Bell Ringers Begin Charge

With bafflement in their countenances, the shock troop division of home bell ringers chipped into today to buy a nice, fresh bunch of laurel for presentation to the Raskobs-of-Cambridge as the most difficult persons in the world to sell.

This appreciative little gesture resulted from complete success of the newlywed Mr. and Mrs. John J. Raskob, Jr., son and daughter-in-law of the Democratic national committee chairman, in turning down 150 of the doorstep climbers who sought to sell them a variety of things in their new home.

The Raskobs moved into the Ambassador Apartments in Cambridge yesterday afternoon, but as early as 7 a. m. today the shock troops of the selling division began to arrive.

Those who were less hardy were turned away by the superintendent of the building, while the salties boys were turned down by young Raskob himself.

"We don't want to buy anything," he declared. "Anyway, I'm a working man and I'm kind of poor now."

And, being a working man, he rose in his new home at 6:30 a. m. today, breakfasted and donated the big labors in North Chelmsford.

Hurley Seeks Money for Building, Furnishings and Rental of Quarters

Authority to expend a total of $15,000,000 for construction and furnishing of new school buildings and rent of outside quarters was asked of the Legislature today in a bill filed by Rep. George Anderson on petition of Chairman Joseph J. Hurley of the school committee.

Not more than $5,000,000 would be expended in any one year during the school department financial years of 1931, 1932 and 1933, according to the bill.

The bill asks that: "The school committee, by a vote of four-fifths of all of its members, may make appropriations by items for consideration and furnishing of new school buildings, both temporary and permanent, including the taking of land therefor, and for school yards and the preparing of school yards for use and for the rent of hired school accommodations for the financial years of 1931, 1932 and 1933."

26,348 LISTED AS IDLE HERE

There were 26,348 persons out of work and looking for employment in Boston last April, according to the final tabulation sheets of the unemployment census taken at that time, received today from the Department of Commerce at Washington by Louis R. Sensale, supervisor of the census bureau in this city.

An accompanying letter also explained that the delay in the publication of the result was due to the fact that a card for each person in the city had to be reviewed, punched, and filed at the headquarters in Washington.

The figures also show that at that time there were 8653 persons having jobs but on layoff without pay, 1915 out of a job and unable to work, 2,320 having jobs but idle on account of sickness or disability, 632 out of a job and not looking for work, 432 having jobs but voluntarily idle, without pay, and 504 having jobs and drawing pay, though not at work.

The report also showed a total population of 781,188 for Boston, of which 385,087 are male, and 396,101 female.

O'NEILL WINS IN REFUSE FIGHT

A bill in equity containing charges against Mayor Michael O'Neil of Everett in connection with garbage contracts was dismissed in Supreme Court today by Justice Fred T. Field.

The bill was brought in December by John H. Sweeney and other taxpayers of Everett against the mayor and the Board of Health.

Through it, they sought to void the contract awarded to Mulligan Bros. for three years from Jan. 1, 1931, at $16,800 a year.

It was cited that on November 10, the board of health received bids for the removal of garbage and that out of five bidders, Mulligan Bros were second highest—one bid being as low as $8500.

The bill charged that:

"The petitioners are informed and believe that the said O'Neill assumed personal control and direction of the awarding of the contracts and solicited from one or more bidders a promise of a large sum of money for his own use, and one or more bidders did, in fact, pay as directed by the said O'Neill, in order to provide the so-called 'cut.'"

Driver Injured

William J. Halpin of Stoughton ave., Readville, suffered injuries to his nose, back and legs last night when an automobile plunged into one he was driving on River st., Hyde Park.

The basement and sub-basement of police headquarters Berkeley and Stuart st., were flooded early today when a water main burst at the front of the building on Berkeley st. The water rose almost to the level of the fireboxes of the boilers in the basement.

The leak filled the sub-basement and water flowed into the basement, flooding the room, formerly used by the liquor squad, to a depth of three feet. Only the quick arrival of a repair crew from the water department saved every room in the basement from being flooded.

Bill Pins Crash Costs on Drivers

Operators of motor vehicles, instead of the owners, would be held liable in insurance cases, if a bill filed today by Representative J. W. Tuttle of Framingham become law. The bill, filed on petition of Francis L. O'Bryan, seeks to have the compulsory insurance law killed.

In its place would be substituted a system requiring operators to carry compulsory insurance for civil liability and personal injury. It would penalize "accident drivers."

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned into the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

2 ADMIT THEY STOLE ANTIQUES

Two men, one a Boston University student, pleaded guilty in municipal court today to larceny of antiques from a shop in Charles st., and were placed on probation by Judge Adlow.

They are Malcolm Hendry, 23, of Sherwood st., Roslindale, the student, and Christopher Bolton, 34, who lives with Hendry.

Walter Sammes, 23, of Huntington ave., another B. U. student, pleaded not guilty in the same case. He was found guilty, fined $25 and appealed.

Hendry and Bolton told Judge Adlow they were fond of antiques and took the articles for their rooms, not with the intention of profiting.

They were arrested on their rooming visit to the shop of Emma Bringer, 325 Charles st. After a previous visit the woman had discovered several articles were missing and reported to the police.

Thawing Out Pipes Starts Two Fires

At the Colonial filling station, 336 Columbia rd., Dorchester, in pacing burning bits of paper near a frozen pipe started a quantity of lubricating oil on fire. About $500 damage was done.

At the home of Hyman Mahlo, damage by fire was caused by thawing a pipe. It started in a partition. Four members of the Molowitts family fled to the street.

7 FLEE FIRE IN SOMERVILLE

Biting cold, which turned water from hose lines into sheets of ice, aided a fire of undetermined origin last night to practically destroy the three-story building at 710-712 Broadway, Somerville, as seven persons were forced to flee.

Firemen, balked by frozen hydrants, found themselves faced with such odds that it was necessary to sound a general alarm before the blaze was checked. Apparatus from Charlestown, Cambridge, Medford, Arlington and Belmont responded.

Max Weinstein, who manages a chain store on the first floor and lives on the second, discovered the blaze. He went to his apartment and was wrapping his sleeping three-year-old child in a blanket when three youths rushed in to tell him the building was afire.

Weinstein and the youths warned occupants of the third floor, Cosmo Mitrano, owner of the building, and his family. Weinstein carried his son, Norman, and his wife rushed from the building. Mitrano and his wife and their daughters, Eva, 24, and Ellora, 20, also fled.

Chief Joseph A. Cribby of the Somerville department estimates the loss at $25,000.

JURY IS TOLD PAYMENTS WERE OUTSIDE INDICTMENT LIMITS

A bench conference was called when court opened in the Garrett trial today, after which Judge Keating addressed the jury.

"Mr. Foreman and gentlemen of the jury, I am going to call your attention to a matter of evidence which was introduced here yesterday," a witness

"All of the counts in the indictments cover a period only up to 1926. The eight notes which were introduced into the evidence yesterday were all paid in 1929 or 1930 and are dropped therefrom entirely.

"The evidence as to the signatures however remains in the record as specimens of the evidence of the handwriting of those who signed the notes.

"All the evidence which has been introduced which is payment of those notes in 1929 or 1930 must be completely disregarded."

MELLYN CALLED.

Joseph F. Mellyn, shorthand reporter employed by Attorney-Gen. Joseph E. Warner at the State House hearing, was the first witness called today.

He identified himself and Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle offered in evidence a transcript of the testimon, taken by Mellyn at the hearing.

This testimony had to do with her acquaintance with Garrett, renting a room to him in her home where he paid for the telephone, as well as her employment at the Ritz. In her answers she said she did not discuss the affairs of the Ritz with Garrett. She also told of two visits to the Hingham farm.

Q—The State House investigation was into the conduct of Officer Garrett? A—Yes.

Atty. Doyle then said: "How does he know."

"He was the official reporter," Gallagher replied.

"What if it if he was," injected Judge Keating, ordering Gallagher to continue.

RESOLVE IS READ

Gallagher added "The investigation was by resolve of the legislature. I wonder if it would satisfy the qualms of the occasion if a copy of the record was introduced Brother Doyle and myself."

Gallagher then read a letter passed by the legislature on February 20, 1930.

Gallagher then continued his questioning.

Q—Did Mr Damon Hall ask all the questions embodied in the report of Miss Hatch's testimony? A—Yes

Q Wasn't Miss Hatch represented by counsel? A Not that I recall.

I believe that there was an amendment to the resolve widening the scope of the attorney-general's investigation.

Judge Keating said

"While he is looking that up the trial can continue and Mr. Doyle can call another witness."

The next witness called by the government was Miss Nettie Gardner, of Cedar st., Hingham.

Q—(By Doyle) In 1926 did you own property on High st., So. Hingham? A—Yes.

Q—Do you know any of these defendants? A—Yes.

Q—Who do you know? A—Mr. and Mrs Garrett.

Atty. Callahan then stated that the testimony of the witness was at the objection of the defense.

Q—(By Doyle) Would you relate what Garrett and Mrs. Garrett said as far as you can recall? A—I don't remember.

Q—Did you sign this paper (introducing exhibit 21)? A—Yes.

Mrs. Gardner Testifies as to Sale of Old House in Hingham

The exhibit showed that on August 14, 1926, Nettie C. Gardner agreed to sell to Florence R. Garrett of Newton, on High st., Hingham, a one-family dwelling, stable and two acres of land for a price of $2200. Mrs. Garrett paying $200 cash deposit and $2000 to be paid on August 31 the day the deed was to be passed.

PAID $200 DOWN

Q—Was the $200 paid to you at your home at the time you signed the agreement? A—Yes

Q—It was at the co-operative bank you received your money? A—Yes.

Q And the amount was $2000? A—Yes.

Q—It was a wooden house? A—Yes.

Q—An old house? A—Quite old.

Q—How far from the village was the house located? A—Two miles.

Doyle then asked: "Do you know if Mrs. Garrett bought the property adjoining yours? Answer yes or no." A—Yes. I do know.

Q—Do you know if Mrs. Garrett owned the property? A—I do.

A bench conference followed after the witness was excused and then Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle made a statement to the jury:

"It has been agreed by counsel that I make this statement for Walter T. Jones, unable to be here because of illness, describing to you property purchased by Mrs. Garrett, testimony Mr. Jones would have given had he been here.

Then he read a deed to property made out by Walter T. Jones to Florence H. Garrett dated July 6, 1926, conveying property at Sandy Hill Hingham, for $1600 of which $200 was cash and $1400 in Mrs Garrett's check on the date of passing the papers. The property covered eight acres, more or less, Doyle read.

Gallagher then arose and pointed out it stated the property also included 3½ acres. Doyle then told the jury the property covered 11½ acres instead of eight.

Asst Atty Gen George F. Scully of Atty-Gen. Warner's office was then called.

Q—Were you assistant attorney-general when the investigation conducted by Mr. Warner? A—Yes.

LOURIE LET GO

Q—At some time did you make an inquiry in all the Massachusetts banks and trust companies as to the bank accounts of Florence H Garrett?

Gallagher objected and Judge Keating instructed the witness to answer Yes or No. Lourie answered: "I did."

Q—(By Gillen) As a result of your inquiry do you know whether or not there were any bank accounts in any of the Massachusetts banks and trust companies in the name of Florence H. Garrett as of July 30, 1923?

Gallagher objected and after the court excluded it, Gillen asked for a bench conference.

After the conference Gilln announced the state would dispense with Asst. Lourie as a witness for the present.

Mrs. Anna E. Mulrenin was called by the State Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle questioned her.

Q—Do you know Mrs. Garrett? A—Yes.

Q—How long have you known her? A—About ten years or more.

KNEW GARRETT, TOO

Q—Do you know the defendant, Garrett? A—Yes.

Q—How long have you known him? A—About eight years.

Q—Do you know Miss Hatch? A—Yes.

Q—How long have you known her? A—Perhaps three or four years.

Q—Did you ever see Miss Hatch at High st., Hingham? A—I don't think so.

Q—At some time do you recall having a conversation with Mrs Garrett in reference to organizing the Pine Grove Dairy Farms? A—Yes

Q—Tell what the conversation was? A—Mrs. Garrett told me she thought of forming a company and asked me if I would help her out. I said I would and asked her what I had to do. She told me nothing; that I would just have to sign my name to a paper.

Q—And you did? A—I did.

Callahan Admits Failure to Produce Corporation Books

Doyle was about to present a certified copy of the incorporation of Pine Grove Dairy farm when Gallagher objected on the ground's that "counsel do not represent the corporation."

Doyle told the court that he had notified Atty. Callahan to produce all the books, papers relative to the corporation and that what he had was a copy of the incorporation.

Judge Keating asked Callahan if he had been notified and the latter said he had.

Callahan: "No sir."

Doyle was then permitted to present the copy.

Q—Did you sign your name to the document? A—Yes

Q How" A—Annie M Kane

SHE EXPLAINS

Q—Explain how you signed your name as Annie M. Kane A—Mrs. Garrett said she was forming a corporation and as a matter of protection, because I didn't want to be held responsible if anything happened because I had property in my own name, I said I would sign it that way. Mrs Garrett told me it wouldn't make any difference and if I wanted to sign it that way I could. So I did.

Doyle then read to the court and jury a certified copy of the certificate of incorporation of the Pine Grove dairy farm for carrying on a general dairy business in milk, cream, and all other dairy products.

Doyle read the capitalization figures as follows: Capital stock, $5000; common stock, $100 par value; 50 shares of stock, two shares to be taken up by cash and 48 shares by good will and personal services.

With the objection of defense counsel the names signed to the articles of agreement were admitted. Attorney Gallagher added: "General objection." The three names read were Allan H. Wood, Jr. Hazel W Wood and Anna M. Kane.

Q—(By Doyle) Did you ever attend a meeting of this corporation? A—No.

NO INVESTMENT

Q Ever invest any money? A—No.

Q—Ever have anything to do with the corporation? A—No.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle requested from the counsel for defendants the books of the corporation. Counsel answered by declaring they did not represent the corporation.

Judge Keating then inquired if Doyle had given counsel notice to produce books of corporation, and Doyle said: "I served notice on Mr. Callahan, who served all three defendants at that time."

"Mr. Callahan, I take it you received the notice, but have not produced the books?" Judge Keating asked.

Callahan answered "Yes."

Q—(By Doyle) Did you ever serve as the treasurer of that corporation? A—No.

CROSS EXAMINATION

Q—At some time Mrs. Garrett said they would like to form a corporation? A—Yes.

Q—And she asked you if you would help her by signing the paper? A—Yes.

Q—And you asked her if it made you responsible or any of your property responsible for anything that might happen? A—Yes.

Q—And she said if you feel that way about it use your maiden name? A—Yes.

Q—When you signed the name Anna Kane was there an attorney present? A—Yes.

Q—Did he say anything? A—He said it would be all right to sign my maiden name.

Q—Mr. Doyle asked me to ask you the name of that lawyer? A—Mr. Maguire, I think.

Q—Do you know of your own knowledge that he has since died? A—No. I heard he was dead

ABOUT THE HORSES

Q—You say you knew Mrs. Garrett for 10 years? A—Yes.

Q—Do you know what her reputation was and is in the community where she lived as an honorable, peaceful and law abiding citizen? A—Always the highest

Q—Don't you know that these horses were sometimes kept at the dairy farm? A—I don't know—they might have.

Q—Mr. Garrett drove them sometimes, didn't he? A—Yes.

Q—Do you remember when Mr. Garrett was hurt at the Marshfield Fair? A—Yes.

Q—What horse was he driving then? A—Annie Dorella.

Q—You told Mr. Gallagher that you knew Mrs. Garrett's general reputation" Now tell me what is your husband's business? A—He runs a drug store.

Wood Explains Why He Signed Dairy Corporation Papers

A. H. Wood, Jr., was then called by the government as the next witness.

When he entered the courtroom Wood turned and walked to the rear of where the two women de-

Q—Do you know Mrs. Garrett? passing the prisoner's cage, he placed his hand on the cage leaned toward Garrett, and said

"Hello, Ollie"

Garrett turned and said: "Hello, Allan."

Q—Do you know Mrs. Garrett? A—Yes, she is my mother-in-law.

Q—Do you know Miss Hatch? A—Yes

Tell us if you had any conversation with Mrs. Garrett in reference to formation of the corporation in Hingham? A—Yes

Q—Will you relate conversation with Mrs. Garrett? A—My mother-in-law informed me that she was going to form a corporation to protect her interest and I agreed with her that it was a good plan and in

Q—When she spoke to you about the corporation first you thought she wanted you to invest some money? A—I think so.

Q—And you said you weren't in a position to invest in the corporation? A—Correct.

He handed Doyle some documents and Doyle read a certificate that is required for file by persons doing business in the town under another name than their own.

Doyle: "This certificate shows that the Pine Grove Dairy Farm, located in High st., Hingham, being operated by Florence H. Reddin of High st., Hingham, is signed Florence H. Reddin and filed Sept. 28 1927.

The witness was excused and recess was declared.

BANK ACCOUNTS

Paul Jewett of 807 Washington st., Brookline, treasurer of the Brookline Trust Co., was called, as the first witness after recess.

He brought a signature card of Mrs. Florence H. Garrett's account and Doyle asked him where the original record of the account was He said it was operated through the records of the bank.

William Tibbetts, attorney with the Exchange Trust, was the next witness.

Q (by Doyle—Have you the records of an account at the Exchange Trust for Florence H. Garrett? A—I have the signature card. It is for the vacation club account of Florence H. Garrett.

Q—Any other records? A—Signature cards for the accounts of Oliver B. Garrett, Florence Woodside and Oliver Bridge.

Tibbett's testimony went into the records over the general objection of defense counsel.

Q—When the account was opened? A—Some time in 1927.

DEPOSITS SHOWN

Tibbetts was then asked to identify two checks for $48 each which were made payable to Mrs Florence H. Garrett as vacation club checks They were dated June 22 1927

Q—(By Doyle) Did you bring the original signature card to savings account No. 165638 in the name of Mrs. Florence H. Garrett? A—Yes That's the savings account card (Mr. handscript by Doyle) It [illegible]

Q—That card was made out on June 15, 1927? A—Yes.

The Government then introduced a account in the Exchange Trust Co. under the name of Oliver B Garrett and was numbered 153312 the card was marked for exhibit and showed the account as started Dec. 8, 1825, with a $5 deposit It also revealed a deposit of $96 the following day; Jan. 29, 1926, $40; March 2, $100; March 9, $100; April 2, $250; April 26, $300; May 8, $100; May 19, $150; Oct. 1, $1470 interest; April 1, 1927, $14.90 interest; Oct. 1, $5.20 interest; April 1 1928, $5.38 interest The following withdrawals were recorded on the card: May 22, 1928, $368, Dec 10, 1928, $500, balance $207.54.

At this juncture, Judge Keating called for adjournment until 9:30 a. m. Monday, when Tibbetts will be recalled to the stand.

CURLEY ORDERS 'GREATER BOSTON' BILL

WANTS BOARD TO GOVERN NEW CITY

Idea Creates Metropolis From Whole Area; Expenses Also Provided For

With a new plan for a Greater Boston, Mayor Curley returned to his desk at City Hall today.

His first act on picking up the reins on the city was to authorize Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman to file with the Legislature a bill creating a municipal corporation to be known as Greater Boston.

Under the incorporation terms the cities and towns comprising the Metropolitan water, sewer and park districts would be included in a body corporate to bear the new designation "Great Boston."

BOARD TO GOVERN

Greater Boston then would be managed by a governing board composed of the mayors of the cities and the chairman of the boards of selectmen of towns, with the City of Boston footing the bills for office expenses of the corporation.

For initial expenses of hiring and staffing a suitable office, the City of Boston would turn over, immediately after incorporation, the sum of $5000 to the Greater Boston treasurer.

The mayor summarized details of his bill as follows:

"Provision is made that this board shall meet within 90 days after the effective date of the act, at an hour and place designated by the mayor of Boston, who shall be the chairman of the board. The board is required to meet at such times as it shall determine, but at least four times a year, and shall elect from its members, in addition to the chairman, a vice-chairman, treasurer and clerk, and may employ the services of such persons as it deems necessary to fix their compensation.

EXPENSES PROVIDED

"The City of Boston is required, at its own expense, to furnish office space and a suitable place for meetings and shall pay over to the treasurer of this governing board the sum of $5000 to defray the necessary expense of the corporation.

"Thereafter the treasurer is required to prepare an estimate of expenditures which shall be approved by the chairman, and the treasurer shall apportion and assess said amount of expenditure upon the cities and towns comprising the corporation, on the basis of valuation in each city and town as determined by the Commissioner of Taxation for the assessment of such taxes.

"The governing board is authorized to make such rules and regulations regarding its conduct as it deems necessary and shall have a corporate seal."

$3,975,000 IN LOAN ORDERS

The total debt incurring power of the City of Boston as estimated for 1931 is $4,600,000 against $5,700,000 last year, according to a statement submitted by Mayor Curley to the council today.

Recommendations for the adoptions of loans totaling $3,975,000 were submitted as a budget of loan requirements within the debt incurring powers for municipal departments.

The amounts were as follows:

Sewerage works, $1,000,000; branch sewerage, $200,000; sewer building, $200,000; Castle Island and South Park improvements, $300,000; fire stations, $700,000; fire station equipment, $200,000; new building, Public Safety course, $275,000; Shawmut Ave. bridge, $75,000; Harrison Ave. bridge, $175,000.

The total of the above orders is $3,875,000 and to this must be added $300,000 for orders pending before the council for a building for Public Welfare Department, making a total of $3,975,000.

Sister Sees Gen. Edwards

GEN. EDWARDS SHOWS SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT

Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, battling death like the brave old warrior he is, showed a slight improvement today, according to announcement by his attending physicians.

He is taking liquid nourishment and, as an indication of his condition, cheerfully demanded a shave by the hospital barber.

Drs. Richard H. Miller and William H. Robey, after a consultation at his bedside in Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, issued the following bulletin this noon:

"General Edwards had a fair night. He continues to take nourishment. Temperature and pulse normal. He shows a slight improvement since yesterday. (Signed) Drs. Miller and Robey."

SISTER IS HOPEFUL

Dr. Miller remained with his patient a great part of the day, and during the afternoon, when asked for another report, said:

"He's picking up; better than ever."

Notified of the seriousness of his condition, his sister, Mrs. Charles A. Otis, hurried here from her home in Cleveland. Arriving this noon she went direct to the hospital and was relieved to find there had been some improvement.

The general was sleeping when she arrived and after a chat with his nurse she left, planning to return late this afternoon. Col. John W. Byatt met her at the train and accompanied her to the hospital. He and Col Thomas J. Murphy, both "YD" veterans, are devoting their time to the old commander.

"Every movement hurts him, so it would be a great mistake to disturb him when he does manage to drop off to sleep," said Col. Byatt.

TO BE X-RAYED

Dr. Miller, who performed the emergency operation for an intestinal block early Thursday morning, thereby saving the general's life for the time being, at least, denied a report that three more operations must be performed.

"There is no foundation whatsoever for that story about three more operations," he said. "No doctor issued that statement.

"We don't know just exactly what is the matter with the general until he gets better so that we can X-ray."

Withholds Report on the Post-office Plans Until His Status Is Settled

After a leave of absence since last March, Postmaster Charles R. Gow returned to his office at the State st. division today, professing ignorance as to when his resignation from the post will be accepted.

Postmaster Gow tendered his resignation in March, 1930, but instead of it being accepted, he was asked to take a leave of absence without pay.

His resignation was tendered in order that he might have time to supervise a private engineering project.

WORK STARTS AT ONCE.

On the eve of Postmaster Gow's return word came from Washington last night that authorities there contemplate no changes in plans approved for the new $8,000,000 federal building in Postoffice sq and that work will begin immediately.

Members of the Massachusetts congressional delegation, aroused by local indignation at the possibility of any continued delay in the federal building program, protested at Washington and later made it known that the supervising architect of the treasury is in possession of the completed plans for the Boston postoffice.

BIDS ASKED FOR

According to treasury officials bids have already been asked for the contract to construct the building, no changes are contemplated and the bids will be opened next Tuesday, January 20.

Any proposal for the establishment of a "workshop" at South Station, or any other place eventually agreed on, it was made clear, is far from definite.

GIRL IS HELD IN $3000 THEFT

Olive Morgan, 22, of 48 Jackson st., Lynn, payroll checker at the Gregory & Pond Company, auto manufacturers of Washington st., Lynn, was arrested today charged with forgery and larceny from the company.

She is alleged to have padded the payroll each week and to have stolen, in this manner, approximately $3000 in less than a year.

According to the charge, each week she placed on the payroll from four to six names, checked the names with wage amounts from $9 to $25, signed the slips in the same names and kept the money.

MOORS RESIGNS FROM FIN. COM.

The resignation of John F. Moors of the Boston Finance Commission was today announced by Gov. Ely.

Moors, it is understood, desires to be relieved of his duties because of ill health. He has served continuously since the commission was organized in 1906. The position is an unpaid one.

Following a busy day on the budget, the Governor left for his home in Westfield where he will spend the week-end.

Before departing, however, he discussed with department heads final plans for the placing of men to work next week under the $350,000 emergency appropriation approved by the legislature.

RIVALS OPPOSE ELY'S MOVE

Ely's proposal for a $20,000,000 bond issue for relief of unemployment, which would mean temporary abandonment of the pay-as-you-go policy, is meeting with opposition in the House Ways and Means Committee, according to reports current at the State House today.

This committee is overwhelming by Republican and it is rumored that hostile sentiment is developing among the members.

There appears to be something of a surprise, as G. O. P. leaders had been manifesting a spirit of cooperation and it was thought they would lend their support to the Governor's plan if he could show the public works proposed were necessary and could be started within a short time.

There are now some indications that political expediency will enter into the issue, according to observers, who say that it is beginning to look as if the majority party were going to prevent their political opponents from making capital out of it.

CHINESE MOTIF IN AUTO SHOW

The Automobile Show, which opens tomorrow night, will be not only an exhibition of new models, but an educational affair for thousands of school children because of the Chinese motif used as its background in Mechanics Hall.

Innumerable rare and beautiful brocades and silks will be exhibited in connection with the Chinese decorative scheme, first of its kind to be used in an automobile show in this country.

The mandarin coat once worn by the 400-pound Chinese giant, Chang, tallest man who ever lived will be exhibited. This coat was loaned to the show by Mrs. Day Baker, to whom it was given by Chang when he was ailed. He value is about $3000.

Chinese works of art, ancient writings and a replica of a famous Chinese pagoda, 48 feet high, are included in the exhibition to which the Chinese population of the city is invited as special guests of Chester L. Campbell, director of the show, Tuesday evening.

Wounded But Not Shot

ROSE PIERRO MICHAEL F. PIERRO

MICHAEL F. PIERRO, 15, of Rawson ave., East Lexington was severely wounded during a pistol bombardment on the Lexington-Arlington line—but he was not shot. He hurt his hand when he fell in fleeing from the scene of the shooting, which he could not understand. His sister, Rose, bandaged his wound. (Staff photo.)

THE "BEAUTY" THAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN!

The poisons from constipation often cause pimples, sallow skin, dull eyes—headaches and even serious disease.

But every girl can banish the evils of constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly. Its bulk sweeps the system clean.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are a wonderful health prescription. Try it with milk. Add fruits or honey. Delicious when combined with canned peaches. ALL-BRAN is non-fattening.

Ask for Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

FRIDAY, JANUARY 16, 1931

MISTER BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"The Shalkey to Dempsey challenge," said Mr. Boston, "might be put quite quickly.

"Sharkey could say, 'ready to fight you. What's your answer, yes or no?'

"The trouble with our modern ring heroes is that when they are asked to fight they go into a long discussion concerning their family trees.

Mr. Boston

Anyhow, Sharkey has three good targets to shoot at in Dempsey, Schmeling and Stribling.

"Damon Runyon announced before leaving New York for Miami, Fla., that the Milk Fund offered Schmeling a guarantee of $500,000 to meet Sharkey as a last desperate effort to close this much discussed match. Joe Brooks' answer was 'no.' He preferred to match Herr Max with Stribling on a percentage basis.

"The only reason a manager of a professional boxer passes up a sure $500,000 for a questionable cut on the gate is because he figures that the man he would receive the guarantee for meeting is likely to defeat him."

Daniels Working Here for Schaaf Bout

"I am getting ready for my meeting with Ernie Schaaf, which will be staged at the Arena a week from Monday night," said Daniels. "They tell me Schaaf is one of the best of the younger crop of heavyweights. He must have been a pretty good sort of fighter to have won from Max Baer in New York.

"All this will make me fight all the harder. I realize that if I win over Schaaf I shall be in a position to demand matches from the headliners in the heavyweight division."

"I just saw Schaaf breeze through a workout at Toland's gym," advised Mr. Boston. "He is getting ready for the tussle with Jimmy Braddock in New York on next Friday night. He will then hop back to Boston for his meeting with you at the Arena. Ernie tells me he plans to score a couple of wins.

"I don't know what will happen in the Braddock fight," chirped Daniels, "but you can tell Ernie I'll knock him for a loop."

Amateur Boxing Enjoying a Prosperous Season

Mr. Boston says amateur boxing has been enjoying a successful season.

"The Irish-American A. C. has another show carded for the Arena on Saturday night," declared the veteran. "There will be bouts in the eight championship classes.

"The Irish-American A. C. announces there will be at least 40 bouts.

"You won't find any stalling in these amateur battles. The best of luck punches in reckless fashion and there is action every second the rival thumpers are in the ring.

"Stanchfield, the St. Cloud T. A. Society boxing trainer for its international show, which will be staged at the Boston Garden on Feb. 2, [illegible]

Harris, Grinnell Star for Bridgton

Norwich Mentor Strengthens Five

Norwich, Vt., has in [illegible] effort to improve the attack of the Norfolk basketball team. Coach Graham had Fuss, center, and George Vaither, [illegible] guard, [illegible]

Capt. Hartford and Spurr will continue as forwards and Bethes will remain at right guard.

HARVARD TRIO TO BATTLE NORWICH

	Won	Lost
101st Field Artillery	7	0
Harvard Varsity	5	2
Westwood	1	1
104th Cavalry	1	6
Battery A	0	6

MINOR DIVISION

Lancers	9	0
Harvard Freshmen	6	3
101st Field Artillery	4	4
Harvard Junior Varsity	0	9

Capt. Elbridge Gerry of the Harvard polo squad will lead the Crimson in its match against the Norwich University officers at the Commonwealth Armory tomorrow night. This game will be the main event of a doubleheader.

In the other tilt, a Class B affair, the 102d Field Artillery will cross mallets with the Cavalry Cossacks.

Coach Frederick Sharp of the Crimson will have Ken Jenkins, Phiv Gerry and Connie Bliss mounted and playing in the order named.

Last Saturday the Harvard multitudes registered a brilliant victory over Westwood, of which Capt Sharp is a member, and they are hoping to make it two straight, which will put them in a tie for first place with the 101st Field Artillery.

The visitors will line up with the Norwich coach, Capt. Ernest Hanson, a fellow officer, Dodge, and the Norwich cadet star, Stan Berg strom. This combination is certain to make it interesting for the Crimson.

Cossacks-Artillery in Fine Match

The 102d Field Artillery Cossack match should be another interesting bout, in which fast riding should predominate. The Artillery will line up with Roger Eckfeldt at No. 1, Harvey Moore at No. 2 and Capt. Roger Storer at back.

Mounted for the Cossacks will be Al Dodge at No. 1, Walter Vroom at No. 2 and Joe Quinlan at back. The latter trio gave the Crimson freshmen a hard battle last Saturday and they are confident of pinning a defeat on the Artillery.

Tech Plays Williams Sextet Tomorrow

The M. I. T. hockey team will attempt to chalk up its first victory of the season tomorrow at Williamstown, where the Engineer puckmen will meet the Williams College sextet at the Williams rink.

Bill Stewart, the M. I. T. mentor has been holding rigid practice sessions throughout the past week in an effort to improve his club's passing game and offensive play.

So far this season his stick wielders have dropped games to Harvard, Princeton, Boston University and Northeastern, and Coach Stewart who is a well known referee in the Can Am League feels that his club is due for a win.

Don Whidden will be in the net for the Engineers against Williams tomorrow night. Hall will be at center ice and Orbanowski and Ford will take care of the wing positions. Captain Ben Hazeltine will be at left defense, while his teammate on the right-hand side of the ice will be "Swede" Peterson.

Fights Last Night

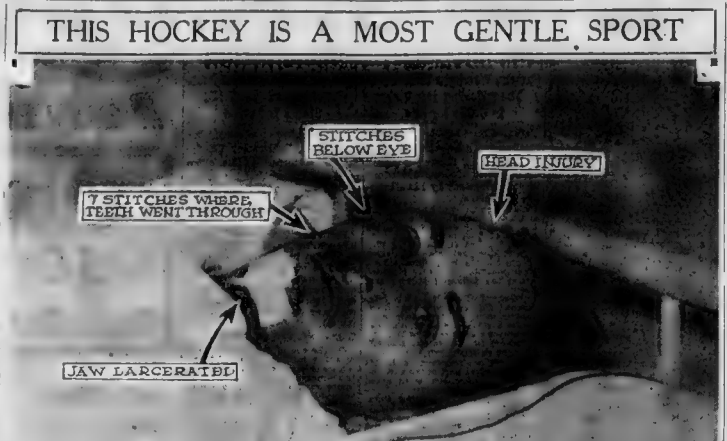
THIS HOCKEY IS A MOST GENTLE SPORT



EDDIE BURKE, POPULAR STAR of the Boston Tigers, is shown in the hospital cot which he will have to occupy for several days because of injuries he received in the game between the Hub's representatives in the Can-Am League and the Rhode Island Reds at the Providence Auditorium on Wednesday night. Burke's teeth went through his upper lip, he received a cut on the chin which required several stitches to close, and he suffered several bumps and bruises.

TIGERS SCRAP MINUS BURKE

The Boston Tigers, striving desperately to get ahead in the Canadian American Hockey League, will have to face the championship Providence Reds at the Garden tomorrow night minus Eddie Burke, their popular and able center ice man.

Eddie was carried from the Rhode Island Auditorium on Wednesday night, unconscious, with his jaw dislocated, his chin split, his upper lip badly contused, and a large bump on his temple. Eddie with the score tied at 1 to 1 and with the Tigers going great guns, had tried to go between Sparky Vail and Art Dewar, the Red point getters.

They gave him the works, first attempting to trip the Tiger forward, and when Eddie jumped, leg checking him high into the air and onto the ice.

Eddie, however, is on bad shape. Even his mates were shocked at Eddie's appearance after the Providence game. Rough and ready hockey players though they are, they declared with feeling that one positively could not recognize the erstwhile "Handsome Eddie" Burke.

The players are fighting mad and so is Manager Eddie Powers. No penalty was imposed on either Lever or Vail, though, according to Powers, one of them should have had at least five minutes for the job.

Gleason Ineligible at Worcester Acad.

Worcester, Jan. 16—Frank Gleason of Lowell, captain-elect of the Worcester Academy track team and leading schoolboy sprinter of New England will be ineligible for the opening meet with Exeter Academy on Feb. 7 and the B. A. A. games on Feb. 14.

In addition he must forfeit his captaincy, it was learned today, upon inquiry of George Dudley Church, registrar of the academy.

Huntington Swim Team in N. Y. Meet

Accompanied by Coach Ray Millard, four members of Huntington school's swimming team will take tonight's express to New York to compete in the annual Columbia intercollegiate meet tomorrow afternoon.

Coach Millard has selected his four best mermen, each man to swim one event and enter the relay.

The quartet making the trip includes Gordon Connolly, New England A. A. U. title holder in the 50-yard free-style and 440-yard medley events, who will enter the 100-yard breaststroke; Richard Page, who will swim the 300-yard free-style; Richard Steele, who will enter the 100-yard backstroke, and John Kunhard, who will try to win the 100-yard free-style event.

Coach Millard also hopes that this quartet will be able to carry off victory in the relay. In Wednesday's workout his charges shattered the former Huntington relay mark by a good margin.

72 Boston Fives Play Tomorrow

Seventy-two basketball teams battle tomorrow night in the third week's play of the Boston Park Department's basketball League, play being held on nine municipal gymnasium courts in city proper, Roxbury, Dorchester, Hyde Park, Roslindale and East Boston.

Four games are played in each of the gyms each Saturday evening, the first contest getting underway at 6:45, and the others starting at 15-minute intervals.

The league this season has a banner number of entrants, 90 teams having registered for play and considerable rivalry has featured the various games thus far.

SMITH-GOLDEN TIE WITH 181

Agua Caliente, Mex., Jan. 16 (INS)—Shooting a brilliant 34 on the first nine, Horton Smith, youthful New York pro, caught Johnny Golden, Noroton, Ct., at the 45-hole mark in the $20,000 Agua Caliente open golf tournament today and at that point they were tied for the lead with totals of 181.

While golden who led at the start of the third round this morning, due to a 70 and a 73 in his first laps, was "blowing" himself to a 38. Young Smith stepped out to grab two "birdies" and equal par on the seven holes and finish two under for his outward journey.

Meanwhile, Ed Dudley, winner of the recent $10,000 Los Angeles open joined Golden in falling before "Old Man Par." He was running in second place with totals of 144 as he teed off today, but required 38 shots for the opening nine and had 45 hole totals of 183 at this point of the proceedings.

A few minutes later Mortie Dutra came to the turn in 37 to tie the Wilmington, Del., entrant for second place honors.

French Track Star in B. A. A. Track Meet

New York, Jan. 16 (INS)—The Amateur Athletic Union announced today that Paul Keller, champion French runner, will compete in the Boston A. A. games at Boston on February 7, and in the New Jersey A. A. U. championships at Newark on February 19. Bera Martin, another French star, will run in the Meadowbrook Club games at Philadelphia on February 12.

The two French champions, who also will appear in several meets in New York city, will sail from Havre, January 28, arriving in New ork on February 3. Martin will run distances between the quarter and 1000 yards. Keller, who is the French 800-meter champion, will run distances between 800 meters and the mile.

Tech Fencers Set for Hard Season

In preparation for the Intercollegiate fencing season which opens officially next month, the M. I. T. varsity and freshmen squads are practicing three times a week in the Walker Memorial gymnasium under the direction of Coach Andre Roth.

There are 30 men out for the varsity team and more than 50 candidates for the freshman swords men's outfit. This represents the largest group ever to come out for the sport at M. I. T.

The technology varsity foilsmen have a long and difficult duelling schedule arranged for this year and will meet most of the best college fencing teams in the East.

The meets scheduled are as follows: New York University, Feb 3; Boston University, Feb. 18; C. C. N. Y., Feb. 21; Boston College, Feb 25; Dartmouth, Feb 28, University of Pennsylvania, March 7; Harvard, March 11; Norwich, March 13. Intercollegiate Fencing Association semifinals, March 21; University of Vermont, March, 27; Intercollegiate fencing championship finals April 2

Northeastern Frosh Down Sophomores

Northeastern freshmen gained revenge for loss of the polo rush last fall by winning the midwinter rush yesterday at the Boston Y. M. C. A., outscoring the sophomores, 450 to 305. The freshmen won the first four events of the program, the obstacle race, tug-of-war, basketball game and relay race, but the sophomores averted a shutout by capturing the volley ball contest, in which more than 300 students participated.

The victorious freshmen, who matriculated the day after Christmas, may now discard their red caps in a month's time. They also escape the penalty of providing a banquet for the sophomores.

N.Y. Garden's License in Danger

New York, Jan. 16 (US)—Billy McCarney, who is associated with Joe Jacobs in the management of Max Schmeling, has announced that he intends to be among those present at tonight's boxing show in Madison Square Garden.

Under ordinary circumstances, the presence of Mr. McCarney would be worth two agate words in the paragraph devoted to celebrities at the ringside.

But these are not ordinary circumstances. The New York boxing commission has notified the Madison Square Garden Corporation that its license will be suspended if anyone connected with Max Schmeling or Primo Carnera is seen within the arena, and Mr. McCarney is admittedly connected with Herr Schmeling.

So it looks like the presence of Mr. McCarney may kick up more excitement than the presence of Max Baer of California and old Tom Heeney of New Zealand, and even the presence of William Harrison Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, who will be a referee on the card.

This isn't much of a trick, at that, for Baer is expected to knock over Heeney sometime within the scheduled distance of ten rounds, and there isn't much room for excitement in a situation like that.

Mr. McCarney cites the Constitution, the Magna Charta and the case of a certain theatrical producer against Alexander Woollcott, vice versa, in defying the commission

He says the only way he can be barred from Madison Square Garden is by the corporation itself, and then only if the corporation can prove that he is an objectionable character.

EAGLE CAPTAIN OPERATED ON

Joe Kelley, captain-elect of the Boston College football team, went under an operation for appendicitis at 9 o'clock this morning at the St. Elizabeth's Hospital

The Eagle leader was taken down suddenly with the sickness and his family doctor deemed it advisable to operate immediately.

The operation is not expected to hinder Kelley's gridiron career. He will have plenty of time to rest up and fully recover.

He was selected to succeed Johnny Dixon as B. C. grid captain at the close of the 1930 season. For two years he played a smashing game at fullback and was the unanimous choice of his teammates.

Jim Bottomley Well Liked in Nokomis, Ill.

On the concrete highway, near Hillsboro, is a large sign that tells passing motorists they are "12 miles to Nokomis, home of Jim Bottomley."

On the other side of Nokomis another sign tells motorists about Charley Ruffing, the Yankee pitcher, who also lives here.

Now that Jimmy Dykstra, another native of Nokomis is a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates, merchants have decided to honor him with a similar signboard

First face off at 8.15 o'clock.

Nelson Raymond's Northeastern hockey team will meet Bowdoin, and Framingham high will battle Natick high in a college-high school doubleheader at the Arena tonight. The first faceoff is set for 8.15, with the two games played alternately by periods.

For Northeastern this will be the second of three games which the Huskies will play this week-end. In the first of these, the latter lost to the Harvard seconds, 2 to 1, on Wednesday, and after tonight's game, the local six travels to Amherst to play the Mass. Aggies tomorrow

So far this year, Northeastern has beaten M. I. T. 2 to 0, before losing to the Harvard scrubs in both these contests Northeastern had to play without the services of Capt. Roger Emery, who was seriously injured in practice before Christmas. There is some chance that the Husky leader will play tonight, and that should strengthen the team defensively even if he does not start.

Bowdoin After Win Over Huskies

Bowdoin, coached by the ex-big leaguer, Ben Houser, hasn't fared very too well in the Maine competition so far, losing stiff games to Colby and Bates. The Black and White, however, is brimming 13 men to Boston and hopes to show up the city team tonight.

In the event that the program a schoolboy game is played. Natick high and Framingham are old rivals, and in the spectacular at this game will be all the selectmen of both towns.

Framingham is undefeated in four games and rules a slight favorite to win. Both teams have practiced twice this week at the Arena, so that each is accustomed to artificial ice.

East Boston Boy Double Track Victor

Joe Pentant of East Boston high school was a double winner in the inter-class games held by East Boston, Boston Latin and Brighton high at the East Armory

Fred Levin was the outstanding performer for Boston Latin in the junior division, finishing second in the hurdles, dash and 176-yard run.

Two Red Sox Pitchers Sign Up for Season

Two more Red Sox pitchers have signed, they are Bob Kline and Pat Simmons. Kline won 21 games and lost 9 last year for Erie. He is 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 212 pounds.

Simmons played with Pittsfield Indianapolis and Quincy in the Three-I League last year. Both pitchers showed possibilities at Pittsfield and are eager to be back under their old manager, John Collins.

M'MILLEN IS TO TACKLE BARTUSH

MAIN EVENT

Rudy Dusek—Nebraska Bearcat, vs. Pat O'Shocker, of Salt Lake City, Utah—one fall to a finish.

SEMI-WINDUP

Johnny Meyers of Greece vs. Firpo Wilcox, Oklahoma Indian—30-minute limit bout to a decision

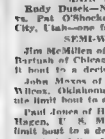
Karl Pojello, Lithuanian champion, vs. Nazarino Poggi of Italy—30-minute limit bout to a decision

Dick Daviscourt of California vs. Willie Davis of the University of Virginia—30-minute limit bout to a decision.

By JACK CONWAY

Jim Londos has been signed by Ray Fabiani to meet the winner of the finish wrestling bout between Rudy Dusek of Little Rock, Ark., and Pat O'Shocker of Salt Lake City, which will be staged at the Boston Garden tonight.

This incentive should cause Dusek and O'Shocker to show at their best when they sweep into action.



Jack Conway

Dusek has appeared in two feature matches at the Garden. He came thru, I wasn't on either occasion.

Rudy is a strong, rugged fellow and always carries the battle to his opponent. He gives the kind of action which appeals to the fans.

O'Shocker has also been on both of Fabiani's Garden shows. He is a good show man and should make things interesting for Dusek.

McMillen and Bartush in the Semifinal

The semifinal will bring together Jim McMillan, former University of Illinois star and Billy Bartush of Chicago. McMillan is one of the numerous former football stars who have taken up the mat game. He relies chiefly upon his flying tackle to win.

There will be a strong preliminary card. Paul Jones of Houston will mingle with George Hagen of Brooklyn. Karl Pojello of Chicago will take on Nazarino Poggi of St. Louis. Dick Daviscourt of California will oppose Willie Davis, University of Virginia, while John Maxos, Greek Adonis, will oppose Firpo Wilcox of Oklahoma.

Sonnenberg on Way East for Wykoff Match

Gus Sonnenberg, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, is on his way East for his finish bout, best two falls out of three, with Lee Wykoff, former University of St. Louis star, at the Arena on next Thursday night, under the direction of Paul Bowser.

It will be Sonny's first appearance in a Boston ring since he lost his title to Ed Don George. Gus has not lost any of his crowd appeal and there will be a large gathering on hand to see him battle Wykoff.

Everett Marshall, Pacific coast heavyweight, will mingle with Joe "Bull" Komer in the semi-final. Farmer George McLeod of California will oppose Pat McGill of Wakefield in another bout.

Concord Conquers

Concord high sextet captured its fourth straight victory of the season, defeating Howe high school of Billerica, 8 to 1, at Crosby's pond, Concord.

'In Love With Love,' Is Her Trouble

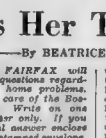
—By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I went to junior high school I disliked all boys, even one who fell in love with me and came to our house for over four years under the pretense of seeing my sister. Later I found my hatred had turned to love and this next time he came I received him. He began to show me a good deal of attention, taking me out to dances and things like that. We even planned to marry soon. I'm 19. We have quarrelled twice—the first time it was all my fault; the second time because I unintentionally disobeyed something he had asked of me. He says the trouble is that I don't take our proposed marriage seriously, and I don't. He has other girls, but I have no other boy friends.

H. B.



Beatrice Fairfax

Dear H. B.: It seems to me, my dear girl, that yours is a case of being "in love with love" rather than with the schoolmate you began by disliking and, according to your own account, have wound up by thoroughly spoiling. My advice is to take a brace, go out with other boys and take matters a little more in hand, if, as the young man graciously professed to him, you "might begin going together again." Do try to cultivate a little independence.

Felt Unsuitably Dressed

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About five months ago I met a man whom I liked very much. He is 25 and I am 18. He used to come to see me about two or three times a week, and told me he loved me. I never really encouraged him, but I did accept his offers to take me out. He used to call for me at my place of business every Saturday morning, and we either went to a show or to my home.

The last time I saw him we went to a restaurant where there was dancing. When we got home he told me he would call me during the week, but he has never called since then. I'll admit I did not act very well that night. He asked me to dance. I refused because I had not been dressed for dancing. Do you think he is waiting for me to call just to see if I care a little? SIVA.

Dear Eva: You should have accepted the young man's invitation to dance, as long as you were his guest. He probably never noticed that you were dressed differently from the other girls and, as he had taken you from your place of business, he couldn't have expected you to be dressed in evening clothes. Call him up.

Expect Her to Mark Time

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a man who is acting very selfishly toward me. We have been keeping company since July, and he expects me to stay in on Sunday, after working hard all week, whether he comes to see me or not. He says he goes out with friends who give him a good deal of work in his line of business. After making dates with me, he doesn't keep them. Do you think he has any right to expect me to stay home all day Sunday, which is torture to me, and then forbid me to go out or see any one else? I am 28 years old. D. M. C.

Dear D. M. C.: In your case it seems to be a question of the half loaf or no bread at all. If a woman accepts such treatment from a man to whom she is not even engaged, she is pretty sure to get nothing better. A little more independence of character is the medicine this young man needs, but the question is will he take it from you? Another woman would quote: "What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," and get even with it, but I'm afraid you've been too indulgent, too much in love to try that now.

Ventilation Is Precaution Against Gas Poisoning

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

GAS POISONING is not uncommon. We read of it daily in the papers. The city hospitals are always caring for cases of this sort.

A great deal was learned concerning gas poisoning during the World War. With the added popularity of the automobile more victims of gas poisoning are coming to our attention.

"Carbon monoxide," the poisonous ingredient of most gas, is the element that produces the marked and dangerous symptoms. As a matter of fact, carbon monoxide is one of the most deadly of gas poisons.

This particular gas combines with the blood, producing a chemical reaction of great damage to the body. Carbon monoxide produces more deaths than any other poison known. It is present in illuminating gas. It is liberated by incomplete combustion of the gasoline in the automobile. It is found in coal mines, in natural gas and in furnace gas.

Since the damaging effect of this gas is very rapid, great attention must be paid to the prevention of undue exposure to it.

Never run your automobile motor in a closed garage. If you are tuning up your motor, or tinkering with the car with the motor running, make sure the doors and windows are wide open. This is most imperative. I cannot be too emphatic in regard to this precaution.

All leaks in gas pipes should be repaired. Burning of gas jets at night is dangerous. Occasionally the gas pressure varies, and more gas may escape than is burning. Winds and draughts will blow out a small gas flame, but of course, does not turn off the gas. Many cases of gas poisoning occur in this way.

Proper ventilation must be maintained at all times. This is particularly true in homes that are heated by hot-air furnaces.

The chief signs of poisoning by gas are dizziness, headache, noises in the ears, throbbing at the temples. Nausea and vomiting usually precede a sleepy feeling which soon comes on.

The services of a doctor are extremely necessary for the care of one who has been gassed. While waiting for the doctor see that the patient receives plenty of fresh air. He should be kept warm and, if necessary, artificial respiration must be applied. If this is not needed, and his breathing is normal, keep him quiet.

Most people are under the impression that walking will stimulate the heart and lungs. In this type of gas poisoning it is best that there be no strain placed upon the heart. The patient should be kept in bed, warmth applied and stimulants given if necessary. Hot coffee may be given liberally.

In a more serious case of gas poisoning it is only by the use of the pulmotor that resuscitation can be accomplished. These machines are now found in all hospitals, police quarters and in municipal centers. Call up the police department, the health department or the gas company.

What's in Fashion?

Sheer Wool Dresses—Now and Later

Directed by AMS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—"What's a practical dress to get now—mid winter—but with spring in mind, tz?" somebody asks. Our very fast answer is, "A dress of sheer wool."

Sheer wool is light. Sheer wool is warm. Sheer wool is fashionable. Sheer wool is—

What is sheer wool, any way? It's a woolen fabric that's so light and thin you can almost see through it. Or one that's so loosely woven that it gives almost the appearance of open work.

Wool crepe is one of the most fashionable of these light thin wools. The lighter weights of jersey are dies. Tweeds woven in a way to give them mesh effect and regular knixd wool that look like hand-at work are still others.

Dresses of sheer wool aren't only fashionable and comfortable now. They're going to be fashionable and comfortable in the spring, too. You can wear them then without a coat. And they have all the fashion features of a silk dress.

They're often trimmed with silk and very often with lingerie touches in collar and cuffs. There's nothing heavy or bulky about them. They fit just like silk dresses and are worn just like silk dresses for general and sports occasions.

It's the fine crepey weaves of these sheer wools that are most in fashion for general day time dresses. While the sports types of costumes prefer the lacy tweeds and the knitted materials.

Right: tweed hand-knit wool

Smart Suit Type

Incidentally—this suit type of dress, or "jacket costume," is going to be one of the most in fashion things you can wear this spring. It doesn't have to have a peplum jacket, like the one in the sketch. The jacket might be a short bolero or a simple cardigan.

You'll notice that the dress sketched has a plaid blouse. And that's another important spring touch. A dress of this kind would be made of one of the plain, fine sheer wools like wool crepe.

The dress at the right would be made of light tweed, a hand-knit fabric or a material that looks hand-knit. And it's another dress that may be smartly worn coatless in the spring

Belt Important

The wide, important-looking belt could well be of a contrasting color, and so set the eye for the color of the accessories worn with the costume.

At the center is a dress of a lacy wool weave that shows how much like silk dressed these wools can look. It has the long hip yoke, the low-released pleats and the scarf trim that so many silk dresses have.

In choosing these wool dresses to wear now and later, fashion wise women follow the same rules of ensembling that they follow in silk dresses. They consider the color of their coat, and choose a dress that either matches or goes harmoniously with this color

WITH ADMIRABLE directness Betty Canfield related to Thatcher Colt curious story of disappearance of Geraldine Foster, her roommate.

"Doctor Maskell," reflected Colt aloud. "He is related to George Maskell, the criminal lawyer."

"I understand they are brothers," said Betty.

"A very distinguished family," interposed Capt. Laird. "And a queer one. George Maskell is the Robin Hood of the radicals—he and his wife, who is his law partner, represent rich clients at enormous fees and then work for radicals for nothing. They were also associated with Clarence Darrow and Arthur Garfield Hays, in the Greco-Carrillo murder case."

"I remember," nodded Colt. "Doctor Maskell must be a rich man."

"Geraldine told me he will be rich when his father dies," explained Betty Canfield. "The two sons will inherit millions then. But neither of them has much now, I understand."

"About what time was it when you had this telephone conversation with your roommate?"

Exactly 3 P. M.

"It was exactly three o'clock."

"What makes you so precise on that point?"

"I waited until that exact time to telephone, so that I could avoid talking to Doctor Maskell—I have never liked the man."

"Still, you haven't told me how you knew when it got to be three."

"Oh! There is a little clock on my desk—Geraldine gave it to me last Christmas—I was looking at the dial all the time I was waiting for the number to answer."

"I see. Now tell me what was said further between yourself and Geraldine over the telephone?"

"After Geraldine said she had been quarrelling, I didn't have the heart to talk about the bonus, but I told her if she would come home to supper, I would go out shopping with her. But all she answered was, 'Christmas doesn't hold anything for me now, Betty. I wish to God I was dead. And I guess I soon will be. Betty, you may never see me again as long as you live.' And then she burst out laughing and said she knew she was acting like a fool and promised to be home early."

"But she did not come home?"

Phoned Mother

"No. But I wasn't much worried because she often stayed away from the apartment for week-ends and holidays without telling me in advance. I supposed she had gone over to her folks in New Jersey.

"What time did you leave your office on Christmas Eve?" asked Colt.

"About 4 o'clock."

"And where did you go then?"

"From one shop to another—why?"

"It is possible then that Geraldine might have tried to telephone you later and failed to connect—isn't it?"

"Yes. I figured just that way. But when Monday came and I hadn't heard from her, I telephoned her mother in Millbrink, N. J. Mrs. Foster told me she had expected her for Christmas dinner, and was surprised when she did not even telephone. A week before they had arranged the plan for her to spend the holiday with the family. But they weren't really worried, either. She was an impulsive creature, and had often disappointed them.

"They supposed she went to Boston to spend Christmas with the family of her fiance, Harry Armstrong. Well, I telephoned Harry, only to find out that he hadn't heard from her either, not since Friday night when he said good-bye to her in Grand Central Station and took the train for Boston.

"Then I called up Doctor Maskell. He says that when he returned to his office on Christmas Eve afternoon, he found the rooms locked up. Geraldine had left without any note or message of explanation to him and without waiting for her salary."

"Is that odd? Did her parents say about that?" asked Thatcher Colt, with an intent glance.

"They kept expecting to hear from her in every mail. But old Mrs. Foster began to get upset when I called again yesterday, and this afternoon, when there was still no word, he became really alarmed

Off to New York

"He is on his way to New York now, and will be at my apartment tonight. I told him I was coming down here and he asked me to tell you that he would offer a thousand dollars reward, if you thought that would help."

"Twenty-two."

Captain Laird and my chief studied it intently, and from my chair I could see that they could see it easily—the face of a good-humored, intelligent and quite lovely girl.

Follow this absorbing mystery story daily in the Boston Evening American. The next chapter will appear tomorrow.

Mrs. Solomon Says—Be Not Deceived by Signs

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

MY SON, I charge thee be not deceived by Zodiac signs.

For, lo, there be seven times seven varieties of FLY-PAPER, wherewith the damsels of Babylon seek to entangle the feet of unsuspecting man. And, every one of these is as sweet to the sense and as innocent to the eye as a debutante at her coming-out party.

Yet women are the same to-day, yesterday and forever, and all their gestures on the path of love lead to matrimony.

Behold, the "independent" damsel flaunteth her freedom, protesting. No wedding bells for ME! For I am NOT a marrying-girl!" And thus are thy fears allayed and thy suspicions chloroformed that she may the more easily slip the halter about thy neck and lead thee to the gate, whence there is no return

One damsel shall confess of the fifty-fifty marriage and show thee how two pay-envelopes may blossom, where there was only one. But trust her not.

And another shall entice thee with home cooking. Yea, with heavenly pie crusts and glorified waffles shall she lure thy palate, saying, "I am NO old-fashioned I ADORE to cook'" Yet, in her Hope Chest, thou shalt peradventure find a can opener

For the damsel of yesterday had but ONE deadly weapon—even her femininity. But the damsel of today hath seven times seven RACKETS! And, what man can escape ALL of these?

Cut Cake at Birthday Party

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please advise whether or not it is customary and proper to cut and serve the birthday cake at the time of the birthday party. I was one of 25 attending a birthday party and, although other cake was served, the hostess did not offer the guests any part of the birthday cake. I considered it to be poor taste. Please advise me if she was correct.

C. C.

How strange not to have the birthday cake at the birthday party! Do you suppose that it could have been real?

It is the custom—and a charming tradition it is, too—to bring in the birthday cake, lighted with gay candles and party spirit, just as the dessert is being served. Then it becomes a part of the dessert—and what's a birthday party without ice cream, accompanied by the birthday cake?

An Honor to the Bride's Absent Mother

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am going to be married soon and have a hotel ceremony and reception. What is troubling me is that my mother has been ill in a sanitarium for several years and will not be present. How shall my invitations be worded? I do not think they should read "Mr. and Mrs. John Doe," under the circumstances, do you, and yet I want my mother's name to appear on the invitation, as she is very dear to me.

Please help me.

R. G.

The last part of your last sentence settles the question, I think. It is so sweet and indicates such deep devotion, that I urge you to use your mother's name, as an honor to your feeling for her.

Or, if you wish, you might write the invitations to your wedding, making the invitation informal. In this invitation you could say:

Dear Mary:

John and I are to be married on the 1st of February, at 4 o'clock in ——, and we would be so happy if you and Tom will come to our wedding. Father wants, too, to greet you at the informal reception that he is planning to give us after the ceremony. Will you come? Do say yes!

Love from all of us, to you and Tom

Devotedly yours.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

WELL OF all things! Bob went and married Jessica—after all.

Jessica, the quiet; Jessica, the modest; Jessica, the gentle little thing who never told a queer story or laughed at a dubious joke in all her life.

And Bob, oh, he was a regular Stepper. A Tough Guy, or he tried to be.

He knew all the bootleggers in town and every girl with a pair of jeweled garters and an orange-colored lipstick knew Bob—and liked him. Half of them were in love with him.

Bob had a way with him for all he tried so hard to be a Tough Guy.

Bob can dance like a Russian ballet master. He can swim like a fish, he can ride anything on four legs, he knows all the latest songs, and sings them in the most fascinating way.

And Bob has a light step and a light heart, and a quick tongue and a light laugh that makes the dullest day as bright as gold.

There is something about the way Bob's hair waves back from his forehead that really—

And as for Bobby eyes—what stories they tell. Not always true stories to be sure—but never dull ones.

All the girls are crazy about Bob, and Bob is crazy about all the girls, or he always seemed to be.

Bob never went to bed before 3 o'clock in the morning, but at 6 o'clock he was at his breakfast as fresh as a daisy, and they never could tell at the office that he had rolled home at daybreak the night before.

Great fellow on a hike—Bob.

It was a treat to see him build a fire of twigs between two stones and set the bacon frizzling and the fish to frying, and the coffee Bob could make—oh, well, what's the use?

Bob worked for a living, of course, but somehow, you never thought of solid plodding, dull work connected with Bob.

He always seemed to be a kind of a carefree, light-hearted tramp, who ought to have a guitar slung around his neck, a rapier in his belt and a rose over his ear—gay fellow, Bob, irresponsible Bob—the life of the party, the fool of the world, and you couldn't help liking him to save your life.

And now, with all the cute girls in love with him, and all the agreeable divorcees just crazy about him Dear Bob is walking up the church aisle with little, quiet, loving Jessica, and he is crazy about her, they say.

But somehow I feel as if I do I have seen so many Bobs and so many Jessicas.

And so many "cute kids," and so many "foxy ladies," too

And the story so often ends just exactly that way.

I suppose somebody knows why—do you?

Bleaching Out Tan From Shoulders and Back

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

IF YOU have saved the articles on back beauty you will see that we have taken up posture, good skin texture and the treatment of blemishes, but so far, I have made no mention of the particular blemish that is probably the most common of them all. I refer to the sunburn and tan which are revealed by the evening gown of the hour. By this time it is possible that the discoloration has become somewhat faded, but it remains definite enough in appearance to be noticeable, and to detract from the ensemble

We have several remedies to turn to any of which will be effective with persistent use, consistency and patience being necessary, because we cannot expect startling results overnight. Some of these remedies are mild and others are strong, and you will have to decide which will effect the best results by considering the state of your skin. When you are deciding, remember that in using any beauty treatment, the softer and simpler the desired results can be obtained, the better it is for the skin. Harsh methods should be used only as a last resort

Among the milder lotions which may be used for bleaching purposes, is lemon juice, but even lemon juice may prove irritating to the very sensitive skin. If this should be the case, dilute the lemon juice with a little water for the first two or three treatments, and then try the pure juice again, then, if there is no itching or burning, you can continue the use of the pure juice without fear of any harm to your skin.

To use lemon juice for bleaching, first cleanse the back thoroughly with cold cream, then, after applying two or three hot compresses, dash a little cold water over the skin. Then, after applying the lemon juice solution The best method of applying it to cover a piece of cotton with the solution and pat it on the skin This treatment may be repeated several times daily without repeating the cleansing process, and should show definite results after a few days or days.

Peroxide may be used instead of lemon juice with the same effect. If this treatment seems too mild, you can try a mixture of equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide. This is not a harsh lotion, but it is a little stronger than the lemon juice or peroxide alone This treatment is preceded also by a thorough cleansing of the skin

In the next article I'll tell you about another mild bleach which may prove more effective than the one discussed today.

Wall Street 'System' Myth Is Exploded

—By B. C. FORBES—

New York Jan 16—Is there or is there not a diabolical System in Wall Street constantly conspiring to rob the public by alluring them into the stock market by market-up quotations dazzlingly and then precipitating a panic so as to compel the public to hand back their stocks at terrific loss?

Many millions are sure there is. Even Ramsay MacDonald, Labor Prime Minister of Great Britain, recently declared:

"A few financiers in New York, in London or in Paris, pursuing their own ends, after feeling after their own fortunes, are able to destroy the fruits of good harvests and the undoubted accomplishments of human energy."

Something was said here yesterday concerning the enviable reputation enjoyed throughout the financial and business world by J. P Morgan & Co., by far the most powerful concern in Wall st. and in the whole world.

What has been responsible most of all for the current wide-spread hatred of "Wall Street" is the great losses suffered by myriads of individuals and families who purchased stocks either outright or on margin, during the boom. The notion—the conviction—widely prevails that the panic was deliberately willfully by a coterie o. coteries of tremendously rich men.

How does this square with the following facts?

There isn't a millionaire or multi-millionaire in America, with perhaps the exception of a very few professional stock market speculators occupying no responsible positions in banking or business, who hasn't been made poorer by the awful shrinkage in security values, the serious falling off in business, the severe drop in profits and dividends, the bad decline in real estate or by other development caused by the panic and its aftermath. Many men who were rich, even very rich, in 1929 are now poor.

Most wealthy men who were heavily interested in the stock market are today worth less than half of what they then were worth. I personally do not know a single Wall Street magnate whose possessions have not shrunk painfully.

If there were a Wall Street "System," presumably the head of the largest bank in the country, either a member of it or familiar with its operations and plans. Yet the man who headed what was then America's largest bank was an outspoken bear for many months while the boom raged and became bullish, to his subsequent regret, only on the eve of the crash.

Were there a Wall St "System," presumably the Morgan partners would be part and parcel of it. Yet very early in the stock boom one of the foremost Morgan partners confided to me he he was then reducing his stock holdings. If he had held on he could have reaped fifty to a hundred per cent more.

Few of the nation's most prominent bankers regarded the late stages of the boom without misgivings. They repeatedly warned that the strain upon the money market and upon credit had become alarming.

Were the facts available it would be found, I am sure, that not one leading banker is worth as much today as he was in the boom.

Next, consider what has happened to banks in New York and throughout the country.

Has the panic and its subsequent bitter fruits enriched our banks? No. Panics and depressions always alarm lending institutions. Their losses multiply, their profits shrink. Contrast what the New York bank shares sold for in 1929 with what they are selling for today:

	1929	1931
Bank of America	280	81
Bankers Trust	245	51
Chase Nat'onal	378	35
Chatham Phoenix	77	27
Chemical Bank	147	49
National City	580	160
Corn Exchange	421	126
First National	2600	875
Guaranty Trust	1204	485
Manhattan Co	270	84
New York Trust	490	155

There is as much selfishness, doubtless, among big bankers and other influential men in the financial world as there is among others among other classes. But, speaking as one having first hand acquaintance with many of them, I can say sincerely that the men occupying the most responsible positions in New York, taking them by and large, are as honest and honorable as the men occupying influential positions in other cities.

It simply isn't in the cards that great banking firms and banking institutions could stay in business and prosper year after year, decade after decade, were they founded on dishonesty, trickery, treachery and controlled by conscienceless swindlers.

LACK OF SNOW HELPS RAILS IN NEW ENGLAND

By FRANK H MELOON

Lack of snow during the Winter of 1930-31 to date has been a great help to New England railroads. Our carriers have been nicely favored in this respect in recent years. Despite modern machinery, the cost of removing snow from the iron right of way is still enormous, especially when new long drifts ages are to be cleared. A succession of old-fashioned heavy snowstorms in the cases of some railroads has applied a difference between their period earnings figures that would have put them in red ink.

Dec. 11 in this column it was stated:

"Current indications are that United Fruit Co., of which Victor S. Cutter of Newton is president, will cover its $4 dividend when the full year's results are at hand. With its expansion program completed and ready to show results, the big Boston company will end 1930 and start in 1931 to pour its profits of sums into the treasury. With $24,000,000 cash on hand at the end of the third quarter, its treasury position appears excellent indeed. Standard Statistics Co. in a special study just issued, declares some of the United Fruit Co.'s competitors are being gradually eliminated."

B. C. Forbes

Victor M. Cutter

The actual report as just issued by President Cutter shows the big concern earned a net income of $12,411,567 for 1930, equal to $4.24 a share, comparing with $17,-092,093, or $5.84 a share, on a little smaller capitalization in 1929. Dec. 31, 1930, balance sheet shows current assets of $40,688,908 and current liabilities of $14,082,565.

Mr. Cutter also points out specifically that large expenditures for expansion in the tropics will no longer be necessary. The treasury position is obviously one of great strength.

Miss Frances Perkins, industrial commissioner in New York, and the American Institute of Architects to have future building plans call for broader windows after Miss Perkins declares buildings are now designed with not enough room for window cleaners to work on the sills. 14 window cleaners in New York having died by falling in 1930

This idea has a humanitarian appeal. There is one big industrial building, that of the Simonds Co. at Worcester, to be one of the wonders of 1931, to which it could not apply Reason: that great industrial building is to be erected without win dows

Although the earnings of American Telephone in 1930, based on average number of shares outstanding, showed a reduction to $10.40 a share, as compared with $12.67 in 1929, the earnings nevertheless revealed a slightly rising tendency. The course of net earnings by quarters for the past two years shows as follows:

	1930	1929
First quar.	$40,440,000	$40,500,000
Second quar.	41,232,000	39,602,000
Third quar	41,728,000	40,868,000
*Fourth quar (approx)	42,600,000	45,219,000
Year	166,000,000	166,189,000

During 1930 American Telephone's share capital was increased. The number of shares outstanding increased from 13,323,308 as of Dec 31, 1929, to 17,596,912 on Dec. 31, 1930, the large addition reflecting principally the one of six stock issue and the conversion of almost all of the $219,000,000 convertible 4½ per cent bonds. The average amount of stock outstanding during 1930 was about 16,000,000 shares, and on this number the earnings were about $10.40 a share

Mexican Dollar Is Off to a New Low

Shanghai, Jan 16 (AP)—The Mexican dollar plunged to a new low level of 22¾ cents here today. National Government postal authorities said as a result of the persistent decline in silver they were considering a further advance in the international postage rates. These rates were increased 50 per cent last July as a result of the silver slump

Foster-Combustion Parley Abandoned

New York, Jan. 16—The reorganization committee of International Combustion Engineering and Foster-Wheeler Corp. announced that negotiations, which had been going on during recent months looking to the combining of the businesses of the two corporations have failed of confirmation and have been terminated

Atlantic Refining Raises "Gas" Price

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Wall Street today was hearing another report that the copper producers plan another advance in price for the near future. Inasmuch as price developments in copper have proved to be of the baffling variety recently they do longer influence the trading community. Until such time as the technical position of the copper industry and real increase in demand for metal warrants higher prices, any markups will not be taken seriously.

U. S. Steel Unlikely to Change Dividend

U. S. Steel held steady most of the session today. Directors of U. S. Steel meet the last Tuesday of each month to review the report for last quarter of 1930 and declare dividends on preferred and common. The sentiment of the Street is that the dividends will not be changed. It is a foregone conclusion, based on operations and prices, that last quarter earnings will be much smaller than any quarter of 1930. However, Steel, with its great diversification in products and customers has a way of showing better earnings than some look for.

Gillette Comeback Is Seen by Buyers

Gillette Safety Razor was firm today. Buying has been general against the market trend and is now about 10 points above its low of 1930. However, it is also about 30 points below its high of last year. Buyers of the stock maintain that if business should show a turn Gillette will score a substantial comeback. The short interest, however, is stubborn.

Upward Revision of "Gas" Assists Shares

Directors of makers of tank wagon gasoline prices by the Atlantic Refining Co. and other large oil concerns was reflected in a stiffening of prices for the oil shares today, particularly the Standard group.

Vanadium Stiffens on Dividend News

Vanadium stiffened today after announcement that directors will meet for dividend action Wednesday and that a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share will be declared. There has been a gratifying increase in specifications from steel companies so far this month, and shipments for the first two weeks of January exceeded the entire month of December.

Final figures on 1930 earnings have not yet been compiled, but it is probable the corporation will show slightly in excess of its $3 a share dividend requirements on the 377,000 shares now outstanding. The last half of the year was dominated by financing for business generally and Vanadium suffered with other organizations.

Adolf Gobel Fails to Follow Earnings

Adolf Gobel sold at a high of $ 4 in 1929 and earnings that year were $11,1 2 8. It is now selling around $6, with earnings in 41 weeks ending Nov 1 $13,282

American Tobacco to Make Good Report

It is understood American Tobacco Co. net for 1930 was over $42,500,000 against $39,178,604 the previous year. It is likely the figures will show that during the year one dollar per share was paid in duty interim, reserve and income tax over $1[illegible]. Throughout the year 40,000 employees worked full time, and their wages were higher than any previous year.

Earnings Reports Comparisons Made

	Since Dec. 31	New Jan. 1 additions
Increased earnings	28	3
Decreased earnings	64	8
Unchanged dividends	142	12
Increased dividends	8	1
Decreased dividends	11	1

Telegraph Merger in Canada Studied

Asked to comment on the status of the suggested consolidation of Canadian telegraphic services, Sir Hugh Thornton, chairman and president of Canadian National Railways, stated:

"Insofar as the Canadian National Railways is concerned, the expression of any opinion would be premature, as obviously, before any action approaching a definite nature could be taken, there would have to be a careful examination by the technical details of the company, a discussion by the directors and a consultation with respect to a matter of such major importance with the proprietor, i. e., the Government of Canada. The subject has been broached and is receiving appropriate consideration with due regard to the procedure outlined above."

New Haven's 1930 Showing

New York, New Haven & Hartford's earnings last year of $7.32 a share, according to official estimates are considered satisfactory under the circumstances of the business during the period. The $6 a share annual dividend was covered on a admittedly off year by a comparatively good margin.

Further Rediscount Rate Cuts Favored

Washington advices indicated that the Reserve Board was in favor of further reductions in rediscount rates While such action would promise eventual inflation and would be bullish for the long pull, it would have little or no effect on the stock market right away, further reduction in the cost of money primarily would be aimed at improving the bond market and in this connection it is interesting to note that the Treasury is planning important refunding operation for the near future.

Swift & Co. Earnings Stability Is Shown

Since the modification of the packers' consent decree, considerable study has been given to the position of the packing companies. The action will permit diversified operations which should eventually result in earnings on a par with those of the leading units in the industry. In that connection, considerable attention has been given to Swift & Co., because the company has been able to show remarkable stability of earnings in recent years. The fact that the company has an uninterrupted record of dividend payment over a long period of years also is being mentioned as likely to make the shares a leader in the group when more interest is attracted to packing shares generally.

International Match Preference Attractive

An investment house calls attention to the attractiveness of International Match participating preference stock around current levels, where the yield is approximately 7 per cent on the $4 a share annual dividend being paid. Of the total distributed on the stock, $2.60 a share is cumulative and the remainder is given in participation on an equal basis with the common.

Business done by the company in manufacturing matches virtually is world-wide, and it has previously from long-term concessions or monopolies. The book value for the preference stock was $61.70 a share at the close of 1929. Earnings for 1930 are said to have been satisfactory.

Buying National Cash Register

Recently, indications have been that insiders were buying in National Cash Register, although those taking the stock have not been inclined to make a demonstration in the issue. Most of the demand is believed to be due to the belief that as the world's largest maker of cash registers, with hundreds of different types, the company is in position to reflect quickly a change for the better in business. Cash Register also makes accounting machines, credit files and other specialty devices in marketing facilities are provided with a force in important cities in this country and abroad

NEW DIVIDENDS ARE DECLARED

Pierce Petroleum Corp. declared a dividend of 10 cents on the common stock, payable February 16 to stock of record January 31. Three months ago an initial 10-cent dividend was paid

Directors of Santa Fe Pacific Electric Co. declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the preferred stock payable Feb 2. This dividend will be No. 86

Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co. declared extra dividend of 50 cents and regular semi-annual dividend of $1.50 on the common, both payable February 14

Petroleum Corp. of America declared a dividend of 25 cents, payable January 30 to stock of record January 20. Previous payment, on Sept. 30, 1930, amounted to 37½ cents quarterly.

EARNINGS GOOD FOR MAINE CENTRAL

Maine Central Railroad will show earnings for 1930 equal to approximately $8 a share on 120,071 shares of common stock outstanding, an exceptionally good showing in a year of generally poor railroad results. December proved to be a very good month from standpoint of net, it is understood, showing a very comfortable surplus after charges.

While Maine Central for 1929 actually reported earnings equal to $12.39 a share on the common stock, the figure for that year included $519,000 of back mail pay and other items given to it by the I. C. C. Without this non-recurring item, which was eliminated, balance for the common stock would have been $8.97 a share. On this basis, 1930 results would make very favorable comparison with the previous year.

Leaving out the back mail pay, gross earnings for 1930 would show on comparable basis a relatively small decline from 1929. Maine has suffered less from industrial depression than many sections, and Maine Central has benefited both from this situation and from the heavy movement of potatoes

INSURANCE

Have Your Property Well Protected Against Fire Insurance Rate Is Based on Hazard Involved Infant Industries as Unemployment Solution Business Pickup Likely Before Summer

—By Frank F. Loomis—

When you take an inventory, balance, your books for the year, or gather facts for your income tax, do not overlook the important factor of checking over your fire insurance policies, and determine whether or not your business, and items as well, is sufficiently insured.

Business growth demands larger limits of protection, and if it is under-insured, both your business and credit is endangered

The majority of men carry some fire insurance, but few of them ever review their policies, but simply renew them year after year, regardless of the changes in their property.

Perhaps your property has increased in value, in which case your old policy is not giving enough insurance protection, and on the other hand, if your property has decreased in value, you are wasting money if the policy is excessive.

Why not check up on this now and take a complete inventory of your property, your business, your home, furnishings, etc., and have your policies adjusted to conform with your actual requirements today?

It is dangerous to delay and your fire insurance is of such importance that you cannot afford to postpone or forget it. Property is often destroyed by fire in terrible swiftness and comes when least expected.

While you may not expect a fire, if you had one tonight, would you be completely protected against financial loss as a result of same? When a house burned down, people used to ask "Is he insured?" and now they ask, "Is he properly insured?" Remember after a fire is the only time you realize how essential complete coverage is .. but it may be too late! An important matter such as insurance which protects your home your business and your credit deserves prompt attention. Your insurance agent will help review your present needs and advise you without obligation

Another important thing to remember in connection with fire insurance is that the rate is based on the hazard involved. When in the process of building, every caution should be taken to make the building more fire-resistant, which will result in a lower fire insurance rate.

Fire authorities state that close to 90 per cent of fires could be avoided through the exercise of ordinary care and it is everyone's duty to help prevent fire. It is equally of importance to everyone's own interest, because every dollar lost through fire adds to your own fire burden, for insurance rates and losses maintain a fairly constant ratio.

Unemployment insurance plans, it is pointed out by Prof. William B Bailey, economist of the Travelers Insurance Company, are likely to bring about state investigation of each individual workman out of employment. The establishment of such a plan is also likely to leave the government "holding the bag," it is declared.

In England, where doles are paid the unemployed, approximately $500,000 is needed to make the British fund solvent, while similar trouble is being experienced in Germany, according to Prof. Bailey, who quoted the opinion of an English Socialist that in England there are many in the rising generation who have never known their fathers to work.

Infant industries in this country are looked to as a solution of the unemployment situation.

"After every previous period of hard times in this country as far back as 1837" Prof. Bailey states, "we have had some industry that began to absorb the workers, first digger canals, then building railroad.. then the automobile industry etcetera.

"What we need more than anything is a new industry. The American standard of living would be endangered by the rebuilding of a system of doles to persons out of employment. It can only be maintained by providing jobs to the entire working population.

"While the assurance of steady employment will prevent the recurrence of the present period of business uncertainty, the payment of doles will tend to prolong human suffering and to make business uncertainty a steady dict."

The only way in which good times can be returned, in the opinion of Professor Bailey, is for people to first pay off their debts, accumulate a bank balance and then to start buying again.

This cycle of events in the return of good times, he adds, is now in progress, and with the bank balances and savings bank deposits showing an increase, the signs point to a pickup in business before next summer

STOCK PRICES MOSTLY OFF IN BOSTON

Prices were mostly lower in trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today, with changes for the most part limited within a point range. Gillette, New England Telephone and Penn R. R. were firm, with fractional gains shown for each.

Point losses were recorded for Boston & Maine A stamped, Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred, General Capital, Sullivan Machine and Boston Elevated first preferred.

American Telephone was nearly a point higher. Edison dropped 2 points in early trading, but rallied later in the session

Pepperell Manufacturing Co. has made reductions of 35 per cent to 30 per cent in prices on its part-wool blankets for 1931, bringing quotations to the lowest in company's history. Spring lines of Bates Manufacturing Co. cotton and rayon bedspreads have been opened at levels approximated 10 per cent under last season's prices.

Southbridge awarded to Merchants National Bank of Boston at 2.53 per cent, $35,000 loan, dated January 29 and due November 2. Other bidders were: Faxon, Gade & Co., 2.64 per cent; F. S. Moseley & Co., 2.71 per cent, and Southbridge National Bank, 2.73 per cent.

STOCKS HIGHER IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, Jan. 16—Bears fought the stock market unresponsive to their efforts today. Shares prices regained much of their loss of the previous session as short lines were hastily covered in the final hour.

Trading was extremely sluggish and prices drifted uncertainly during the most of the session, but the list developed considerable strength before the finish.

CLOSING IS STRONG

Shares closing 1 to more than 3 points higher included U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Johns Manville, American Telephone, American Smelting, General Electric and Union Carbide.

Sears rose 2 to record 1¼ points, but regained all but ¼.

News of a character to influence the stock market was almost completely lacking, and traders in the main were content to stay on the sidelines. It was generally acknowledged in brokerage circles that yesterday's decline was accompanied by extensive bear selling, but it was sharp enough to inspire caution.

SILVER DEPRESSED

In addition to wheat, silver was again under pressure, slipping ¾ of a cent to 28½ cents an ounce, duplicating the historical low established a week ago. This talk of plans to make an international loan to China to stabilize the metal appears to have brought out considerable opposition in banking circles, where feasibility of such action is questioned.

On the other hand, export copper prices for March and April shipment were increased 1/8 cent, continued in fair volume, but domestic buying was still quiet, and it was said the trade generally on the situation during the next few weeks will depend on continued demand from abroad.

Index of commodity prices showed a negligible change from the previous week. For five weeks it has fluctuated within a range of less than half point, the narrowest movement in a year. This lends support to the hope that stability is being or has been achieved.

Furthermore, the Annalist Index of Business Activity, as announced in preliminary form for yesterday, showed a reduction of only 1-5 of a point from November, which is described as a tentative figure that has reached the bottom of the present depression. This index is weighted for seasonal trends.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

State Street brokers continue to express confidence in the coming of safest place to be while an admittedly strong bear faction are placing the list under pressure. These brokers contend that the bears hope to depress prices now in anticipation of covering with stock that will be "scared out" when unfavorable reports are issued.

Observers point out that the shares that have given way most easily in recent weeks include the high priced blue chips. For example, Allied Chemical which sold at 237 immediately after the dividend November 1 is now obtainable at prices under sixteen times the same estimate of $10 per share.

There has been considerable comment on the impending bond financing of the public utilities among holders of the common stocks. Some are uncertain as to what their position will be until the size of the issues are made public. Standard Gas is rumored as intending a flotation of about $10,000,000, and brokers expect selling pressure when they are afraid that the common shares will be placed in an inferior position.

Wheat Closes With Rallies From Iowa

Chicago, Jan. 16—Wheat today led a downturn with fairly heavy unloading on disappointing action in outside markets. Short covering was noted around the close and moderate rallies from early low points resulted. Closing figures for wheat were 1 to 1¾c lower, corn ¾ to ⅝c off and oats unchanged to ⅛c down. Rye ruled ¾ to ⅞c lower.

Advance in Copper Price Is Announced

Copper exporters, Inc., increased prices of foreign grade of copper for March and April shipments to 10.38 cents for March and 10.40 cents a. t. f. Handsome Harve and London for April, with January and February remaining at 10.30 cents. This apparently is to enable custom smelters to confine their sales to nearer months in disposing of their current intake.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, Jan. 16—Cotton futures today closed 3 to 7 points higher. January, 10.14. New contracts—January, 10.07; March, 10.35; 22; May, 10.45-56; July, 10.65-66; October, 10.80; December, 10.86-96.

Today's Evil Propaganda

Lying and Deception Still Popular

Lying historians and vicious propagandists who deliberately fomented hate among the peoples of the world during the last war were strikingly attacked by Cardinal O'Connell in a recent address to the American Catholic Historical Association.

It is now fifteen years since we first were deluged with lurid stories of men crucified to barn doors, babies' arms severed from their bodies and whole populations of women killed by poisoned food.

But what of today?

The propaganda of Europe is as vicious, its censorship as arbitrary and senseless and its motives as despicable as during the bitter period of hate generating.

American bankers have recklessly and unpatriotically "invested" in excess of fifteen thousand million dollars in the maelstrom of European uncertainty.

American money has been employed with prodigality to foment new wars, secure new conquests of territory and to perpetuate corrupt governments whose purposes were both alien and dangerous to democracy.

And so long as these vast "investments" stay there and so long as they have the itch to obtain more American money for their selfish purposes, the European dynasties and dictatorships, co-operating with the American banking regime, will prevent in so far as they can any word of critical truth being sent to this country or being published in it.

Rumania strives to prevent the publication in this country and in the world as well any truth that illustrates the degeneracy of its leadership and the brutal persecution of its liberal citizens by its strong-arm military. France, supposedly a democracy, develops a high blood pressure when its secret naval alliance with England is discovered and published for information of the people of America, whose money has been used to build up her great military forces. Poland persecutes the German inhabitants of the Polish corridor and proposes to stifle American knowledge of her frenzy while seeking more American money.

Propaganda and censorship and the ruling gangs have not changed. The experiences of the war seem rather to have fortified them.

But, as Cardinal O'Connell truly says, the American people having had their experience with the war-period propaganda of hate, should be singularly equipped to detect propaganda in every form, especially in "peacetime."

Mayor Torrey Speaks Out

No Hand-Picked Candidates

Good for Mayor Torrey of Beverly!

He tells the Republican chiefs in words that are not weasel words that their scheme for a pre-primary convention is nothing more or less than a plot to rob the people of Massachusetts of their right to nominate candidates of their own choosing.

"I don't believe in hand-picked candidates," he declares.

It is a statement, a challenge, that they cannot avoid. It describes the issue as simply and effectively as it can be stated.

Unfortunately, these political leaders have a large influence in the Legislature, an influence that is all out of proportion to their talents, their intellectual capacity or their interest in the public welfare.

Serious times are ahead. The people must keep their eyes open. Otherwise they will wake up some fine morning to find that these politicians have put the scheme across. It would be the worst setback to democratic government that this commonwealth has suffered in generations because it would result in abolition of the people's inherent right and because it would result, in a return to the corrupt, boss-controlled convention system which foisted its candidates upon the public "from smoke-filled rooms at 2 o'clock in the morning."

Another P. O. Fantasy

Our Postmaster an Optimist

So we are to have a great new postal plant, possibly at the South Station.

Yes, there were three columns of postal plant in the morning papers.

All they've got to do is to get the site, get the authorization from two committees of Congress, both branches of Congress and the President, then get the appropriation through two different committees of Congress, through both branches of Congress again, then the approval of the President; after that the plans and specifications, the contests among the contractors and architects and such other delays as inefficiency can cause.

Wonderful, isn't it?

In the meantime, what are they going to do at the hole in the ground in Postoffice Square, where the appropriations and plans have been made for a new Federal building that should have been erected a year ago?

Better get that building up first. Or else fill in the hole and call it a day.

IS DAVID WITH GOLIATH?

By NELSON HARDING

Can this be the modern version
Of that very ancient legend
Of that once heroic story
About David and Goliath?

Which side is the later David
Ancient David slew a giant;

Listen, World! -:- Poison

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"Primary Consideration"

I'VE JUST read a curious thing—one of those things that brings you up with a start and sets you wondering. Dr. James M. Doran said it. He's chief of the Industrial Alcohol Bureau of the Treasury Department.

Elsie Robinson

The Bureau, as you know, poisons industrial alcohol with wood alcohol so you can't drink it. If you do drink it, you will go blind and die horribly. Now they're going to use another denaturant which makes you want to die, but you probably won't. Dr. Doran admits that the deaths from wood alcohol were regrettable but, says he—

"The protection of industrial alcohol from redistillation and thus diversion to illegitimate channels was the primary consideration, although removal of poisons was advisable if that could be done with the alcohol still properly protected."

"THE PROTECTION OF INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL WAS THE PRIMARY CONSIDERATION"—that's the phrase that set me wondering. I don't know much about the rights or wrongs of Prohibition. I couldn't handle the wet-dry problem if you gave it to me. But I'm always interested in watching results when people begin to think like that.

I know a woman who thinks like that about her housework. She's made a religion of it. Her home is amazing—the despair of every woman who sees it. But in her zeal to keep her house in order, she's forgotten her family.

She's furious if they upset anything. The youngsters of Hi school age can't invite friends home. Her husband, a big, careless fellow, feels like a stranger inside his own door. He has to go out on the back landing to smoke. It's easy enough to see what will happen to that family within a few years. But Mrs. Blank will never feel responsible. She has been a good housekeeper and that's "the primary consideration."

I know a man who thinks about his business like that. During the Christmas rush one of the boys in the shipping department—a poor, half-starved little codger, working at his first job—tried to steal a package. It was only a cheap sweater, priced $3.49, but the Boss said he had to make an example of him "because of the principle of the thing." So he had him taken off in the wagon. Even the arresting officer protested, but "business had to be protected"—

And those poor men who were killed at Thanksgiving, trying to steal turkeys for their hungry youngsters—remember them? Business was the "primary consideration" there, too. Business justified those bullets—or did they?

I often wonder what happens to individuals—OR NATIONS—who get to thinking like that . . . who become so fanatical about PRINCIPLES that they forget about PEOPLE. Seems to me, if I remember my history, that PLENTY happens.

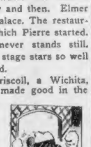
New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—Thoughts while strolling: The sidewalk fountain pen demonstrator who takes a taste of ink now and then. Elmer Rogers of the Palace. The restaurant Princesse, which Pierre started. Leonore Ulric never stands still. Nobody imitates stage stars so well as Willie Howard.

Charles B. Driscoll, a Wichita, Kan., boy, who made good in the city. What became of tutti-frutti gum? They say Al Capone financed many midget golf courses. Everybody seems terrorized by Capone, the big stiff. You know me, Al. Always kidding! A sort of pathetic eagerness about young Teddy Roosevelt.



Blustering Richard Bennett. But a great actor. A woman lurches out of a speakeasy mumbling. A camel's hide cigarette case—$80. Entire nightgowns of satin. Ceres and her cornucopia in Lalique glass. Electrically faked log fire—no heat but a swell illusion. Just like gold-diggers.

Another block sign across the Winter Garden. Show girls going in for Great Danes. Frazier Hunt is the only writer I know who doesn't smoke. What a lucky guy! Arthur Hopkins suggests Old King Cole in miniature. Wonder if Marlene Dietrich's success worries Garbo?

Those morning mounds of grapeseed in front of "cafes." The rat-a-tat-tat of upstairs tap dancing schools. Three theaters dark in a block. (If that left-over fly alights on this paper again, it's taking chances). How many remember a dessert dish called sillabub?

Most men-about-town type are bores. All child actors trained under Gus Edwards talk alike—Eddie Cantor, George Jessel and Georgie Price, for instance. Midtown's acres of penthouses—like villages clinging to Pyrenean crags. S. J. Kaufman breezes by.

Incandescents rimple into nightly twinkle. Times Square a frozen lagoon in flame. Grover Whalen drives by with a red rose in his lapel. Overheard: "She's not bad—just modern!" That gentle bleakness of a Fifth Avenue night. And above a cold white star.

"Jimmie" James, one of the most popular European correspondents, will be missed by his American friends this summer and likely for summers to come. His roving days are over. He is now chained to a night managing editor's desk in the editorial rooms of the Times. It comes as a deserved promotion but deprives the journalistic world of a bang-up reporter.

General Grant's old home at No. 3 East Sixty-sixth street has been demolished to make way for a new apartment house. The four-storied brownstone mansion was presented to the war hero and wife by admirers shortly before his world tour. Following his years of military service and two terms in the White House, he planned to live in quiet retirement. While writing his "Memoirs" here he heard of the tragic failure of his Wall Street house—Grant and Ward.

Older New Yorkers recall how weeping crowds churned about under Gen. Grant's windows when the financial collapse was announced. He was then nearing the Great Adventure, and could only speak with difficulty. On an afternoon in June, 1885, his neighbors recall the stocky, bearded man with high hat and deep, burning eyes going for his last drive in Central Park. He was seen no more by the public and passed away a month later near Saratoga Springs.

There is something of a choke in this last ad in a New York paper:

Every dog lover understands.

Most of them in the dictionary at my left. But some of those $9.98 ones I make up right in my own head.

In an essay today there was a phrase that suddenly crossed my eyes and sent me spinning. It read:

"In the law of his parabolic morphology——"

I'm afraid to look it up. I just know it is something about sex again.

Reversing a Miracle

AN ANCIENT "PRIMITIF" PAINTING OF THE MARRIAGE IN CANA

Prohibitionists, usually deeply religious, are invited to ask themselves the meaning of this picture, which portrays what has been for centuries accepted as one of the great miracles.

A wedding or other celebration with water only was dull then, as it is now. The miracle was performed by the Founder of Christianity that wedding guests might be supplied with wine in accordance with the custom of the time and country.

"And the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there.

"And both Jesus was called, and his disciples, to the marriage.

"And when they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus saith unto him, They have no wine. . . .

"And there were set there six water pots of stone, after the manner of purifying of the Jews, containing two or three firkins apiece.

"Jesus saith unto them, Fill the water pots with water. And they filled them up to the brim."

When the wine, by command of Jesus, was taken to the Governor he remarked that, ordinarily, good wine is used at the beginning of a feast. "And when men have well drunk, then that which is worse; but thou hast kept the good wine until now."

The country is endeavoring, without success, to reverse that miracle by supplying compulsory ice water in place of wine and beer everywhere in the United States.

This modern would-be "miracle" of fanaticism is not making much progress. And much unpleasant crime accompanies the fruitless effort.

How do you reconcile a combination of Christianity and strict prohibition that forbids wine? Would the Founder of Christianity have used his miraculous powers to provide an evil thing to the wedding guests? Was His knowledge not greater than that of the modern prohibition agent or prohibition law?

Some prohibitionists say that the text was badly translated, and the water was changed into non-alcholic wine. There was, then, no such thing as non-alcholic wine. And if the Bible text says what it does not mean in THAT case, why not in all other cases?

The primitif painting reproduced here is one of four depicting scenes in the life of the Saviour painted in the fifteenth century by order of Queen Isabella of Spain in honor of the Emperor Frederick Third, and were placed in a Spanish monastery in Valladolid.

Christians through all the centuries have accepted this miracle of the marriage in Cana as one of the most pleasing in Christian history, comparable, in the kindness and sympathy for human wants, with the miracle of the loaves and the fishes.

How do prohibitionists explain it? Do they, in their own conceit, know more about human needs and about right and wrong than was known to Christ Himself?

If in the judgment of the Founder of Christianity it was right, nineteen hundred years ago, for human beings to use the wine customarily drunk everywhere, a miracle being actually performed to provide that wine, how can it be wrong to use wine now?

And why not use the light wine and the beer that men drank for thousands of years before and after the birth of Christ, to counteract vile whiskey which is a recent creation, unknown to our forefathers, and that under prohibition has become the standard drink of the United States?
